Moroccan Crowds March Into Spanish Sahara

KILOMETER EIGHT, Inside Spanish Sahara (AP) — In scenes reminiscent of a biblical epic, tens of thousands of Moroccan volunteers walked 5½ miles through a blinding dust storm in searing desert heat today on their "March of Conquest" into the Spanish Sahara.

They walked for three hours to a point just four kilometers (2½ miles) away from the Spanish so-called "dissuasion line" of alleged minefields, barbed wire and heavy armored units. No incidents were reported.

A senior police officer controlling the march said, "We will stay here overnight and tomorrow morning, we will see."

The Moroccan government radio said the volunteers jubilantly hoisted the Moroccan flag over a Spanish fort as they began their march.

The Spanish cabinet met in Madrid to discuss the march into the disputed territory. A Spanish government official said the column was nearly a half mile wide and a little over a mile inside the border when the cabinet began meeting.

An eyewitness account of the march, broadcast by the Moroccan government radio, said four Spanish F5 jet fighters continuously overflew the marchers at very low altitude "but failed to intimidate them," and that two Spanish helicopters hovered nearby, observing the progress of the marchers.

The advance column encountered no opposition, the Moroccan radio said. Spain and Algeria had threatened military action and Spain warned that a minefield waited eight miles inside the border of the disputed territory. The Spanish army pulled back eight miles from the border last week.

A commentator who said he was broadcasting from the border said all the unarmed marchers who had massed there before dawn crossed into the Spanish colonial territory near the white-painted border fort of Tah, and soon hoisted the Moroccan flag over its walls.

1.8 Per Cent Leap in Wholesale Prices Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) —Wholesale prices leaped 1.8 per cent in October, the biggest monthly rise in a year, the government reported today. The jump indicated that inflation remains a serious problem.

Price tags on new model cars, lumber and textile products were particularly significant in raising prices last month, but the increases were spread almost across the board, the Labor Department said. Farm prices also were up sharply but still about half the rise in September.

October's increase in the wholesale price index followed gains of six-tenths of a per cent in September and eight-tenths of a per cent in August and was the sharpest rise since October, 1974 when wholesale prices rose 2.9 per cent.

With a new spurt at the wholesale level, consumers can expect a substantial rise in the cost of living in the months ahead as changes in wholesale prices eventually show up in retail stores.

Over the last three months, wholesale prices rose at an annual rate of 13.5 per cent, up from a 6 per cent rate in the May-July quarter. However, the rate was still less than half the 29.6 per cent rate the three months ended last October before the recession slowed inflation

Wholesale prices last month were 5.1 per cent higher than a year ago. The index moved up to 178.9, meaning it cost $178.90 in October to buy the same goods at wholesale which sold for $100 in the 1967 base period.

Farm prices rose 2.2 per cent last month, a sharp rate but still significantly less than the 4.3 per cent increase in September. This put farm prices 5.2 per cent above a year ago.

The sharpest increases in agriculture were for live poultry, leaf tobacco and fluid milk. Prices for fresh and dried vegetables dropped in October, while livestock and plant and animal fibers rose much less than in the previous month.

Farm prices fluctuate erratically from month to month. Thus, economists consider industrial prices a more reliable barometr of basic inflationary trends. In this category the news was not good.

Industrial prices jumped 1.2 per cent in October, up from seven-tenths of a per cent in September and three times the amount of increases recorded during the summer months. They have been accelerating since last March.

A substantial rise in industrial prices at such an early stage in the recovery from the recession has aroused concern among economists over the strength of the recovery.

The Labor Department said increases for transportation equipment, including passenger

Britain Rushes Troops To Belize in Crisis

BELIZE CITY, Belize (AP) — The British-Guatemalan dispute over tiny Belize heated up today, with Britain rushing reinforcements to the Central American colony and Guatemala accusing the British of "intimidation."

"Because of increased Guatemalan military activity near the border with Belize, the British government has reluctantly decided that it has no alternative but to increase the small British garrison in Belize," said a government statement in London.

Sources in Belize said the British government had received reports that Guatemala had sent 10 armored troop carriers plus infantry and supplies to Polvora, 15 miles from the Belize border.

An undisclosed number of British infantrymen, jet fighters and vertical take-off aircraft were sent from London to reinforce the 650-man garrison in Belize, the British government said.

The Royal Navy frigate Zulu patrolled off the southern coast to block any Guatemalan gunboats that might approach the coast of Belize.

Belizen formerly British Honduras, was settled by the British about 1638. Guatemala in herited sovereignty over the territory from Spain, but Britain rejects the claim.

Smaller than Vermont, Belize has a population of 135,000 persons, 60 per cent of them of African descent, and has been a self-governing British colony for 12 years. But Britain is responsible for its defense, foreign affairs, internal security and civil service employment.

The local government elected last year favors eventual independence. Britain, supported by 46 other countries including Cuba and the English-speaking Caribbean states, proposed to the United Nations General Assembly on Wednesday that it call for self-determination and territorial integrity for Belize.

Britain last sent military reinforcements to Belize in 1972 in answer to what was considered a similar invasion threat from Guatemala.

New Rule Reported in Bangladesh

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Supreme Court Chief Justice Abu Sadat Mohammed Syeem took over as president of Bangladesh today after junior officers who overthrew independence hero Sheik Mujibur Rahman three months ago lost out in a power struggle.

Sayem took the oath of office from a fellow judge in a brief ceremony at the presidential palace attended by diplomats, government officials and high-ranking military officers, including Maj. Gen. Khalid Musharaf, the new army chief.

The outgoing president, Khondakar Mushtaque Ahmed, who resigned after the junior officers who installed him in August fled to Bangkok, was not present, and there was no official information about him.

Six hours after the ceremony, Radio Bangladesh announced that Vice President Mohammadullah had also resigned.

In New Delhi, where events in neighboring Bangladesh were closely watched, observers found no indication of how much power Syeem would have or whether he would be more than an interim president. Western diplomatic sources said there was a possibility that the officers who gained control of the army this week would set up a ruling council with the president as the nominal head.

Ford Expects To See Mao, Report Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say President Ford "fully expects" to see Chairman Mao Tse-tung when he travels to China next month.

They dismissed speculation that the trip is uncertain.

"Neither side has called it into question," one high-placed source said Wednesday.

Ford is set to begin his four-day stay in Peking Dec. 1. Precisely when he will meet the aging Chinese leader has not been announced, as is customary.

The 81-year-old Mao met with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger last month when Kissinger traveled to China, and there is no reason to suppose Ford will not also be granted an audience, officials said.

The Chinese have sent word to Washington that the trip will be conducted in a business-like manner and without frills.

U.S. officials also have confirmed that Ford will stop in Indonesia and The Philippines on his return.

Some U.S. officials saw the addition of the island nations to Ford's itinerary as an attempt to downgrade the importance of the China visit because of a chilly reception given Kissinger. But others said the stops had been in the works since before the Kissinger trip.

An American advance team, originally scheduled to leave last Monday, probably will be on its way early next week, after a simultaneous announcement of details of Ford's trip made in the two capitals.

The team's trip was postponed shortly before Ford announced a shake-up of his Cabinet and White House staff.

Rocky Says He Left to Prevent Party Squabbles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice Presidnet Nelson A. Rockefeller said today he stepped aside as a prospective 1976 running mate so that President Ford wouldn't be plagued by Republican party squabbles.

He said he believes Ford "will be nominated and he's my candidate" for the White House next year.

Rockefeller said he has had his differences with the President, as in his support of the New York City aid Ford opposes, but he said these "were not the basic elements" in his political decision.

"If I have basic differences, I speak out," he said.

Rockefeller was vague about his own political future.

He would not speculate about the possibility that he might, himself, wind up as a candidate in the 1976 presidential race.

But he didn't rule it out, either.

And he avoided saying exactly what his role will be in next year's campaign, noting that the new federal election law limits him to a $1,000 personal contribution to Ford, and that the Republican party cannot finance a campaign for presidential nomination.

"I think that he will be nominated, and he's my candidate," Rockefeller said. He also said he does not think the President need worry about the conservative challenge of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

But, as for himself, Rockefeller avoided any clear signal of future plans.

"I have no plans beyond this press conference," he said.

Rockefeller began the half-hour, nationally broadcast and televised news conference with a statement saynig that party squabbling was the real reason for his decision to quit as a prospective Ford partner on the 1976 ticket.

He said the squabbling made things more difficult for the President when Ford needs to be able to give full attention to national problems.

"I came here to help him and not complicate his life," Rockefeller said.

But Rockefeller said he instead found himself becoming the issue as his old conservative foes started assailing the prospective ticket.

"The only way I could take the issue out —which was me — was to write the letter,"

Tax Cut Measure Faces Showdown Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's tax cuts would be extended into next year and, in the future under legislation facing the final test in Congress' tax-writing committee.

The tax-cut plan lacks a federal spending lid that President Ford insists is necessary for his approval.

In advance of today's show down in the House Ways and Means Committee, Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said the legislation should survive the final votes, climaxing months of hearings and some fundamental questioning of the nation's tax structure.

The bill's major item is a $12.7 billion plan to continue some 1975 personal tax cuts into 1976. This amounts to an added $2.6-billion tax cut next year compared with the cuts in effect this year. The current tax cuts expire at the end of this year.

The individual tax cuts in the bill would make permanent the 1975 law's temporary hikes in minimum and maximum standard deductions and would create, just for 1976, a new tax credit of 2 per cent of the first $12,000 of annual income.

For example, the bill means that a single taxpayer with adjusted gross income of $15,000 who paid $2,549 in 1974 taxes and $2,519 in 1975 taxes would pay $2,315 in 1976 taxes, assuming deductible personal expenses of 17 per cent of income.

Using the same assumptions, the bill means a married couple with two dependents and adjusted gross income of $20,000 paid $2,660 in 1974 taxes and $2,540 in 1975 taxes and would pay $2,420 in 1976 taxes.

The bill also would extend business tax cuts of the 1975 law through 1980 for the 10 per cent increased investment tax credit and through 1977 for the temporary corporate tax rate adjustments.

The legislation would make tax benefits for child care available to more working parents, expand a tax credit system for the aged, boost taxes on higher-income individuals through changes in the so-called minimum tax on the rich and curb various tax shelters.

Energy Bill Would Delay Higher Prices for Fuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House conferees are approaching final agreement on oil price legislation that delays higher fuel prices and rejects some basic demands of the Ford administration.

The measure, which would protect motorists and homeowners against higher fuel prices until after the 1976 election, is part of a comprehensive energy bill that is expected to receive final congressional approval next week.

House and Senate conferees writing final terms of the energy bill adopted separate provisions Wednesday that agree on a need to cut current oil prices but differ on how long price controls should last.

Although both tentative proposals violate the Ford administration's minimum guidelines, the Federal Energy Administration's initial reaction to the votes was only that the action "does not appear to be within an acceptable range." No veto was threatened.

Unless Congress can pass an energy bill acceptable to the administration, Ford is expected to offer his own oil price plan next week on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

Barring a negative vote by one house, the administration could impose a plan that probably would phase out price controls over a period of 3½ or four years. And, like the congressional plans, the Ford proposal would be likely to delay any sharp increase in the price of gasoline or home-heating oil until after the elections a year from now.

The squabble over oil prices has kept the Democratic-controlled Congress and Ford at odds since Jan. 15 when the President urged that price controls be ended quickly. Ford contends that higher prices resulting from an end to controls would force conservation and give the oil industry more money to develop new energy sources.

Democrats say such action would have disastrous effects on the economy without guaranteeing greater oil production.

Under the price control sys- as "old" oil — sells for $5.25 a in the United States —known House conferrees on the broad barrel. Oil free of controls sells for $14, meaning U.S. oil averages $8.75.

In working with the Senate-House conferees on the broad energy bill, the administration said it would accept no plan that did not allow the average per barrel price to rise to $13.50 within three or four years, keep the price of "new" oil at no less than $10.50 and reduce or at least hold the line on U.S. consumption of imported oil.

The plans approved separately by the Senate and House delegations to the conference fail on at least one of the three counts.

The Senate plan, adopted tentatively on a 14 to 9 vote, would allow the average U.S. price to climb no higher than $10.30 a barrel by the end of a 40-month decontrol period. During the first 24 months, Congress could freeze the existing price, al-

PPACG Okays Training for Handicapped

The executive comittee of thhe Pikes Peak Area Council of Governments (PPACG) Wednesday gave its stamp of approval to a $98,810 horticultural project that could provide job training for the handicapped.

While the entire PPACG body has to ratify the approval, the members of the council seemed duty impressed by the proposal. They did question many aspects of it however.

Earth Spectrum, a private profit - making enterprise, sells commercial and hobby greenhouses, and proposes to train handicapped persons of all kinds in them, to prepare them for jobs in the 800 such businesses in a 75-mile radius. The radius includes Denver, which the council's executive committee did not necessarily feel was a valid inclusion.

The project would serve the mentaly and physically handicaped, as well as disabled veterans, said Dave Hendricks, representative of Earth Spectrum.

Comments on the project were presented in written form by the Mental Retardation Commission, Goodwill Industries, Colorado State University (CSU) Extension Service, the City of Colorado Springs and the Health Association of the Pikes Peak Region.

This is the only such grant to be applied for in the state, Hendricks said. It is being made to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Office of Human Development.

A comment from Goodwill Industries on the project was that it should, though initially supported by a grant and other tax monies, become a self - supporting project within a few years "in keeping with community philosophy."

Teaching staff from C.S.U. and from University of Southern Colorado will be used in the project.

In other action, the executive comittee approved of a $1.25 million water system grant application for the city of Victor.

Also, the committee looked at a "forced retirement" policy statement and job development for the elderly. A memo from Frances Kenny, planner for the aging, noted that El Paso County has an "arbitrary and compulsory" retirement policy based on age for non-elected county employes and asked that the county officials look at that policy for revision.

A $238,748 Headstart Program grant was also approved, as was a plan for public involvement in Project Aquarius.

Favorable comment was also made on an area plan for services to the aging.

Most County Units Holding Line on Their Mill Levies

The mill levies of 44 of the 63 governmental units and special districts in El Paso County are "holding the line," according to a release by Commissioner Thom Foulks Wednesday.

The county has 63 separate taxing divisions of which the commissioners have the statutory responsibility of certifying their tax levies and reporting them to the Colorado Division of Property Taxation by Nov. 15.

Only one of the 17 school districts has reported its mill levy and the largest taxing district, Colorado Springs, has yet to file its 1975 levy. Edison School District reportedly will increase its mill levy from 41.69 to 42.80.

With the exception of Colorado Springs, all the municipal-

Rockefeller said. He said that when he told the President about it on Oct. 28, Ford accepted his decision without trying to convince him to stay.

Nonetheless, Rockefeller said he didn't think he would have been a liability to the Ford ticket. He said the Republicans who oppose him are "a minority of a minority."

"But it is an issue and a subject of concern to those who are responsible for the President's campaign and nomination," he said. "It's not worth it."

Rockefeller said he has not and will not speculate about the possibility that he might be a 1976 presidential candidate in the event Ford loses early primary elections and is knocked out of the race. He said history indicates that an incumbent President will be his party's nominee.

And if history is wrong? "I have absolutely no speculations on the subject," Rockefeller said.

That played down the question but didn't flatly rule out the possibility. And when it was noted that he has three times run for the White House himself, Rockefeller replied:

"I have to say I'm closer right now than I ever have been."

That drew a burst of laughter, and when it subsided, Rockefeller went on, "I wouldn't have accepted the vice presidency if I hadn't been willing to take the presidency should, God forbid, something happen to the President.

"So I'm not going to kid you that I came down here with no thought of the presidency," Rockefeller said.

But he said he isn't running and added, chatting with reporters after the news conference, that he's delighted being vice president.

"I'm crazy about it, particularly now," he said. "You're all forgetting, I'm going to be here 14 months. There's nothing you can do about it."

Energy Bill Would Delay Higher Prices for Fuel

The Senate delegation agreed that at the start of its program, the current $8.75 average would be cut to $7.55 and allowed to rise by as much as 10 per cent a year.

Under the House plan, the average would be reduced immediately to $7.15 and allowed to rise by 8 per cent a year. After 24 months, the price existing at that time could be frozen until Congress changed it.

1.8 Per Cent Leap in Wholesale Prices Seen

cars and trucks, as well as increases for textile products and metals accounted for much of the steep rise in industrial commodities. Prices also were higher for furniture and household durables, cattle hides, electric power and fuels and most categories and rubber and plastic products.

Industrial prices last month were 6 per cent higher than in October, 1974.

Consumer finished goods — the category of wholesale prices related most directly to retail prices — rose 1.6 per cent in October after rising 1.2 per cent in September.

Wholesale prices of consumer foods, basically the prices paid by supermarkets, increased 1.7 per cent last month, about the same as in September. Prices were higher for meats, poultry, fish, vegetables, dairy products and coffee. Prices declined for sugar products, fats and oils.

No Universal Code for Business Said Possible

NEW YORK (AP) — "American business today is too diversified to operate under a universal code of business conduct," Frank T. Cary, chairman of International Business Machines Corp., said.

"More practical," he said, "would be a code of business conduct written by each company." Or perhaps, he conceded, an industry code might be possible. But an over-all standard, in his view, would be riddled with exceptions.

IBM, perhaps more than any other company, has a reputation for spirited but highly disciplined efficiency, and for establishing behavioral rules for its 290,000 employes.

A variety of social activitists are calling for such a code, following accounts of illegal political contributions, payments to foreign agents to obtain preferential treatment and other scandals.

In an interview, Cary suggested that attempts to establish a common code would become bogged in details that n.ight obscure the general intent, but he reaffirmed his belief in individual company codes.

In formulating written codes, sometimes to avoid legal pitfalls and consumer complications, some companies find they are articulating for the first time their underlying spirit and over-all goals.

Underlying all seems to be a statement in 1962 by Tom Watson Jr., son of the founder, in a McKinsey Foundation Lecture at Columbia University.

"The basic philosophy, spirit, and drive of an organization," he said, "have far more to do with its relative achievements than do technological or economic resources, organizational structure, innovation, and timing."

Atop that are three "basic beliefs:" Respect for the individual, the best customer service possible and "excellence" in the pursuit of goals.

Specifics are contained in an 84-page book entitled "Business Conduct Guidelines," the contents of which all managers and many others must, on a yearly basis, certify they understand.

The punch card accompanying the book requires the employe to put his signature below a phrase stating, "I recognize that any violation of these guidelines may be cause for dismissal from the company."

The fine, as Cary views it, must be stiff. And there should be no exceptions to its application, even if the individual is an officer or another essential employe.

"An ethical code must be the personal concern of the chief executive," he said. "It isn't enough if it isn't developed at that level." The ideas might come from below, he said, but the responsibility n.ust come from the top.

It must also be understood. "It's easy to make statements," he continued, "but then they must be communicated." If the chief executive is to have his code implemented, it must be understood that it isn't simply a pro forma document.

"You must make clear that these ethical standards apply even if they interfere with reaching business goals," he said. "It must be clear that ethical standards take precedence."

Discussed in the book are matters such as gifts and entertainment — no gifts to a customer if they could reasonably be viewed as resulting from the IBM relationship — disparagement of competitors, conflicts of interest.

There is a highly practical side to the code. "The fact that everyone in IBM knows the rules is a great discipline," Cary said. It makes managing more effective. It helps avoid legal difficulties.

The IBM code prohibits illegal political contributions, of course, but in doing so it further demonstrates the large components of practicality and self-interest.

By involving a company in such activities, Cary said, "you begin to put the future of a business on a very shaky foundation of political success or failure."

Politics, he suggested, is not what business does best. Its job is to provide goods and services and be a responsible member of the community, according to Cary. Politics, he said, is not its forte.

Screening For Inmates Scheduled

CANON CITY (AP) — A screening process will start soon for 25 inmates from the Colorado State Penitentiary's medium security unit for coeducational classes at the women's prison, corrections officials here said Wednesday.

John Griffith, newly appointed deputy superintendent at the women's prison, said there is room for men in classes in power sawing, bookkeeping and other vocational and academic classes.

The men will be bused to the women's unit in the morning, then brought back in the afternoon in the first phase of the program, he said.

He also said the possibility of women inmates attending vocational classes at the men's medium security unit has been discussed but nothing definite has been decided.

Griffith recently was transferred from the men's prison to the women's to develop a coeducational program.

Rhodes Warns GOP Could Be Further Divided

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Leader John Rhodes says the GOP could be further divided rather than unified by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller's decision to withdraw as President Ford's possible 1976 running mate.

"It can be divisive, absolutely. It can indeed," Rhodes said Tuesday. "You may have made some brownie points on the right, although it isn't apparent that these were made, if anybody was trying to make any. You may have lost some of the moderate and liberal spectrum."

Rhodes said in an interview he now would consider the negative and positive reactions to Rockefeller's withdrawal about even.

But he said he doesn't think rock-ribbed conservatives will be happy with anything Ford does from now on. He said the President and the party could be hurt if Rockefeller's supporters among the liberal and moderate wing of the party decide he was treated shabbily.

Asked if absence of a potential Ford running mate would draw liberals and conservatives together, Rhodes said he didn't know that it would.

"I detect a feeling, or sort of a tendency, on the poet of same in our party to splinter rather than cohere. That grieves me because we're not large enough to splinter," Rhodes said.

Rhodes said, "I'm getting the word now that many conservatives are saying that the whole thing wasa gain for the Russians and that there is some deep dark plot that Rockefeller agreed to resign if the President let (Secretary of State) Henry Kissinger have all powers as far as foreign policy is concerned — none of which I believe."

Rhodes said it will be significant to see what liberal Republicans do next. He raised the possibility of a repeat of the 1964 GOP experience "when the liberals took a walk and Sen. Goldwater was soundly defeated. This is certainly not good for the party. I don't believe they will — but they might."

Rhodes also related how presidential staff chief Donald Rumsfeld was asked to be secretary of defense by an aide who tracked him down at a Washington Redskins professional football game Sunday.

Rhodes said Rumsfeld told him that was the first time he learned of the Cabinet shakeups which included the dismissals of Defense Secretary James Schlesinger and CIA Director William Colby.

Rhodes said Rumsfeld expressed surprise at the shifts and at the offer of the defense job, relayed to him by his deputy, Richard Cheney.

Cheney asked Rumsfeld for an immediate answer on whether he would take the defense job, Rhodes said. Rumsfeld recounted the conversation this way, according to Rhodes:

"I said, well, I want to talk to the President about it. He (Cheney) said, 'The hell with that — we want to get this thing buttoned up and you either take it or not.'"

Rhodes said, "Now here was Cheney talking to his boss. So I guess the President really had said to get it done."

He said he called Rumsfeld after being told by Rockefeller Monday that he was bowing out as a vice presidential contender in 1976.

"I called Rummy and asked him, 'Is the roof still on that place?'" he recalled. "He said, 'Isn't it the damndest thing you ever heard of?' The arms and legs are flying around here like crazy.'"

County Commissioners Approve Centennial Hall

Ground will be broken on the new $1,370,000 El Paso County office building April 30, 1976, according to plans approved by the commissioners Wednesday.

The new building, Centennial Hall, will be built on the old jail block bounded by Cascade Avenue and Vermijo, Cucharras and Sahwatch Streets.

Jim Wallace, building architect, explained the plans to Commissioners Jack Vaeth and Thom Foulks Wednesday. Commissioner Jack Mitchell was absent from the meeting.

The early plans call for 3,000 square feet of meeting space at $40 a square-foot, 25,000 square feet of office space for the planning and motor vehicle departments at $35 a square-foot and 25,000 square feet of unfinished garden level space at $15 a square-foot.

The unfinished space will be used for storage or covered parking, Wallace explained. He noted his construction budget was limited to $1,600,000 by the commissioners.

The structure will be built on the site formerly occupied by the old jail. It will be completed in July 1977.

Beyond the first structure proposal presented today, Wallace said the second phase of the block's development will be a high rise office building on the southwest corner.

The third and final phase of construction will be a parking structure on the northwest portion of the block.

The entire western portion of the block will be used for parking following the completion of the first phase and prior to the commencement of the second phase sometime in the future.

Drawings for Centennial Hall will be submitted Dec. 15, Wallace told the commissioners.

"I think you're headed in the right direction," Vaeth said.

"I'm comfortable with what you've got there," Foulks said.

Financing for the building will come from the Public Works fund and revenue sharing. Vaeth feels that even though the county will have to spend $200,000 on the partial completion of the judicial building, finances will be all right.

"It's going to be tight," Foulks said.

He then noted that the addition to the existing county building and the completion of the entire fourth floor of the judicial building will cost approximately the same as the first phase of Centennial Hall.

Howard Clausen, building superintendent, asked that consideration be given in developing a double level basement to provide needed storage space.

Following the approval of the plans, Vaeth said, "As much as we hate to spend money, it would be nice to have a three-dimensional plan of the building."

Jury Finds Man Guilty Of Attempted Robbery

It took a District Court jury less than 30 minutes Wednesday evening to find Jerry Gillespie guilty of attempted armed robbery.

Gillespie, 22, of Livingston, Tex., was charged with trying to rob Dr. John Speigner, 406 Yellowstone Road, July 30. The felony carries an indeterminate sentence of up to five years in the penitentiary.

According to the reports, Gillespie had stopped his car north of Academy Boulevard on Highway 125 and had raised the hood. Speigner stopped his vehicle thinking the defendant had car trouble, and when he offered to help, he was robbed.

Gillespie was represented by public defender Barney Iuppa and Dep. Dist. Atty. David Zook prosecuted. The judge was John F. Gallagher.

A co-defendant, Ray Wood, 18, also of Livingston, has pleaded guilty and is scheduled to be sentenced Monday.

Delay in Gas Field Work Is Being Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House investigations subcommittee charged Friday that two natural gas producers delayed development of a southern Louisiana gas field unnecessarily "and probably in violation of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act."

But the subcommittee offered only circumstantial evidence and its conclusions were sharply attacked by two minority members who said the companies developed the field as fully as was justified by the economic conditions.

The specific case, involving Exxon Corp. and a small producer called Quintana Petroleum Corp., could account — under any explanation — for only a small fraction of the expected shortage of natural gas this winter.

But the subcommittee, headed by Rep. John D. Moss, D-Calif., looked into it as part of a larger investigation seeking to determine whether natural gas producers deliberately contributed to the growing shortage by withholding gas from the market to force the removal of federal price regulation.

The subcommittee itself cited a number of other reasons why Quintana and Exxon did not develop more rapidly their Garden City gas field in southern Louisiana, including the unexpected intrusion of water and the restraints on drilling imposed by Louisiana state conservation regulations.

"It is not possible to identify conclusively any single reason that Garden City has not been more thoroughly developed," the report said.

The report added that "The evidence suggests that the producers have been unwilling to undertake major work programs except in return for substantial price increases."

On that, there was no argument; but the producers and their minority defenders, Reps. James Collins, R-Tex., and Samuel Devine, R-Ohio, contended that the prices allowed by the Federal Power Commission were too low to justify the investment and risks involved.

An official of Quintana had specifically denied, in subcommittee hearings, that his company — the operator of the field — had deliberately shifted investment to other fields just to take advantage of the higher, unregulated prices of the Louisiana intrastate market.

State Board of Equalization Denies Park County's Lower Assessment

Park County's attempt to give property owners a tax break by lowering property taxes from 30 percent of the assessed value to 20 percent was stymied by the State Board of Equalization Tuesday in Denver.

Gov. Dick Lamm, chairman of the board, told the Park County delegation that it had a "strong case of equity," but the board doesn't have the power to give the county the relief it seeks.

He and other members of the board suggested that the Legislature may devise a way out for the county if it passes proposed legislature dealing with revision of laws concerning state aid to schools, when it convenes in January.

At stake in Park County is about $15 million, the difference between the 20 and 30 percent assessment.

The county is the only one in Colorado to comply with the state's directive to assess property at 30 percent of its assessed valuation. Officials completed a reappraisal for the 1975 tax year and obtained approval from the State Board of Equalization.

In September, the board decided that non compliance with the law was too widespread to require counties to immediately increase their assessments to the statutory 30 percent, and ordered counties to raise their assessments to 20 percent by the end of 1976 and 30 percent by the end of 1977.

With this state derictive, the Park County Board of of Commissioners had second thoughts about their action, and approved a blanket lowering of the valuation to 20 percent. Their explanation was that other Colorado counties are not complying with the provisions of the statue and that their action was an effort to equalize assessments in Park County as well as recoup an expected loss of approximately $185,000 in state aid to schools.

They sent a "corrected" abstract lowering the assessments to 20 percent, to Ray Carper, state property administrator, who sent it to the Board of Equalization. The county commissioners were asked to attend Tuesday's hearing to discuss the matter.

During the two and a half hour hearing, Gov. Lamm agreed with Atty. Gen. J.D. MacFarlane, a member of the board, to deny the county's bid for lower assessments and commented ,"There has to be some finality to assessments."

Secretary of State Mary Estill Buchanan, another member, pointed out that the board had decided during its deliberations that assessments couldn't be reduced where they exceeded the 20 percent minimum, and Lamm confirmed that this was "a policy of the board."

Another member, State Treasurer Sam Brown, said that "20 or 30" counties assess one or more classes or subclasses of property at more than 20 percent, and predicted that if Park County were allowed to lower its assessments, another county would make a similar appeal.

Imelda Marcos Said Supporting Abortion

MANILA (AP) — The first lady of The Philippines, a heavily Roman Catholic country, says she supports abortion and divorce, "depending on the circumstances, the situation and the need."

Imelda Marcos, wife of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, in an interview released today also made reference to U.S. First Lady Betty Ford's attitude toward premarital sex.

Mrs. Ford, in commenting about how open relations are among members of the first family, said in a television interview that she wouldn't be surprised if the Fords' 18-year-old daughter, Susan, came to her some day and told her she was having an affair.

"When my daughter has an affair, it's my business, too, not just my daughter's," Mrs. Marcos was quoted as saying. "I would mind if she did have an affair."

The Marcos have two college-age daughters and a son, all unmarried.

The interview, conducted two weeks ago by the the government news agency, was released in the midst of a controversy here about legalizing divorce, which is banned, and promoting abortion as a means of birth control.

ities in the country have set their respective mill levies. They are: Calhan, 14.05; Fountain, 15; Green Mountain Falls, 17; Manitou Springs, 16.5; Monument, 20; Palmer Lake, 18; and Ramah, 13.

Of the 35 special districts reporting, 18 have held their mill levies stable, nine have decreased their levies and eight have shown an increase, according to Foulks. Only Academy Water and Sanitation District has yet to report its 1975 mill levy.

Foulks noted several of the school districts have submitted revenue base increase requests to the State School District Budget Review Board. It has the authority to allow school districts to raise mill levies beyond the limitations of the Public School Finance Act of 1973. The school districts may also submit a budget increase for voter approval prior to Dec. 8.

Taxes paid this year show the school districts receiving the highest total, $35,448,635. The county, according to Foulks, has the second highest total of $12,800,333. The cities and towns totaled $5,744,922 and special districts received $1,864,879.

Nation Must Be Aggressive To Help Develop Energy; Stanford Expert

By RAY BROUSSARD
Gazette Telegraph
Staff Writer

DENVER (GT) — The nation must embark on an aggressive program to develop its natural resources of geothermal energy, Paul Kruger of Stanford University declared Wednesday.

For more than a decade, the expert of the civil engineering department at Stanford said, goethermal energy has been heralded as one of the more promising forms of energy alternate to oil and gas for electric power generation.

"But during the last 15 years," he said, "the total capacity in the U.S. has only achieved about half the size of a modern nuclear power plant. And yet, the U.S., especially its western and Gulf coast states, is believed to possess a vast resource base of geothermal heat at depths up to 20 miles."

Many estimates of these potential resources suitable for the production of electric power, he said, have been published and they range over a spectrum of more than a factor of 100 — suggesting, he said, that the potential "is essentially unknown."

Kruger made his remarks before the symposium on environment and energy conservation, concluding in Denver Thursday. The syn.posium was sponsored by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Energy Research and Development Administration.

He prefaced his remarks by saying that the estimated construction of about 200 to 250 nuclear power reactors by 1985-90 would indicate a pessimistic forecast showing that the contribution of geothermal energy to the nation's energy supply "may indeed be small."

The optimistic forecasts however, represent more than 15 percent of the total electric power requirements stimatd for the year 1985, he said.

Kruger noted that the task force for geothermal energy in 1974 established a national goal for 1985 of geothermal development representing an equivalent energy supply of one million barrels of oil per day.

"This goal," he said, "was clearly a compromise between what is worth a national effort and what might be realistically achieved. The potential for adding or replacing the equivalent of sor.e 25 nuclear power plants or for conserving one million barrels of oil per day should be an adequate incentive for the nation to accelerate the development of a viable geothermal industry."

Kruger said, however, that a puzzling enigma appears.

"If the potential resourse base of geothermal energy is so vast, why has significant utilization not occurred?" he asked. "The entire U.S. production of electric power from geothermal resources occurs at one location, the Geysers in California, where over a 15-year period starting in 1960, generating capacity has steadily grown."

He noted that the Geysers is the largest geothermal electricity generating station in the world. The entire world - wide capacity of electric power generation by geothermal resources is about the equivalent of the capacity of a single modern nuclear power plant, he said.

But Kruger pointed out that utilization of geothermal fluids for thermal energy in the U.S. is almost negligible.

"And yet throughout the country," he said, "fossil fuels are consumed in large quantities to boil water for heating and electric power generation, both at very low thermal efficiency."

Some countries, he noted, already use geothermal fluids for its thermal energy, notably Iceland, where municipal heating "is an important utilization."

Several countries, responding to increased public awareness that future supply of fossil fuel n.ay be "very limited," are examining the potential use of "indigenous thermal waters for industrial and municipal heating."

Asked Kruger: "How is this enigma to be solved; how is the U.S., endowed with potentially - bountiful geothermal resources going to develop these natural resources as a significant contribution to its energy supply."

The attainment of a national goal to contribute an equivalent of one million barrels of oil per day from geothermal resources, he said, "clearly requires accelerated development of a geothermal industry capable of providing 20,000 to 30,000 megawatts of electric power and thermal energy in the next 10 to 15 years."

And, he warned, this objective will require a national effort to accelerate and co-ordinate development in three parallel tasks: (1) the discovery, proving and extraction of geothermal resources to provide a significant supply of hydrothermal fluids for direct utilization; (2) the technology to convert the resources as found in its various natural forms and qualities into electricity; and (3) the removal of unnecessary institutional constraints to the rapid development of a cost - effective and environmentally - acceptable industry.

A n.ajor factor which helps create the enigma of vast resource base and little utilization, he said, is the variability of geothermal resources. The geothermal energy cycle, he said, seems comparatively simple to other alternate energy sources.

But he said that the energy cycle is "actually complex in that geothermal resources occur in many types of teologic, thermodynamic, hydrodynamic and chemical quality.

"The upper half of the earth's crust may contain a resource base readily classified as vast," he said. "But much of the energy is too diffuse to be exploitable as an energy source."

The only geothermal resources presently used for electric power generation, he said, are high - quality hydrothermal convective systems which contain high - quality geofluids suitable for transferring geothermal heat to the sur[face] for direct use in low - effici[ent] steam turbines.

Unfortunately, however, [such] resources have been discov[ered] at only a few places on ea[rth], Kruger said. More than 75 [per]cent of the world's geother[mal] electric power capacity res[ults] from vapor - dominated hy[dro]thermal systems which prod[uce] dry or super - heated steam [for] direct conversion, he said.

"The remaining capacity [re]sults from high - temperat[ure], low - salinity, water - do[mi]nated hydrothermal systems [in] which the geofluids are flas[hed] on production, and only the s[ep]arated steam is used for e[lec]tric power generation," he s[aid].

The liquid fraction is ei[ther] wasted or re-injected into [the] ground, Kruger said. These s[ys]tems, he noted, are co[m]mercially less desirable beca[use] only a small fraction of [the] water flashes to streams, th[er]mal efficiencies are low a[nd] plant operational problems [are] more severe.

Although estimates of the g[eo]thermal resource base a[re] available, he said, the mag[ni]tude of the potential reserves [is] not yet well defined. The lo[ca]tion of underground deposits [of] geothermal heat, is a diffic[ult] task, Kruger said.

More than one million ac[res] of "hot spots" — areas [of] known geothermal energy [—] were identified as early as 19[..] by the U.S. Department of t[he] Interior in designated fede[ral] lands in five western states, [in]cluding Colorado, as having cu[r]rent potential value as geothe[r]mal resources. Colorado is su[p]posed to be the top potenti[al] state, Kruger said.

An additional 86 million acr[es] of land in 13 states were des[ig]nated as prospectively valuab[le] for geothermal resources, [he] said.

Exploration, Kruger said, ha[s] been undertaken by industry o[n] private lands, and through th[e] Federal Leasing Act of 1970, o[n] federal lands by competitiv[e] and non-competitive leasin[g] under supervision of the Burea[u] of Land Management.

"Although total values ar[e] difficult to ascertain," he said, "it is estimated that about 100,000 acres on federal publ[ic] lands and about 200,000 acres o[n] federal Indian lands were unde[r]

Handicapped Man Told Can't Ride Special Bus

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Phil Sanders was injured when he fell decorating a Christmas tree for a handicapped children's party. Now, handicapped himself, Sanders has been told he can't ride a specially equipped bus to the hospital because of something called "Title 20."

"I don't want charity or anything," the retired riverboat captain said. "I'll pay them. I just need a ride to the hospital."

Sanders, 63, paralyzed from the chest down since 1972 by the fall, has been using the Easter Seal Society van for monthly trips to the Veterans Administration hospital for treatment and checkups.

His wife, who has been working with handicapped people for years, does not drive and is suffering from arthritis. The van, with its special lifts and wheel chair ramps represents the most convenient way for Sanders to travel to the hospital.

The alternative is a taxicab, and Mrs. Sanders says cabs are not equipped to handle seriously handicapped persons.

Sanders took early retirement from the Corps of Engineers to join his wife in her work with the handicapped. Their efforts in teaching swimming, dancing and arts and crafts to handicapped children and adults earned them a state award in 1971.

Then, according to a society spokesman, something called "Title 20" went into effect. The society receives federal funds to operate the specially equipped vans for the handicapped and federal guidelines sap anyone who has an income of more than $525 a month cannot be transported.

"We really have some ironbound rules," said Sam Williams, director of the society's transportation program. "It would place no burden on us to carry him to the hospital. . . . But the government says you can't haul a person if his income exceeds a certain amount."

Sanders' pension amounts to about $1,000 a month, and he says he is willing to pay for his ride to the hospital.

Americans Not Agreeing With Ford, Poll Says

NEW YORK (AP) — By a margin of more than 2 to 1, Americans disagree with President Ford's assertion that a fiscal default by New York City would have only local impact, according to a joint poll by the New York Times and CBS News.

Of the 778 men and women interviewed in hundreds of communities nationwide by telephone, 69 per cent told Times and CBS pollstres that they thought a default by the city would have "an important effect on the economy of the country." Sixteen per cent did not believe the national economy would be affected, and 14 per cent offered no opinion.

In his news conference Monday night, Ford said there was "no serious probability that there will be any national repercussions" from default.

The newspaper suggested that Ford's speech last Wednesday had little of the intended impact since 60 per cent of those who said they had heard the speech or seen reports about it thought aid should be given to the city anyway.

The Times said the sample of 778 persons would be enough to say with 95 per cent certainty that the results would not differ by more than 4 per cent, plus or minus, from the results that would be obtained by interviewing the nation's entire adult population.

Sixty-eight per cent of those surveyed said they thought other cities were having money problems similar to New York's, while16 per cent disagreed and another 16 per cent had no opinion.

Though differing with Ford about the ramifications of a New York City default, those polled were closely split on the question of whether he is "playing politics" or "showing good financial judgment."

Thirty-three per cent of the sample said Ford was playing politics, 34 per cent thought he was showing good financial judgment, 7 per cent thought he was doing both and 4 per cent said he was doing neither. Twenty-two per cent had no opinion.

Although 41 per cent thought the President was showing good financial judgment — including the 7 per cent who think he is playing politics and being fiscally prudent — only 33 per cent thought the federal government should not provide funds to help the city. Fifty-five per cent said they thought the city should get federal aid, and 12 per cent had no opinion.

A plurality of 47 per cent said they would approve federal backing for investors in New York City bonds, while 23 per cent disapproved and 30 per cent had no opinion.

Elizabeth Taylor, Bette Davis to Costar in Film

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor and Bette Davis are going to costar in the movie of the hit musical "A Little Night Music," a spokesman for Miss Taylor announced today.

Gavin de Becker, executive aide to Miss Taylor and her husband, actor Richard Burton, said filming will start in four or five months.

Miss Taylor will play the part of a Viennese operetta star, while Miss Davis will play her mother. Though Miss Taylor's part has the hit song of the show, "Send in the Clowns," neither part requires a singing voice.

Burton is to star in a Broadway production called "Murderer," and there are plans for he and his wife to make another film together, De Becker said.

The Burtons were winding up nearly two months in southern Africa with some last-minute shopping today, including the purchase by Burton of a ring set with 72 diamonds for his wife.

Johannesburg jeweler Ivor Gordon said, "The band is of white gold and has 72 blue-white diamonds set along the three top sides. The diamonds are pave set and are matched in size and weight."

Neither De Becker nor the jeweler would say how much the new ring cost, Gordon added, "They will be coming in today to make another big purchase of special stock. And when I say big I mean really big."

Safeguards for Nuclear Export Being Proposed

By BARTON REPPERT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department's top arms control official plans to discuss before a House subcommittee U.S. efforts aimed at achieving tighter safeguards on export of sensitive nuclear technology.

Director Fred C. Ikle of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency was expected to brief the panel behind closed doors today about talks proceeding secretly in London among officials of the United States, the Soviet Union and four other nations.

The talks — also involving Britain, France, West Germany and Canada — reportedly deal with ways to prevent peaceful atomic power technology from being converted to production of nuclear weapons.

Although the talks have been going on intermittently for months, officials in London and Washington have declined to comment publicly on the substance of the discussions.

"We're not even acknowledging who's taking part," a State Department spokesman said Tuesday night.

Scheduled to appear with Ikle before the House Internaitonal Relations subcommittee was Myron B. Kratzer, acting assistant secretary of state for oceans and international environmental and scientific affairs.

Kratzer took over the post from Dixy Lee Ray, former head of the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission. In resigning the State Department job last June, Dr. Ray charged that she had not been consulted on key policy matters.

The House panel, headed by Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., has been conducting a series of hearings on dangers of nuclear proliferation.

Zablocki has introduced a draft resolution seeking to urge steps toward a broader nuclear arms limitation accord and increased pressure on nations which have not yet signed the 1970 treaty on nonproliferation.

A similar measure has been introduced in the Senate by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Under the House resolution, Congress would urge "a halt on further transfers of nuclear fuel, technology and equipment" to countries which fail to sign the nonproliferation pact or accept International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards.

The stipulation would apply "if all other major nuclear suppliers agree to a similar halt on such transfers."

Meanwhile, Rep. Les Aspin D-Wis., said Tuesday he was introducing legislation to provide "some positive incentives" to nations which agree to forego nuclear arms.

Aspin's proposed resolution would promise that the United States "will never use nuclear weapons first" against any country that signs and abides by the nonproliferation treaty.

"Such diverse nations as Nigeria, Egypt, Burma, Switzerland, Argentina and Brazil have all expressed doubts about signing and ratifying the treaty because of inadequate security guarantees," the Wisconsin Democrat said.

Turkey Seeks Weapons Deal From France

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The Turkish government has given French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues a list of weapons it wants to buy and he says France can supply most of them, Foeign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil told a news conference today.

Caglayangil said his government wants to increase its arsenal and diversify its sources of supply, a policy he said was made necessary by the American embargo on arms sale to Turkey because of its invasion of Cyprus. More than 90 per cent of the equipment of the Turkish armed forces is American.

Sauvagnargues concluded a visit to Turkey today with a sightseeing visit to Istanbul.

The Turkish minister refused to say what arms Turkey would buy from France or when they would be delivered.

Caglayangil said his government was also in touch with other countries 'advanced in the armaments industry," but the Soviet Union is not one of them.

'Informational Picketing' Adopted by CSTA Against District 11

The first major steps in a "plan of action" adopted by Colorado Springs Teachers Association (CSTA) Wednesday night are "informational picketing" and a "dollar bill program."

At a meeting attended by nearly 800 teachers, the CSTA leadership presented a recommended plan of action to demonstrate that "teachers honestly care" and the "severity of the catch up salary issue to career teachers."

The picketing will be launched at 3:30 p.m. Friday outside the administration building. Signs will proclaim "Teachers Need To Teach." Over 500 teachers stood up and indicated they would be on hand to participate in the demonstration.

The entire plan of action was passed by a resounding voice vote despite two or three persons voting no on the issue.

The dollar bill program will be a community support drive with teachers trying to demonstrate their impact on the area's economy by presenting a CSTA dollar with every purchase or payment made during the next few weeks.

The dollar reads, "Teachers support this community. The school board wants to cut our buying power again. This will directly affect you." According to the information on the bill, teachers will spend about $16 million in 1975 and a cost of living adjustment is necessary "to insure their continued purchasing power." The business and home phone numbers of the school board members are then listed and the public is asked to call them in support of the teachers.

Teacher concerns expressed Wednesday night and at an earlier press conference focused in on the issue of the $525 proposed increment rather then the base salary.

Phill Moeckli, CSTA president, and Robert Gray, executive director, said that the plight of the career teacher, or a teacher who has been in the district for a number of years, is a "crisis situation."

Because of the lack of mobility in the teaching profession, they said, teachers are locked into jobs without the opportunity to seek the higher paying positions.

Using Denver, Jefferson County and Cherry Creek schools as a comparison, the CSTA leadership presented figures to the media and the teachers saying that there is a wide gap between what career teachers are paid in those districts and what they are paid in Colorado Springs.

Using Denver as an example, the charts showed that a teacher who has been in the district for 10 years and has a bachelors degree, plus 32 hours work, makes $1,303 less, a PHD at the top of the scale makes $3,995 less.

The CSTA researchers said that if Denver reaches a settlement then District 11 teachers will face a difference increased to $2,523 less for a BA and 32 hours and $5,685 less for the PHD.

The gap will be so big, the teachers were told, that it will be impossible to catch up.

The chief example presented by the CSTA leadership was a comparison with Cherry Creek which they said has just agreed to the $8,700 base proposed for District 11. There the increments have kept in step, according to the CSTA figures, because the 10 year teacher in Cherry Creek with the BA degree is $4,160 more then District 11 and the PHD degree is $4,819 more.

Current CSTA proposals would cost about $3.6 million according to teachers and about $3.8 million according to the school board.

In their case before the fact finder, CSTA said, they would be questioning about the allocation of some $4.4 million in budget funds. This they said was more then enough to give teachers what they want "and we are going after it."

Of the 10 largest school districts, District 11 ranks 10th in the amount of the budget allocated to instruction, according to the CSTA report.

Teachers at the mass meeting were told that their mediation "was the last possible avenue for agreement." They were told they could not put their faith in a mediator to provide an agreeable recommendation.

Phil Moeckli said he was proud of the teachers committment in getting what they need and that this may be the first time in Colorado Springs history that a fact finding report is rejected.

The fact finders decision will be submitted to the mass meeting of teachers and they will, Moeckli said, decide if it is to be accepted or not.

He told teachers not to "count on the fact finder riding in on a big white horse and saving leases for geothermal exploration in mid-1975.

Extraction and conversion technologies for dry-stream reservoirs are sufficiently advanced to be commercially attractive, he said.

"Conversion technologies for hot - water resources are more complex," Kruger said, "and for hot brines, geo-pressured basins and hot dry rock formations, they are even more complex. Their commercial utilization is still further away. Since these latter types of resource hold great promise, technology to exploit them must be developed."

RADIATOR CAPS NEED CARE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There is a trick to safely removing the radiator cap from an overheated engine. After the engine has cooled off, protect your hand with rags, avert your face and turn the cap just until the steam escapes. When hissing stops, advises the National Automobile Club, you can remove the cap completely, start the engine and very slowly add water.

The cacomistle is a ring-tailed cat that ranges from Oregon to Southern Mexico. Although it resembles a cat, it is related to the racoon. Its habits are so cat-like that miners of the old West kept them in their cabins to keep down the rats and mice. It is capable of squeezing into extremely narrow cracks and crevices.

The Local Scene

One Down, 49 To Go

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Now that the U.S. Army has counted New Mexico as a "foreign country, why shouldn't the Army do the same for Colorado and all the rest of these benight-states?

In case you missed the headline last night in the GT, it ran like this: "New Mexico Should Join the Union." My reaction was, "Why should it?"

It seems that a young man contacted an Army recruiting headquarters in another state as to how he should go about enlisting in the U.S. Army. The reply mailed to him in his home town of Belen, N.M., which is only 30 miles due south of Albuquerque and almost exactly in the center of New Mexico, informed the young man that, "We're sorry, but we can't mail such information to people living in foreign nations, except the American Ambassadors."

With one stroke of his pen, this recruiting agent put New Mexico beyond the boundaries of these states. I say that New Mexico should be proud of her new status as a "foreign nation." If she's got any sense at all, she will surely be bright enough to stay outside the boundaries of the U.S.A. And if Washington should attempt to send an American Ambassador to represent the U.S. to Sante Fe, the government of New Mexico should reject Washington's offer.

If they did accept it, then the new foreign country would have to reciprocate in kind. And then they'd have Henry Kissinger in their hair attempting to establish a detente with the New Mexican government and that would be a catastrophe for them and us both?

I've just had a horrible thought: Maybe Kissinger has already given New Mexico to Russia as a condition for keeping alive his very ill detente.

ENOUGH OF THAT

I will now turn to pleasant subjects. One being that our good friend, Tony Venitucci came by yesterday afternoon bearing gifts, as he always does about this time of year. Tony, who is the same age as my wife, is wearing a large Centennial button on his coat lapel that says, "Native of Colorado." Since my wife is also a native, he pinned one on her gown. I don't rate one because I'm not a genuine native of our fair state.

Well, Tony, has recently been very ill with hepatitis at Penrose Hospital, where he was confined three weeks. I worried about him, but he recovered and appeared to be in excellent condition, except for the fact that he lost 25 pounds during his ordeal.

He must have regained his strength, for he packed in from his car 24 good sized acorn squash in a box, two huge pumpkins, two long and heavy banana squash, and one big round and very heavy hubbard squash. We ate an acorn squash last evening for supper, well buttered and with brown sugar baked in —um-um-um-good!

King Kong is nuts about them, and he just loves the seeds. He'll eat anything we eat and come back for more of the same.

Tony looks as though he'd been through the mill, and we wondered if the lugging around of those big products of his and his brother's fertile soil, wouldn't be too much of a strain on him. But he felt so happy being able to be up and around again that we didn't admonish him to be careful. He is still a very strong man — but we hope he doesn't overdo it until he is more completely recovered. He is a wonderful guy — a man to ride the river with.

Wife Is Not Jewish; Loses Trust Fund

LONDON (AP) — A titled Briton now living in Jamaica lost most of his income from a family trust fund here because his second wife, a former showgirl and beauty queen, is not Jewish.

By marrying his second wife, Pamela, 35, in 1968, Sir Bruce Adolph Reginald Tuck, 49, who lives at Montego Bay lost his entitlement to most of the income from the fund, High Court Judge John Whitford ruled Tuesday.

The judge said Sir Bruce's grandfather, Sir Adolph Tuck, had tried in the trust settlements to ensure that the dignity and honor of his baronetcy, which he considered was conferred not merely on himself but for the Jewish race, should go to successors of Jewish faith and blood.

The amount Sir Bruce had received from the trust was not disclosed in court, but the British Press Association reported his annuity had been some $6,300 annually and now would be no more than $840.

The bulk of Sir Bruce's lost income will go to the fund's trustees to apply under various terms of the settlement.

Manitou Springs Adopts $947,507 Budget

The Manitou Springs City Council approved, on first reading, a proposed 1976 budget of $947,507 which includes a 42-percent hike in sewer rates, no funds for the city dump and no increase in the city's 16.5 mill levy at its regular meeting Wednesday.

The proposed budget is nearly $130,000 higher than last year, in accordance with anticipated increases in revenues.

The budget will be the subject of a public hearing Nov. 18, as will the separate ordinances establishing higher sewer rates and maintaining the mill levy at its 1975 figure.

In a brief explanation of the budget, copies of which were delivered earlier this week to council members, City Manager G. Tracy Williams said Wednesday that 1976 will be a "lean year," as the budget is a proposal "to live within our means."

Williams also announced that a public hearing has been scheduled for Tuesday to consider alternatives to closing the city dump beginning Jan. 1. Meanwhile, no funds were included to operate the dump in the new budget.

The savings of $12,000 for the dump as a line item in the sewer and sanitation budget has been offset by precipitous increases in the cost of sewage treatment, which is done through contract with the city of Colorado Springs. That total sewer and sanitation budget figure for 1976 is $143,350, an increase of more than $21,000. Of the total, $75,150 has been allocated for sewage treatment, an increase of more than $29,000.

Mayor George Miller explained that Manitou Springs will be charged a share of Colorado Springs' depreciation costs, in addition to operation costs, which sharply raises the cost of the service. Thus council approved, also on first reading, an ordinance which passes on the cost of sewage treatment to the individual customers. The proposed rates are $12.75 quarterly for flat-rate residential users (up from $9); $4.25 monthly for metered users (up from $3).

Commenting on the budget. Miller said, "It's a very tight, very conservative budget."

It includes no new programs and attempts to maintain current programs at their current level, he said. It is also tightened to the point that there probably will be no mid-year revisions, as has been common practice in previous years.

Copies of the budget are available for public reading at the Manitou Springs Library.

In other business, council adopted, on first reading, four amendments to the building code, which will be presented in public hearing Nov. 18. The amendments include such new requirements as wheelchair ramps for public buildings, combustion detectors in new construction, ground current fault detectors, new standards for aluminum wiring and new standards for the installation of liquified petroleum gas.

Widefield Won't Receive Additional State Funds

Widefield School District 3 will not receive the $182,757 in additional 1976-77 funds recently requested from the state School District Budget Review Board. According to Administrative Assistant James Gross, the notification of the petition denial stated that the funds were "not justified."

"I've had a few hundred words to say about that," he added.

"Obviously we were disappointed that we didn't get anything," he said. "The decision of the review board is final except when you take it to a vote of the people."

Whether or not the issue will go before the voters hinges upon a district board decision. Gross said he had talked to four or five of the board members and they all indicated that a vote will not be taken.

Plans for the additional funds amounting to $25.09 per pupil called for extended kindergarten services, the hiring of district nurses, and textbooks and related materials.

Gross predicted that the budget would be adjusted to allow for the purchase of the textbooks and related materials as planned. And, "We are going to have to look at our priorities to decide whether to hire a nurse or two nurses or none at all."

The district is committed to carry the extended kindergarten services through June, he said, because of the recent hiring of extra teachers and other measures. But the board will now have to re-evaluate the program to determine if it will be extended for another year.

Although New York City's population declined in the 1950s, today its inhabitants outnumber the combined population of the states of Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho New Mexico, Arizona, Utah and Nevada.

'Informational Picketing' Major Step for CSTA

you." Moeckli continued by saying "he will give you what he thinks you will accept."

The plan of action is designed to demonstrate that teachers are prepared to go as far as need be to achieve their goal. Despite their standing ovation support of the leadership and the plan of action, there was no use of the word "strike," although the rejection of a fact finding report would, they said, result in stronger action.

Meanwhile, the schoot board continued to remain firm on the issue saying the teacher demands were not "reasonable." According to the district's researchers, the current CSTA proposal will mean an average increase of $2,212 or an 18 percent increase in salaries.

The district estimated the average teacher salary to be $12,485.

The $3.8 million it would take to meet the demands, according to the district, does not include the increases in employe retirement benefits and the insurance program.

It was also pointed out that Cherry Creek, Denver and Jefferson County have much higher authorized revenue bases then District 11. That base is set by state law giving those districts a much higher per pupil allowance then District 11.

Teachers countered this, saying that it just indicated that District 11 was not spending as much as it could on education.

District 11 spokesman Thurman Warner said what teachers are saying is take whatever is necessary from the budget to meet our demands then the remainder can be used to meet the rest of the district's needs.

Both groups will take their cases before the fact finder on Monday to begin a three day session leaving the question of a settlement still hanging in the balance.

CC Alumni Report Shows Fields In Business, Education, Health

Liberal arts education at Colorado College has prepared men and women for careers as diverse as acting, farming, and serving in the U.S. Congress, according to a report of the college's classes of 1965, 1955, 1950, and 1935. The classes are holding reunions during the college's homecoming, Friday-Sunday.

In spite of the number of alumni who have followed unusual careers, the majority of the respondents report that they have followed careers in business, education, or the health fields.

Of the 227 members of the class of 1965, 118 responded to the recent questionnaire. Fifty-three or nearly half, of the respondents have completed a graduate or professional degree, and 22 of the 68 women who responded say they are housewives.

The largest number of respondents entered education (31) and business (22). Of the educators, 10 are college professors. Eight of the respondents report that they are students.

Another sizable group entered the health fields. Among the respondents are 10 physicians, a dentist, hospital administrator, regional health program planner, and physical therapist.

In addition, the class numbers 5 writers-editors, 5 scientists, 4 lawyers, 4 computer programmers, and 4 social workers. Other occupations listed by only a few respondents are flight instructor, armed services, graphic artist, novelist, architect, librarian, potter, farmer, and actress.

About half of the members of the class of '35 (64 of 130) responded to the questionnaire. The proportion was slightly lower in the classes of '50 (142 of 352) and '55 (85 of 200).

Many respondents from the classes of 1935, 1950 and 1955 report that they have followed business careers. In the class of 1935, 16 of the 35 men who responded and 3 of the 29 women who responded are, or were until retirement, in business. Forty-eight of 79 men and 4 of 63 women from the class of 1950, and 16 of the 37 men and 1 of the 48 women from the class of 1955 are in business.

The earlier classes also have a higher proportion of women who are housewives. Slightly under half of the women in the classes of '35, '50 and '55 list occupations outside of the home, compared with about two-thirds of the women who graduated in 1965.

Nevertheless, these classes contain a number of women who have carved out unusual careers. Among the women in the class of 1950 are a U.S. Congresswoman, an actress, a writer, and a superintendent of a mental health laboratory. In the class of '35 is a female minister who was the first woman to be ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Diocese of Colorado. Another woman is supervising examiner of laboratory field services for California's Department of Health. The class of '55 includes a woman who has staged operas at the Met. The classes include women who are college professors, physicians, lawyers, pharmacists, artists, and accountants.

Like the class of '65, the classes of '35, '50 and '55 include a high proportion of men and women who have entered education and the health fields. Of the 64 members of the class of '35, 11 are in education and 6 are in health services. These groups include 5 physicians, a dentist, and 3 college professors. The class of '50 includes 20 educators, 3 of them college professors, and 19 in the field of health. In the group are 12 physicians, 2 pharmacists, and a dentist. The 75 respondents from the class of '55 include 16 educators (2 college professors), 2 physicians, and a dentist. Each of the 3 classes lists 3 scientists.

Six members of the class of '50 are lawyers, as are 2 of the class of '35 and 4 of the class of '55. Other occupations listed by respondents range from economist and rancher to interior designer and veterinarian.

San Francisco Candidates Face Runoff Election

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A champion of liberalized marijuana and sex laws and a law-and-order county supervisor will face each other in the race to succeed Joseph L. Alioto as mayor of San Francisco.

State Sen. George Moscone and Supervisor John Barbagelata topped a field of 11 candidates Tuesday to win spots in Dec. 11 runoff.

Alioto could not succeed himself again.

Three ballot propositions supported by Barbagelata and Mrs. Feinstein were overwhelmingly approved by San Francisco voters, including a measure to ban police and firemen's strikes.

It was an election of contradictory results.

Moscone, the Democratic floor leader of the state Senate, was the runaway leader for conservative major candidate in the mayors' race, won 18 per cent of the vote to edge out Mrs. Feinstein, president of the board of supervisors.

With 99.93 per cent of the vote counted from San Francisco's 942 precincts, Moscone had 66,633 votes, followed by Barbagelata, 40,818, and Mrs. Feinstein, 39,586.

Superior Court Judge John Ertola tallied 30,356, and State Sen. Milton Marks ran fifth with 27,899.

In other races, liberal Sheriff Richard Hongisto was re-elected by a wide margin, but Dist. Atty. John Jay Ferdon was defeated by challenger Joseph Freitas, who ran a law-and-order campaign.

Moscone, who ran with strong support of labor and city employes, has been an advocate of liberal legislation during the nine years he has represented San Francisco in the state Senate. He successfully sponsored laws reducing penalties for use of marijuana and repealing bans on homosexual acts between consenting adults.

People Rudder of Government, Says James

The American ship of state will continue on a true course so long as the rudder is there and the rudder is the people and their practice of democracy, Gen. Daniel James Jr., told the Rampart Range Kiwanis club this week at the Ramada Inn.

James is commander in chief of the North American Defense Command and previously was assigned as deputy secretary of defense for public affairs.

The general said that changes are being made this week at high levels of the government and that no blood is being shed as a result, which he added, "is the way it should be."

Further, the general declared that the country went through a traumatic change in leadership when President Nixon resigned and was succeeded by Vice President Ford, who had taken that job when the elected vice president, Spiro Agnew, had resigned.

Noting how well the democratic process has worked in this republic, the general urged the club members and their guests, "make sure you vote, otherwise you are not exercising your rights."

And citizens who do not use their right to vote also are not accepting their responsibility, said the commander.

On the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, the voting day in the year for elections above the local level, James said, "everybody should vote. Get in there and tell them what you think. We will come out alright if we all vote. I have faith."

James has little sympathy with citizens who do not vote on the basis that none of the candidates are acceptable to them. "That is the biggest copout of all," he declared. "It is non-acceptable to me."

Not only do citizens have the right and responsibility to vote for representatives in government at all levels, but they have a further right and more responsibilities to help select candidates if they don't like those offered, he said. "And you can get in there yourself and get elected and do things your way."

The country's greatest weapon as it exists in the world is unity, James said.

That can come from the practice of the principles of democracy, following the precepts of the Declaration of Independence, the preamble to the Constitution, and the Constitution, said the general.

"Conquerors prey easily on those who are divided," said James, "so get it together."

Deterrence is the greatest contributor to detente, the general declared, and added, "it is strength that makes it go—military might."

"When all negotiations fail, you have got to be ready. The other side must see the size of the stick we carry and know our willingness to use it," he explained.

While war is ugly, decadence and an unwillingness to defend a way of life is even worse, said James.

James flew combat planes in the Vietnam War and he noted in commenting on that that the wrong person was made the villian of the longest and most unpopular war the country has ever had.

"That is the American serviceman," he explained.

James said that those in this country who opposed the war blamed the serviceman when, and if, he returned from the combat zone.

"We of the military haven't spent time trying to blame someone for the war, we don't have time. We have never been the most popular kids on the block, but it is not our job to be popular, it is our job to be strong."

"We don't follow blindly, servicemen know their rights, and the mud slinging was done by those who didn't wear the uniform, or wore it poorly," he declared.

"Our enemies understand the language of strength. No one wants war, warriors most of all, but we do want peace. There are enough warriors to defend the country against enemies foreign and domestic," said James.

"The Russians are not way ahead of us," he said. "We are the greatest and strongest nation in the world. The country has been divided, but we are on the way to recovery.

"So that's the way she goes, and it is your responsibility," he told the Kiwanians, adding, "No one shall overthrow her from within or from without. This is my country and I love her."

Children Walk 13 Miles to See Uncle

SAN DIEGO (AP) — When Jorge, 7, and Jacqueline, 5, decide to take a stroll, it's some hike: 13 miles barefoot across an international frontier.

Unfortunately, they forgot to tell their mother.

The children disappeared from the California border town of San Ysidro on Saturday, touching off a ground and air search along the Mexican line by San Diego police, the U.S. Border Patrol, a San Diego County Sheriff's Department helicopter and Tijuana police.

They apparently walked barefoot nearly 13 miles from a park near their home to pay an unexpected call on their aunt and uncle in La Mesa, a suburb of Tijuana.

Mrs. Maria Mosti told police she was telephoned at about 10 a.m. Sunday by the childrens' uncle, who calmly asked whether she had given them permission to visit.

No, she told him, she'd been frantic and had called police Saturday night to report them missing since early afternoon.

County Fair Board To Study Maintenance Agreement

The El Paso County Fair Board was told Wednesday to investigate a maintenance and management agreement with the county Park and Recreation District.

Commissioner Jack Vaeth made the suggestion at an unannounced "informal" luncheon meeting with the fair board and the commissioners.

Vaeth's suggestion was made after the fair board noted its 1975 expenses were $30,077 with a $10,236 deficit of architectural fees and operating expenses.

The fair board proposes a 1976 budget of $49,146 designed to pick up this year's deficit.

Vaeth suggested the board continue their "I Owe You" with fair ground architect Walter Burgess and let the county pick up the insurance on the buildings, which the commissioners own.

Tom Collier, fair board member, said the fair grossed $27,517 in 1974. With free gate admission this year, the fair grossed only $24,343.

Vaeth and Commissioner Thom Foulks agreed with Collier that the fair should not have free gate admission in the future.

Vaeth explained the park district has a park in Calhan near the fair grounds. He proposed combining staffs and making the fair grounds a "year round recreational facility."

"This thing is too big to run on a voluntary business," Vaeth said. "Whether you want to or not, I want you to consider it (working with the park district).

"Sometime the commissioners will come to you and say they want this, this and this."

The fair board deeded over the fair grounds to the commissioners several years ago and asked for a 99-year lease in exchange. The lease agreement has yet to be signed.

Board member Harold Heyse asked if the commissioners could provide any money to the fair board to begin 1976. Vaeth said "No."

After the meeting, Foulks explained the park board is not "autonomous", and he is working to bring it under the direct control of the commissioners' administrative staff.

FLYING HOURS UP, ACCIDENTS DOWN

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (AP) — American pilots are flying longer and farther these days but with fewer accidents, reports Piper Aircraft Corp. here. While the number of hours flown by general aviation aircraft—all business and pleasure planes, not commercial airliners—has increased nearly 100 percent in the last 10 years, the number of fatal accidents per 100,000 flight hours decreased by 16 percent.

Airplane miles traveled were also up by 78 percent, and fatal accidents per million miles down by 8 percent.

Detox Center Could Save Some Lives

By MOLLY R. PARRISH
Gazette Telegraph
Staff Writer

The opening of the city's new detox center could save some lives, according to people who have worked with the "regulars," or winos, who for years filled the police department's drunk tank.

There are about 100 of these regulars in Colorado Springs. They are the people, mostly men, who spend their monthly checks on liquor, and until July 1974 slept off their binges in city jail.

It was a way of life for some. One man, well known to the local police who make up the bar patrol, was arrested 72 times for public intoxication. All told, he spent some 3½ years in municipal jail between 1969 and 1975. He was found dead not long ago in a Denver alley.

He would show up in city court the day after his arrest, and the judge would sentence him to jail. He was so familiar at the jail he had his own trusty uniform. He would put it on and supervise the other inmates from the drunk tank as they washed police cars and kept up the lawn at city hall.

To the local winos, city jail was often a home and a refuge, according to Hal Trester, city probation officer.

"When the winter started getting cold, they would come in," Trester recalled. "A lot of them looked on jail and the jailers as home and a mother hen. They were assured of a bed to sleep on. They knew they had a friend there. It was an ego trip to have someone call them by their first name.

"Some of the old jailers over there were all heart from their toes to their head," Trester said. "They mother-henned the hell out of those guys. They had all the compassion in the world for those old alcoholics. Those jailers have gone the way of the family physician who made house calls."

Matt Railey, prosecutor for the city, is another who dealt regularly with the local winos who were picked up night after night downtown.

"Every morning these guys would be waiting in city court," Railey said. "All we could do with them would be to put them in jail. Really what we were doing for them was keeping them alive. After they were sober they were glad they were in jail.

"These weren't the weekend type drunks. They weren't charged with any other crime. Frequently they were victimized—robbed or rolled—but they never could identify anybody. They were very passive individuals. When they were sober they were really great people."

Railey said that before 1974, 2,200 persons a year were arrested in Colorado Springs for being drunk. Most of these were arrested in the downtown area with a high percentage being found around Colorado Avenue.

In July 1974, the drunk law was taken off the books. The status of being intoxicated was no longer a crime, and policemen could not arrest someone just for being drunk.

"From July 1974 until the detox center opened we couldn't do anything for them," Railey said.

The cops couldn't pick them up and put them in jail unless they were incapacitated. Then they could hold them in protective custody.

That left the local winos to face a cold, hard winter.

Some people tried to help. Last winter members of the bar patrol, who are known as the tough guys of the police department, bought a supply of men's coats from the Salvation Army and passed them out to the local winos. Most of the coats were sold for liquor money.

The Rev. Steve Handen, a Catholic priest who now lives in Denver, used to take in people who had nowhere to go but he found that he didn't have enough room. When they came to him he would sign trespassing complaints so police could arrest them and put them in jail for the night.

"Steve Handen and the bar patrol had the same problem—locating drunks who lived in vacant houses," Railey said. "They drummed up any charge they could think of and then arrested them. We left them in jail pending a trial date. Some of them didn't like it but it kept them alive."

Railey said there were about 100 regulars. Roughly 10 of these have died of alcohol-related deaths since June 1974.

"The lives of about half of them could have been prolonged if they could have gone to jail. Hopefully with the detox center we can do more than that. It seems improbable that some of these people can be cured, but medical people tell me they can do it."

"I'm sure the same guys are still getting drunk," Trester said. "The sad part of it is that we have lost so many of them since the law was changed.

"The thing that bothers me is the stigma that is attached to alcoholism. Even the issue of where the detox center was to be became a moral issue. The only threat these men pose is threat to themselves, not to the neighborhood.

"The public isn't ready to accept the fact that it is more than a moral issue. The poor guys that we deal with are so far gone that they couldn't break the vicious cycle even if they wanted to."

NOW MANY DOCTORS SKIP INTERNSHIP

CHICAGO (AP) — Today after a medical student gets his MD degree, he often goes directly into residency instead of being an intern, then a resident. Internship is not required today in some medical specialties.

However, says Joseph Ceithaml, dean of students at the University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine, it's a matter of semantics.

"The first post-doctoral clinical appointment year is just that — an apprenticeship in postgraduate medicine, by any name."

This year there are two house staff positions open in the United States for every U.S. medical graduate.

Ceithaml says that the Pritzker School this year offers only one internship program — in internal medicine. He said that the emphasis at the school is on turning out specialists and research physicians. However, the tendency is generally away from the traditional rotating internships in which the new doctor rotates through various hospital medical services, doing a little obstetrics, a little surgery, a little pediatrics, etc.

'Sunset' Proposal Topic of Common Cause Meeting Here Nov. 20

An open meeting to discuss a proposed amendment to the Colorado Constitution will be held here later this month by Colorado Common Cause.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Nov. 20 in the WES Room of Rastall Center on the Colorado College Campus.

Common Cause has scheduled six meetings in the state, beginning Wednesday in Grand Junction, then Saturday at Greeley and Monday at Fort Collins.

The Pueblo meeting will be Nov. 12, and the meeting in Denver will be Nov. 19.

The discussions will be along two related lines: 1. the Colorado system of state regulatory agencies, and 2. the need for Common Cause's "Sunset" proposal, which would require an amendment to the constitution.

The Common Cause proposed amendment would allow the state to act on demise or continuation of stage agencies which many people in the state believe are outdated.

Persons wishing to contribute ideas may call Anne Hartung at 684-9146, or Steve Barth at 861-7670.

The proposal would add a section to the constitution under a title of "Executive Accountability," as part of Article V.

The proposal also would require a re-numbering of the balance of sections in the article that presently run from 44 through 49 dealing with congressional and legislative appointments.

Said Barth, "Citizen input is necessary so that solutions to the important question of control over government regulation are not attempted without knowledge of what is beneficial to the public."

In 1974, Common Cause supported a proposed amendment to the constitution that became known as the "Sunshine" amendment. It opened meetings of governmental officials to the public.

It carries as a referendum issue by a vote of 491,073 in favor to 325,819 against.

The "Sunset" amendment would be a means for agencies of state government to demonstrate that they are needed, and if they could not do that the laws creating the agencies would lapse and the agencies would go into limbo.

Ms. Hartung said the proposal is designed to require legislative review and evaluation of regulatory agencies and to trim away those agencies or regulations which may be ineffective or inefficient.

This is how the sunset proposal would work:

— All state boards and agencies in the Colorado Department of Regulatory Agencies would be limited to a seven-year period.

— At the end of that period the legislature could re-establish the agency for another seven years if a bill went through the two legislatures in regular procedure.

— If the bill did not pass, the agency would cease to exist.

— Before acting on the bill relative to a given agency, the legislature would hold open hearings at which the agency concerned would be required to prove it was performing the job it originally was intended to do. It also would have to show a future need.

— About one-seventh of the total number of agencies would appear before the legislature each year.

Barth and Ms. Hartung said that the Common Cause proposal was presented to the legislature's Joint Judiciary Committee Oct. 22.

It received support from members of both political parties, they added.

Further, they said, Gov. Richard Lamm is considering whether or not he should include regulatory reform on his call to the legislature in January.

There are 44 agencies in the regulatory agencies department:

Cemetery, chiropractic, civil rights, collection agency, cosmetology, dealers, dental.

Electrical engineers and land surveyors, hearing aid dealers, Insurance Division, Institutions for Aged Persons.

Nursing, nursing home administrators, optometry, passenger tramway, pharmacy, physical therapy, plumbing, podiatry, practical nursing, psychologists, Public Utilities Commission.

Racing events, Real Estate Commission, sanitarians, Savings and Loan Division, Securities Division, shorthand reporters, social workers, and Status of Women Commission.

Research Into Nature Of Business Reported

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — America seems to be doing some very basic research into, among other things, the nature of its business, financial and political institutions, and appears to be in a mood to redefine and reconstruct them.

The process already is under way and, if you believe that pollsters accurately reveal the mind of the people, that process is likely to continue, painful though it sometimes is.

We are seeking to clarify the duties of city, state and federal governments, asking ourselves if business should assume added social responsibilities, wondering if we should dissolve the big stock exchange and, in the interests of fairness, replace them with electronic computers.

These are only a few of the issues. We are asking some similar questions about our personal finances. We made great material advances during the 1960s, but we got inflation and pollution.

"Is this the good life?" we ask.

Following a huge increase in debt during the past decade or so, fiscal integrity is now much on the minds of people.

One pollster reports that many of those interviewed last let the governments practice it too."

You can always spot cycle and trends and trends within trends if you look long enough at charts or statistics or other masses of evidence. Analysts do it all the time in the stock market and make a good living at it.

You must be careful, however, that you aren't just spotting chance designs, as many a stock analyst does, but, instead, something of significance. It may take the perspective of history to reveal the pattern of the 1970s, but this much now seems certain:

Like it or not, a time of reckoning seems to have been resented. It isn't so much that the tough questions were asked but that events left little choice but to come up with answers to questions we have hidden from.

Perhaps most pressing at the moment is the question of determining the responsibilities to each other of city, state and federal governments, a consideration presented in accute dimensions by the New York City financial mess.

Involved in this argument are many other issues — who pays for welfare, can economic society continue to satisfy the rising aspirations of people, should bondholders continue to have primary right to repayment?

We are also asking ourselves about what role business and financial institutions must play, not just in relation to New York City but in regard to the entire American society.

Should industry take on more social responsibilities? Should it seek to impose its own morality on a foreign society in which it operates or should it accept the mores of that society, no matter how abhorrent it is?

Have some corporations become so large and important that they must be considered public assets rather than the property of the individual shareowners? Have they become so multinational as to dictate foreign policy?

Must they be subject to greater restraints in the national interest? Or should some of the existing regulations be removed to permit them greater freedom and, we are told, to offer more efficient service?

Deregulation of business is likely to be an important part of President Ford's election campaign but, relatively unpublicized, the issue has long been debated in governmental and academic circles.

All those matters now are being considered we didn't seek them out — in fact, we even tried to deny their existence. But procrastination inevitably leads to a day of reckoning and, with luck, insight and determination, to solutions.

Marshall Plans To Fight City Attorney's Ruling

By W. J. McGLASSON
Gazette Telegraph
Staff Writer

City Councilman Andrew Marshall, after conferring with his personal attorney, said Wednesday night he planned to seek a declaratory judgment in district court to overturn an opinion of the city attorney's office which said Marshall must resign either as a bank director or as a councilman.

Marshall, the third councilman to fall victim to Section 141 of the Colorado Springs City Charter, said he could not accept "the implication there is something wrong" with his being a director and minimal stockholder of the Exchange National Bank where the city deposits substantial sums of money.

City Attorney Gordon Hinds late Wednesday released his latest opinion involving Section 141 and said he believed it prohibited Marshall from serving as a director at the bank while a councilman even though Marshall receives no dividend from the minimum stock he owns in the bank and receives only a per diem as a director.

Hinds' opinion also stated he believed it was a violation of the same charter provision for Mrs. Marshall to own shares of stock in Affiliated Bank Shares (ABS), the holding company which owns the First National Bank of Colorado Springs. The First National, like virtually every other bank in the city, is a depository for city funds.

Mrs. Marshall does receive dividends from the First National stock she owns which "constitutes an indirect benefit to Councilman Marshall by others acting in his behalf," Hinds ruled.

Hinds then said there were three alternatives for the Marshalls. One, the city could withdraw all its money from both the Exchange and First National Banks. Two, Marshall could resign from the Exchange board and Mrs. Marshall could sell her ABS stock. Three, Marshall could resign as a councilman.

The former mayor said Wednesday night he had not decided if he would resign from council or from the bank's board of directors and have Mrs. Marshall sell her stock should Hinds' opinion stand up in district court.

Last week, Mayor Larry Ochs announced he was resigning as a director of East Bank of Colorado Springs without waiting for an opinion from the city attorney. It was a step taken to retain his "credibiility" in the community, the mayor said.

A week before that, Hinds also ruled that Section 141 prohibited the city from doing any further business with Brookhart Building Centers as long as Charles Brown was on the city council and also a stockholder and officer in the Brookhart firm.

It was after Hinds had delivered his opinion in the Brown - Brookhart matter that questions arose about the status of Ochs and Marshall since both were on the board of directors of banks where the city has money on deposit.

The mayor's case was a little different than the Marshall case in that Ochs said he had been receiving some dividends from the minimum number of shares he owned in East Bank.

Wednesday night, Marshall said he believed the issue involved was of such importance he felt a court ruling should be made.

It would be possible to invoke such a strict interpretation to Section 141 as to reach the point of "absurdity," Marshall said.

For example, he said it could be held that no councilman could own stock in American Telephone and Telegraph (AT&T) since the city does business with the telephone company.

Marshall, acknowledging there was a "quantitative" judgment involved, said he could see no way he could benefit or profit from city money being on deposit at the Exchange National Bank since re receives no salary or dividends. Like Ochs, Marshall said he had no idea of how much city money was deposited in Exchange National.

But Hinds cited two court findings, one in the Nebraska Supreme Court and the other in a New York court which, in essence, held that whatever benefit falls to the corporation also accrues to the benefit of a director of that corporation.

"If the reasoning in the (Nebraska) case is accepted, Councilman Marshall being a director of Exchange and being legally liable as a trustee for the actions of that bank, then a benefit to the financial institution constitutes a benefit or advantage to him personally," Hinds wrote in his opinion.

But supporting Marshall's contention that the application of Section 141 could be carried to absurd lengths, is another citation made by Hinds when he issued his opinion in the Charles Brown - Brookhart matter.

A New Hampshire court ruled, in 1968, as follows:

"The area of matters on which aldermen (councilmen) and other legislators must pass is of such a wide range that almost every legislator, whether he be in a private of public calling, or in neither, must inevitably have some interest which may conceivably be affected by some legislative proposal.

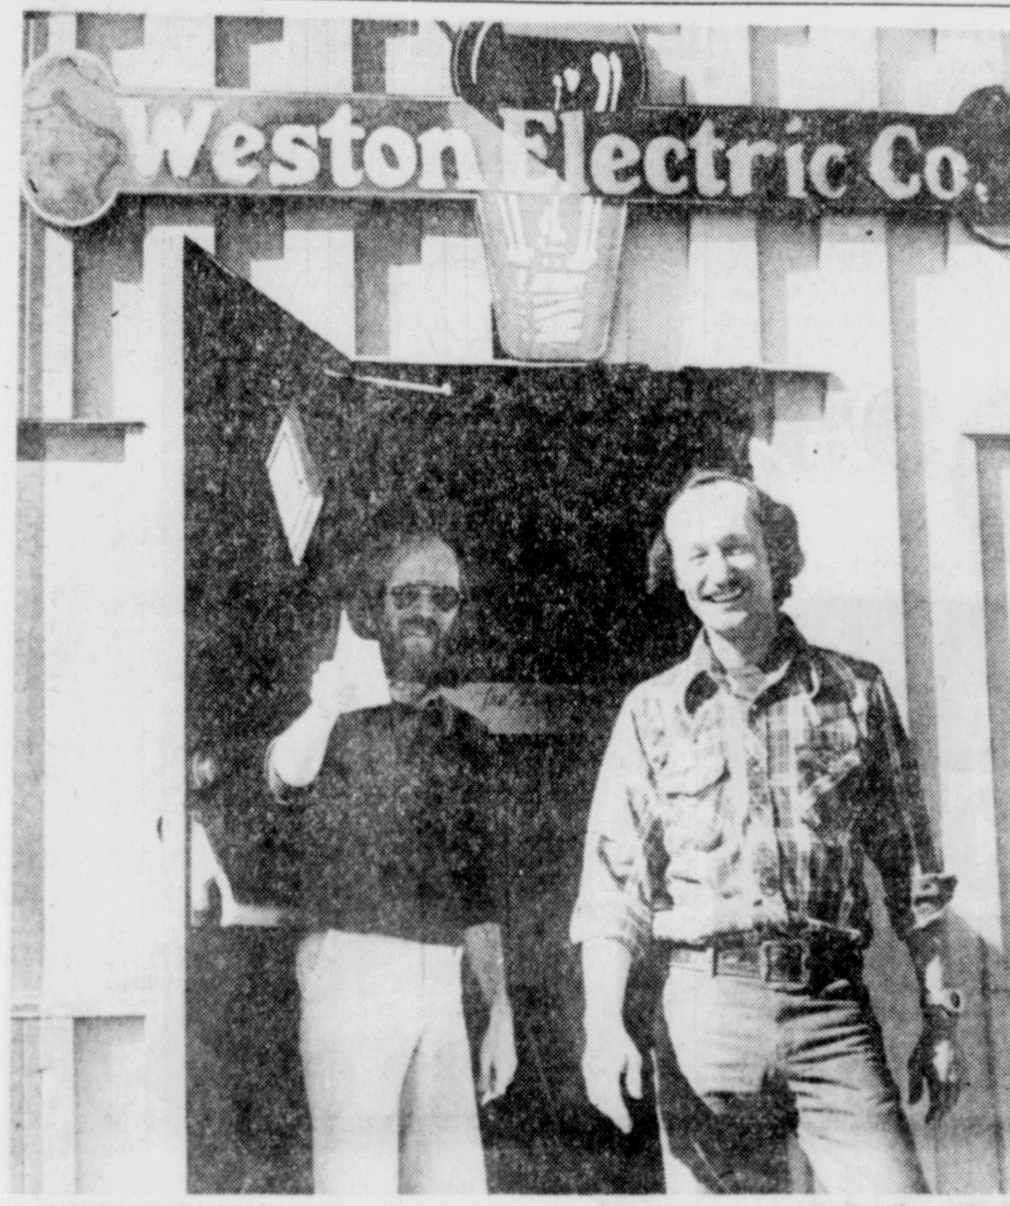
"It follows that, if every possibility of conflict, no matter how remote, uncertain, contingent, insubstantial or speculative, were cause for disqualification, many persons who are peculiarly suited for public office by the very reason of their commercial or professional experience would be prevented from contributing their services to the community."

Hinds used the New Hampshire court citation to demonstrate that "the courts are trying to draw the line on a case by case basis at the point where the 'profit, benefit or advantage' is so remote, speculative or small that it cannot, in the contemplation of reasonable men, influence the action of the elected official in any manner."

There was no question in the case of Brown and Brookhart, Hinds said.

But Marshall and numerous others who have discussed the knotty issue with the Gazette Telegraph maintain that a strict, literal application of Section 141, without regard to how remote a person's interest in a bank or other enterprise might be, would be to eliminate a major segment of the business community, and others who own stock as well, from participating in city government.

That section reads: "No officer (of the city) shall receive any commission, money or thing of value, or derive any profit, benefit or advantage, direct or indirect, from or by reason of any dealings with or services for the city by himself or by others . . . except his share of the public benefit."



A SMILING WELCOME—Larry Tackett (left) and Jeff Simons are the managers of Weston Electric. Whenever the Colorado School for the Deaf and the Blind calls and wants to bring children out for some afternoon recreation, Tackett and Simons are there, smiling a welcome for the youngsters. Besides providing music and a light show, the treats are on the house. Also, a martial arts demonstration held here a year or so ago also benefitted the school, courtesy of these guys.

'Day Club' Helping D&B Students

By LINDA DuVAL
Gazette Telegraph
Staff Writer

When is a night club not a night club?

When it's a "day club."

That's what Weston Electric becomes a couple times a month to kids from the Colorado School for the Deaf and the Blind.

Whenever time and schedules permit, children of all ages and with all types of handicaps go to the night club during the late afternoon and dance to their heart's content.

"That school is one of the most highly underrated things in this town," said Tackett. "But we think they are great kids."

Ever since they opened for business, three and a half years ago, Weston Electric has provided a special recreational and learning experience for the children at the school.

"About 25 or 30 kids come out here once or twice a month, and we're ready whenever they are," Tackett said. "We fit ourselves into their schedule.

"We darken the place, turn on the light show, put on some music, and let them dance. We provide potato chips, pretzels and soft drinks and stuff like that for them, and they really seem to love it."

Why do they do it?

"Because we like to," said Simons. It started, he said, when a couple of the teachers at the school worked part time at Weston Electric.

The experience is new and exciting to the kids. For the deaf, the beat of the music vibrates through the floor and they, too, dance in rhythm. For the blind, the light show sometimes penetrates their world of darkness, if only for a short time.

Some of the sensory experiences they get at the night club are "firsts" for the children.

"The teachers seem to think it helps them in many ways," Simons said. "It's a hard thing to put into words, but it, well, contributes to the child's awareness. They become aware that there are other forms of light besides the ones they see every day in their environments.

"It's a group activity. They learn to function socially as a group. They get to explore music and light.

"If you can get any child interested in music, you've accomplished something."

Both men radiate enthusiasm about the program.

"Part of the joy of doing this thing is that it's a chance to entertain a group of people we normally don't get to entertain," Simons said.

"None of us (involved in ownership of the club) are from this area, but we wanted to give something back to the community. But we get a lot out of it, too."

DANCING, DANCING — One of the teachers at the Colorado School for the Deaf and the Blind takes two youngsters in tow, helping them with the rudiments of dancing. This almost - instinctive movement of dancing is good therapy for the children, many of whom are very limited in possibilities for getting exercise.

Arts Funding May Hike Taxes

The Colorado Springs City Council today tentatively approved 1976 funding for the Fine Arts Center, the Colorado Springs Symphony and La Raza Unida, but in so doing may have switched the vote of one councilman who heretofore has opposed any increase in next year's property tax mill levy.

Councilman Don Willman said during the discussion surrounding the request of La Raza Unida, after money for the FAC and symphony was approved, that if council was going to "fund these things, we ought to have the guts to raise taxes to pay for them."

He said he was going to change his position and support an increase in the mill levy for 1976, from its present 11 to perhaps the 11.5.

However, other suggestions made during the final moments of the budget meeting on cultural activities stressed that the tentative figures approved thus far by council during its series of early morning meetings, including today's, are "not set in concrete."

Councilman Michael Bird, who had voted for all three cultural agencies, announced that he was going to change positions and instead of supporting a requested $50,607 for the symphony probably would ask that the amount be dropped to $35,000.

With that kind of shuffling obviously going on in the minds of several council members, the tentative approvals given today were anything but solid.

However, council showed its support for a $75,000 appropriation to the Fine Arts Center which is the same amount it received in 1975. The center had requested $143,000.

The symphony also received the same amount that it did this year, $50,607. It had requested $55.588.

On both of these appropriations councilmen Willman and Robert Isaac both voted no. They have spoken out repeatedly, as they did today, against the use of tax money and the injection of local government into social service and cultural support.

La Raza Unida was making a request for $28,050 for a number of cultural programs aimed at the Spanish - speaking residents of the community.

Lee Serrano and Sister Clarita Trujillo, who represented the organization, told council the money was needed to get their programs underway and financially secure, so that they could be continued in future years

A QUILT IN THE MAKING — Mrs. Zella Kelly of the Life Care Center is one of several senior citizens sewing squares that will be a part of a Bicentennial quilt depicting the Pikes Peak Region. She is assisted by Nancy Peterson, activities director of the center. The quilting will be done by Second Horizons and the proceeds from the quilt, which will be raffled off in 1976, will go to Silver Key. Various area artists provided the designs for the squares. The quilt will be the theme of Silver Key's entry in the Tournament of Tables on Nov. 22 and 23.

Monument Fixes Error on Garage

When a municipal garage was built in Monument over a year ago it was assumed that it was being built on town property. But that was wrong.

The garage, owned by the town, was on a piece of land owned by Charles C. Brown and Thomas Watt.

The mistake was rectified at the town council Monday when council passed an ordinance providing for the purchase of the land for $6,000.

Mayor Luther Slaubaugh refused to comment on the matter.

According to former council member F.G. McPhail, the mistake was an honest one but, "The town is primarily at fault because they didn't go up there and have the land surveyed. The town's property was adjacent to where they put the building."

"In small towns," he said, "especially up to the last four or five years, it seems that hearing and negotiations and transactions weren't recorded in the proper manner." This is the reason, he continued, that it is difficult to determine property lines and other similar matters.

McPhail said he thought the mistake was revealed when something concerning taxes was brought to the attention of the council resulting in an investigation.

"Our attorney worked with the property owners to arrive at some kind of settlement. I think they are going about it in the right way."

Brown said he and Watt were unaware that the building had been constructed on their property until town attorney, Tom Cross, brough it to their attention a few months ago. "They came to us and told us what the situation was and so we got an evaluation of the property and negotiated a sales price on it." The appraisal was made by himself and Watt, he said.

"It was not a formal appraisal." Watt said their original appraisal was for $8,700.

Brown said the matter was conducted without any complications. "We have had very good communication with them (the town council). We were fair in our pricing and they were fair in their acceptance of it."

With Some Reservation

By Injun Woody

I know you little fellers are going to jump right out of your rompers for joy when you hear what the Postal Service has cooked up for you, a new way to waste the taxpayers money. . .

What they have now is two huge 26-foot aluminum vans which will house a "mail-service exhibit" and travel around and about the countryside. The exhibit will consist of two main sections - a projection room where seated audiences will be provided with postal information through talks, films and slides! Bully!

The second part will provide an exhibit where the highlights of the wonderful service performed by the postal people will be illustrated and related to the historic growth of mail operations! Terrific!

In each city visited, employees in the local post offices will be shown the exhibit so they will know what the postal department and their jobs are all about. In addition, you, the panting, eager public, will be allowed to see the exhibits too provided you happen to be at a convention site or at a public school or near the main post office.

In each area, the exhibits will be manned by local postal workers. And here I thought the post offices were all short handed or so we were told. . .

Arts Funding May Raise City Taxes

without tax support.

Both Isaac and Willman said if a majority of council supported tax money for fine arts and a symphony it was only fair that they should also support the programs of La Raza Unida.

There were several questions as to why the sum of $28,050 was needed and Isaac suggested it be reduced to $15,100 while Vice Mayor Richard Dodge said he would go along for $20,000.

Given a choice among the three figures the majority of five indicated their support for the $20,000.

Arne Hansen, director of the Fine Arts Center, told the city council that the tax support given to the FAC the past two years has cut the "spiraling deterioration" of the Fine Arts Center and also enabled him to obtain greater support from national endowments.

He said that private contributions make up more than 80 percent of the center's total operating budget.

Phil Kendall, speaking for the symphony, told the council that the six summer concerts and two pairs of family-youth concerts had cost 69 cents per person in terms of the number of persons attending and the city money used to support them.

Even Isaac said he recognized the need for the Fine Arts Center and the symphony and called the Fourth of July Memorial Park concert "extremely effective" in raising the morale and spirit of the community.

But he and Willman both repeated their philosophical difference with the idea of spending tax money for these programs.

Isaac said, too, that he thought the symphony programs were more of a park and recreation item than some of the things that were approved in the city recreation budget.

Council later turned its attention to the budget of the Pikes Peak Area Council of Governments (PPACG).

Reclamation Board Threatens Miners

By RAY BROUSSARD
Gazette Telegraph
Staff Writer

DENVER (GT) — The State Land Reclamation Board Tuesday served notice on strip miners, advising them that if they despoil the land with their operations they had better restore the environment or face orders to shut down their work.

A hard-and-fast set of rules and regulations were handed down Tuesday by Harris Sherman, director of the Department of Natural Resources. He said the standards would "help to enforce existing state laws on strip mining."

The new regulations, while not clearly specified by Sherman, obviously were directed toward the type of operations that have resulted in the now-infamous "scar on the mountain" in the Colorado Springs area.

Strip miners constitute about a third of the state's operations, Sherman said, and though they have been regulated by law for the past three years, there has never been a concise definition of rules to interpret the law for them.

Sherman heads the Land Reclamation Board and he noted, in a news conference, that the rules call for detailed performance standards in reclaiming land—including regulations that apply to grading, restoring topsoil, revegetation, fencing, water resources and wildlife.

Sherman said that the rules apply to open coal mines, sand and gravel mines, limestone mines and quarries.

But Sherman also warned that "not only does that apply to the 135 or 140 commercial strip mining firms in Colorado, but the rules also will regulate every county highway department in the state that operates a sand or gravel pit."

Moreover, he said, the rules are being established to "ensure that land will be restored to a beneficial use."

The Natural Resources director said that the major requirements of the rules are the following:

—Detailed procedures for the Land Reclamation Board in holding hearings, giving formal notice of requirements and filing mining applications.

—A requirement for detailed baseline data from strip mining companies so the board can assess a reclamation application.

—A cost estimate by the mining operator of every phase of his operation. The board would require a performance bond based on this cost. Sherman said the amount of the bond must be equal to the cost of the reclamation of the land so that if it is forfeited, the state "won't be caught without funds to complete the work."

—Annual reports filed by the mining companies to keep the board appraised of their progress.

Sherman added that "I hope the state legislature will require oil shale mining firms to adhere to strict reclamation laws. A public hearing on the strip mining rules will be held Nov. 25 at the Quality Inn in Denver to make sure that everyone understands what is going on."

Census figures indicate that the incomes of Spanish American families are rising faster than those of Americans in general.

Traveling Veterans Should Check VA To See if Benefits Still Apply

DENVER—Veterans planning to travel outside the United States or to establish residence in foreign countries should check with the Veterans Administration before leaving if they plan to seek VA benefits, according to the VA information service here.

Only certain VA benefits may be administered in overseas locations, a VA official explained. A few minutes with a benefits counselor at any VA office prior to leaving the country can avoid unnecessary inconvenience or loss of benefits at a later date, the spokesman added.

One of the most important documents a veteran should carry with him when traveling outside the United States is a VA foreign medical services information card. The VA office which maintains the veteran's medical records can assist in obtaining this card.

Reimbursement for emergency hospitalization for treatment of service-connected conditions in overseas locations cannot be authorized unless the local U.S. embassy or consular office is contacted within 72 hours after hospitalization. Notification of emergency outpatient treatment must be made within 15 days.

As in the United States, however, hospitalization of veterans with nonservice - connected disabilities is on a space-available basis, and only if they are unable to defray expenses.

Retired servicemen are eligible for medical treatment at U. S. military hospitals and clinics overseas.

Education benefits are available overseas to eligible veterans wives, widows and children pursuing degrees in VA-approved foreign schools. Compensation and pension checks, too, may be mailed to most overseas addresses.

The VA's loan guaranty program is not available to veterans living in foreign countries.

To insure prompt receipt of checks, veterans traveling in foreign countries are encouraged to maintain stateside mailing addresses, where possible.

Local VA offices or service officers of veterans' organizations can provide complete information on veterans' benefits.

Economical Plants Supported

Need for Better Conversion Of Fossil Fuels Explained

By Ray Broussard
Gazette Telegraph
Staff Writer

DENVER (GT) — Uncertainties in the availability and cost of future fossil fuel supplies have created an urgent need for more efficient energy conversion machinery to best utilize available fossil fuels, two leading technologists said Tuesday.

It is expected, said Drs. Albert J. Giramonti and William A. Blecher, that more economical use of fossil fuels than is now possible in electric utility steam stations will be provided by future utilization of combined-cycle power plants incorporating open-cycle gas turbines and waste heat recovery steam systems.

The primary reason for this prospect, they said, is that "gas turbines will operate at substantially higher peak cycle temperatures than steam stations."

The two technologists, leading members of the United Technologies Research Center of East Hartford, Conn., were featured speakers at the second day's session of the symposium on environment and energy conservation sponsored by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA).

The high performance potential of combined cycles is partly negated by the requirement, they said, for a clean gaseous or distillate type fuel. Unfortunately, they said domestic supplies of gas and oil are limited, and a serious gap between domestic supplies and demand for these fuels could persist for the next 20 years.

The energy crunch with its accompanying conservation measures had reduced somewhat the projected growth of the electric utility industry, the two men said. Nonetheless, even conservative estimates of the need for electrical energy in 1980 indicate that more synthetic power will be required, of which a great majority will be fossil-fueled.

With all the projected additional installed capacity of fossil fueled power systems, they said, the already difficult problem of utility-caused pollution could become intolerable.

Giramonti and Blecher said that two different approaches are open for utility consideration: treatment of the power plant exhaust to remove pollutants and treatment of dirty fuels before combustion to remove harmful pollutants.

Some stack gas cleanup processes show promise as a means of meeting the near term environmental standards for particulate emissions.

Currently, however, no commercial scale stack gas cleanup system has been demonstrated that also removes significant amounts of poisonous pollutants, they said.

Fuel pre-treatment, they said, would permit meeting all environmental regulations, but would also result in an insignificant increase in the cost of fuels delivered to the power-generating system and introduce significant energy losses.

Several feasibility evaluation studies of advanced combined cycle power systems incorporating fuel gasification and cleanup have been conducted by the firm the experts head.

But they said that one of the most promising advanced-cycle power systems consists of an open cycle gas turbine used in combination with a heat recovery steam system.

A variety of combined-cycle configurations have been investigated, they said, including supercharged and exhaust-fired, but the unfired waste heat recover system often appears to provide higher performance at lower cost than the others.

Unlike some present day combined cycles in which the gas turbines are essentially air preheaters for the steam boiler, advanced cycles would utilize large industrial gas turbines operating at high turbine inlet temperatures.

Future industrial gas turbines used in combined cycles, they said, could be developed incorporating advanced aerospace technology in substantially improved large capacity engines with appreciable higher thermal efficiency.

"While meaningful improvements in aerodynamic performance are projected for future gas turbines," said Giramonti, "the key to high efficiency is raising the turbine inlet temperature. This will, indeed, provide constantly needed fuel, and at a much lower cost to the taxpayer."

EPCC Vets Must Meet Counselor

All new and re-admitted veterans who plan to attend El Paso Community College (EPCC) winter quarter and wish to receive advance pay must make an appointment with a veteran's affairs advisor, according to a statement from the college.

New student veterans should complete admission procedures before applying for advance pay.

Bids Due For Opening On Plant

Bids will be opened at 2 p.m. Nov. 18 for water works improvements at the R. D. Nixon Power Plant, it was reported Monday by J. D. Phillips, director of the Department of Public Utilities.

More specifically, he said, construction will consist of a 5.2 million gallon steel water reservoir and foundation for the plant.

Bids are scheduled to be opened at the conference room at the utilities department, 18 S. Nevada Ave.

Copies of drawings, specifications and other proposed contract documents are on file at the office of the engineer, CH2M Hill, Inc., 12000 E. 47th Ave., Denver. The PO Box is 39048, Denver, 80239.

Fire Alarms Run Even With 1974

Fire alarms in Colorado Springs this year are running just about the same as last year, it was reported recently by Fire Chief Ralph Nice.

He said there were 302 alarms dispatched in October to bring this year's total to 2,677. There were 2,678 alarms for the first 10 months of 1974.

The chief said that during October there were 72 building fires, 33 blazes in vehicles and 86 trash, grass and weed fires.

Firemen also made 27 resuscitator runs and assisted in 11 MAST missions.

Glads Try to Maintain Momentum Against Fliers

By LARRY FERGUSON
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Forecast: "It'll be a good game featuring two contrasting styles of offense and two darn tough defenses."

That's how Widefield coach John Meese views the South Central League championship game which pits his Century Division champion Gladiators against Frontier Division kingpin Mitchell.

Kickoff will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Widefield's C.A. Foster Stadium.

Momentum is the key word which describes the Glads' successful 1975 campaign. After a so-so start which saw the Glads drop two of their first three games by close scores, the momentum started building with a 17-0 victory over Air Academy and continued uninterrupted through the next five games.

The Glads completed their sweep of division opponents last week by whipping Pueblo Central 22-12, boosting the Widefield-Century record to 5-0 and the season mark to 7-2.

In a nutshell, Widefield simply ran past everyone. Unleasing the explosive running combination of Ken Fraser and Howard Ridgeway, the Glads developed into a quick-strike offensive outfit, capable of throwing the knockout punch at any time.

Through the season, opponents learned the hard way that the Glads are in scoring position no matter where they happen to be on the field. Last week, for instance, the Central Wildcats were lulled into believing they had things under control when Widefield took possession at the Glads' three-yard line.

It took Fraser one play and approximately 10 seconds to show Central its mistake. The Wildcat secondary was still trying to figure out who had the ball when Fraser crossed the midfield stripe enroute to a 97-yard touchdown.

And that's they way it's been for Widefield all season.

When Fraser is not breaking the game open, Howard Ridgeway is. Ridgeway, playing in Fraser's shadow most of the season, may well be one of the most underestimated running threats in the SCL. He hasn't had the many headlines that Fraser has had, but he's every bit as dangerous and possesses the exceptional speed which can turn a game around in a single play.

In the statistics column, Fraser is having a banner year with 1,093 yards rushing on 110 carries in nine games. He's also the Gladiator's top scorer with 13 touchdowns. Ridgeway has collected 517 yards on 101 carries and has tallied seven TD's.

Quarterbacking the Glads is Rusty Moore who has connected on 34 of 74 pass attempts for 491 yards.

There's no doubt that the Glads have the offense. But what about defense?

"We have a good defense," said Meese. "I think it's as good as any in the league. It's been greatly underestimated." estimated."

A look at the Glads' performance through the final six games of campaign bears out the truth in Meese's statement. Only one of those opponents (Central) managed to score more than one touchdown on Widefield's defense. Beginning with the Air Academy contest, Widefield has scored 129 points to its opponents' 33.

Widefield's linebacking corps, in particular, has been exceptional. Led by Derek Gutierrez and Ed Wetherbee, who lead the team in tackles with 86 and 78 respectively, Widefield has proven itself a tough team to run against.

On the defensive line, ends Tom Roxberry and Dave Eno and tackles Dave Dodd and Gary Kiger have been consistent all season. In the secondary, Ridgeway, Fraser and Kent Stirgus have successfully defended against the long pass and the breakaway run.

In Friday's game, the Glads are expecting Mitchell to attempt to exert its ball-control offense, and it will be up to the Glad defenders to deny the Marauders lengthy marches and time-consuming drives.

"Mitchell has an excellent offense to go with its top notch defense," said Meese. "They control the ball more than we do. They have a lot of offensive weapons. We haven't been a control -type team this season; however, we have been explosive. The contrasting styles of play should make it an interesting contest.

"I think it may be a game in which one mistake by either team could be the difference. It may be more of a defensive game than many people think.

"As far as our mental attitude is concerned, we're ready. We like to play in "big" games. The players won't have any trouble getting up for this one."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A federal judge laid down the law but the National Football League owners still appear to be playing by Commissioner Pete Rozelle's rules, as the latest judicial decision struck a blow for freedom for the out-of-work players of the World Football League.

"Professional sports and the public are better served by open, unfettered competition," U.S. District Judge Edward J. Devitt said Wednesday in St. Paul, Minn., in issuing a temporary injunction paving the way for WFL players to sign with the NFL.

Rozelle had issued an edict forbidding players from the defunct league from signing with NFL teams for the remainder of the current season but Devitt said Rozelle's ban was a "conspiracy" or "concerted boycott" against the WFL players "freedom of contract, adding that there was a "substantial showing they will suffer irreparable harm" if they are not allowed to compete for jobs in the NFL this season.

However, Rozelle said WFL players signing in his league must prove they are free of previous contractual obligations, and it appears that the NFL owners are looking to the commissioner for guidance before they begin stalking WFL talent.

For example, a spokesman for the Philadelphia Eagles said he couldn't comment on what his club intended to do about the available WFL players because he hasn't received any instructions from the league office, adding that before Rozelle's moratorium the Eagles were interested in several players from the other league.

In Denver, a Broncos spokesman said his club was looking for "further definitive action" to see what the status of the WFL players is. The spokesman said the Broncos would be interested in talking to Steve Foley, the former Tulane quarterback who was playing his rookie year with Jacksonville before the WFL folded last month.

Then there is the case of Dave Roller, who signed a contract with the Green Bay Packers two hours before Rozelle barred WFL players from joining NFL teams.

The Packers said they also were waiting further word from the NFL offices on whether the court decision would permit them to add Roller to their roster.

Roller, contacted at his home in Anaheim, Calif., where he has been since Rozelle stripped him of his Packers uniform, said he was tired of having to wait for Rozelle's rules.

"I've been told to low key everything and I'm sick of it," said Roller, the only WFL player to sign a NFL contract between the period of the WFL's death and Rozelle's edict. "It's going to bother me the rest of my life.

"Here a guy states arbitrarily that I can't work at my livelihood. It cost me three weeks of games and practices I could have proven myself. It seems un-American.

"Why they didn't let me play in Green Bay I'll never know," Roller said. "I never heard from the league office explaining why."

Rozelle, who testified Wednesday during the three-hour hearing, said, a rationale behind his edict was that he didn't want NFL teams "buying a championship" by purchasing quality players in the final weeks of the season.

Rozelle estimated that fewer than 20 WFL players would be signed by the NFL before midnight Nov. 26, the cutoff date assigned by the judge for signing the WFL players.

Rams Appear To Have Lock On Post Season Playoff Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — With Halloween behind us and Thanksgiving rapidly approaching, can Christmas and the National Football League playoffs be far behind?

The NFL playoffs Dec. 27-28 will pit the six division champions and two runners - up against each other to battle for the conference championships and, ultimately, Super Bowl X.

Only one team—the Los Angeles Rams—appears to have a lock on a berth at the midway point in the season while two others—the Minnesota Vikings and Oakland Raiders—are almost assured of a post-season berth.

But in the Eastern Division races in both the National and American Conferences and in the American Central, things couldn't be tighter.

The Washington Redskins, Dallas Cowboys and St. Louis Cardinals are tied atop the National Conference East race with identical 5-2 records. Two of the three should qualify with one team winning the division crown and the other moving into the playoffs as a wild card selection.

In the American Central, it's even tougher. The Pittsburgh Steelers, Houston Oilers and Cincinnati Bengals are each 6-1. And only one—the champion — might be playing after Christmas.

That's because in the AFC East, the Miami Dolphins are 6-1 and the Buffalo Bills are 1-2. One will win the division crown and the other could draw the wild card.

Los Angeles is making a runaway of the NFC West. The Rams, 6-1, have a huge lead over San Francisco, Atlanta and New Orleans and, in the final seven games, will play teams with a combined 18-31 record. Take away Pittsburgh and Detroit, the only two squads with winning records, and Los Angeles will meet clubs with a combined record of 8-27.

The NFC Central used to be known as the "Black and Blue Division," but has since taken in a definite purple hue of the Minnesota Vikings, the only unbeaten team in the NFL. Only Detroit, 4-3, can be considered a threat.

Oakland dominates the AFC West with the only winning record at 5-2. Only a collapse by the Raiders would give Denver and Kansas City, both 3-4, a chance.

Based on their respective schedules, Dallas appears to have the best shot at the NFC East title while Cincinnati has the edge in the AFC Central and Miami should be favored in the AFC East.

But that's only what it looks like on paper. And Thanksgiving and Christmas and the NFl playoffs are still a long way off.

Irish Icers Eye Tigers

By JOE NAVARRO
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Despite Notre Dame's two losses at the hands of Michigan State in its Western Collegiate Hockey Association (WCHA) opener, coach Charles "Lefty" Smith isn't discouraged.

"We lost 6-2 and 3-2 but our team's attitude is very good this week" said the eight year coach. "We outshot state quite well, 45-30 Friday, and 46-30 Saturday. We just had a problem getting the puck in the net."

Notre Dame will attempt to get on the winning side when it meets Colorado College in the Tigers' opening WCHA series at the Broadmoor World Arena at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

The Irish finished seventh last season with a 10-21-3 WCHA norm. Colorado College finished third with a 21-11 record.

"The WCHA is going to be a very balanced league," said Smith, "but it's just too early to tell how we'll do."

Smith has depth in most positions. Goaltending was a question mark last year but both Len Moher and John Peterson gained plenty of experience and are expected to do well in the nets.

The line of Brian Walsh, Clark Hamilton and Alex Pirus returns and should be stronger. Last season the trio accounted for 160 points. The defense should get quite a boost with the return of Jack Brownschidle, Paul Clarke and Roger Bourgue.

Smith's main concern is scoring and it's something the Irish will work on prior to meeting Colorado College.

"Colorado College is a fine hockey team," said Smith. "It is one of the team's to contend with in the WCHA. CC has a fine goaltender in Eddie Mio and good scoring from the first line of Mike Haedrick, Jim Kronschnabel and Jim Warner. They are sophomores and should do an even better job than last season. We'll need a good defense, but more importantly, scoring.

"As far as our lines against Colorado College, that's up in the air. We had a couple of injuries against Michigan State."

While Smith is concerned about Colorado College's strength, he's keeping an eye on other teams in the league that had a strong showing in last week's opening games.

"Michigan and Minnesota should be outstanding but Michigan State has several standout forwards," he said.

"With Duluth beating Denver last week, it has to be a team to be reckoned with. We know CC has a fine team, but Denver tied Colorado College (in a scrimmage, 6-6) so you have to assume Denver is a good club. But Duluth went to Denver and handled DU quite easily. Duluth also will be a good club.

"Michigan Tech lost quite a few players from last year's team but handed North Dakota a Friday night loss. Then North Dakota turned right around and beat Tech.

"If the first games were an indication of the WCHA, it looks as if it's going to be another typical tough WCHA race—and perhaps a bit tougher this year."

Minnesota, Duluth Meet In Top Tilts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota-Duluth's confident new coach and his young, but unawed team meets downstate rival Minnesota in the top Western Collegiate Hockey Association (WCHA) weekend series.

"We'll go down with the idea that we're on the ice to win games," said first-year UMD Coach Gus Hendrickson. "I've been surprised how quickly our new team adjusted to the faster style of college hockey, but all showed signs of a veteran squad last weekend."

In other WCHA games, Notre Dame visits Colorado College, Michigan Tech is at Denver, North Dakota travels to Michigan and Michigan State visits Wisconsin.

Big Eight Teams Coming on Strong

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kansas State looked over its shoulder at Nebraska, Missouri tried to forget Nebraska, Kansas wished Oklahoma would go away, Oklahoma State was looking forward to Colorado, Iowa State honed its heavy guns for Missouri, and Nebraska counted its blessings.

That was the picture from the Big Eight training camps Wednesday.

"They're coming on strong," Coach Ellis Rainsberger of the Wildcats carried on about the Cornhuskers. "They're getting better every week." He said injuries have cut his starters down to five reserves Saturday.

"This has been one of our better weeks of concentration," said Coach Al Onofrio of the Tigers who are trying to run off that 30-7 beating by the Huskers. Fullback John Blakeman will not make the trip to Iowa State because of a strained knee.

At Kansas, Coach Bud Moore has eight injured players, four of whom are going to Oklahoma more or less for the ride, and four others who are so badly banged up they're staying home. The Jayhawks haven't beaten the Sooners since 1964, and he doesn't want to remind them. "We'll just let the chips fall where they may," Moore said.

The Cowboys hustled through a routine two-hour practice in full pads for Colorado, and Coach Jim Stanley said the outcome would hinge on stopping the Buffs' running game and who has the best punting game.

Coach Earle Bruce was pleased with the Cyclones' practice for Missouri. "Excellent," he proclaimed. Bruce said he plans starting the same lineups that started against Colorado last week.

Spying Charge Is Dismissed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A North Carolina State University professor accused of spying for rival Maryland while jogging around a practice football field has won dismissal of criminal charges against him.

For Wednesday's dismissal, Dr. Robert Ramsay traded an apology and agreement not to sue the off-duty security officer who arrested him.

Ramsay was arrested last month after N.C. State Coach Lou Holtz, believing the math professor to be a spy from his next opponent, ordered him away from the track. Ramsay refused, was arrested and charged with resisting an officer.

Rams Emphasize Defensive Play

FORT COLLINS (AP) — Colorado State concentrated on defense Wednesday as it continued preparations for Saturday's Western Athletic Conference game with Texas-El Paso.

Coach Sark Arslanian said he is trying to school his defense in containing Miners' quarterback Bob McKinley.

"McKinley is one of the better quarterbacks that we will face this season. He is an exceptionally fine runner and can also pass well," Arslanian said.

McKinley is the third quarterback the Rams have faced this year who leads an option offense. "So far we have not been able to adequately stop an option quarterback. We are concentrating on trying to stop McKinley because he is the key to the UTEP Attack, Arslanian said.

CSU head into the game with a record of 5-3. The Rams are seeking their first winning season since 1966. UTEP is 1-6 for the season. The Miners have lost the last four games the two schools have played.

Tulane's Roller Coaster Team Ready for Air Force

By GORDON CRANDELL
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Tulane, like Air Force, is having a roller coaster season in recording a 4-4 record against some of the best collegiate football powers in the east and Southeast.

The Green Wave coached by Bennie Ellender, started the season with victories over Clemson 17-13 and Mississippi 14-3. Then they lost two straight to Syracuse 31-13 and Vanderbilt 6-3 before the wave struggled back for a pair of triumphs over Boston College 17-7 and West Virginia 16-14.

Tulane is in the down trend, dropping its last two outings. The Wave was blanked by Georgia Tech 23-0 two weeks ago and Kentucky 23-10 last Saturday.

Despite its 1-6-1 record, Air Force has had an up and down season. The Falcons have had superior, emotional contests against UCLA, Notre Dame and Army. In the 31-30 loss to the Irish Air Force lost a 30-10 lead in the fourth period, while the victory over Army snapped a 12-game winless streak.

Tulane, which lost veteran quarterback Terry Looney before the season began, has had to depend on the efforts of senior Buddy Gilbert. As a result, the Green Wave hasn't been a productive scoremaking machine.

The Wave has scored 90 points in eight games to Air Force's 119. Tulane has been blanked once and Air Force twice. Still, the Falcons have the edge in touchdowns 12-11 and field goals 12-7.

"Gilbert is a passing type quarterback," said Air Force scout Dick Brown. "He has a good backfield, but they haven't been able to generate any offense this season. When they have moved the ball they have gained victory.

"Tulane hasn't scored over two touchdowns in any one game. Their defense has been the key to keeping them in most games.

Gilbert has the best total offense statistics for Tulane with 1,181 yards, a 147.6 per game average. He has passed for 1,253 yards in completing 81 of 188 attempts. He has had 13 intercepted.

The Tulane offense has had trouble with turnovers in recent games. Against Kentucky, the Wave fumbled six times and lost the ball six times.

"Tulane plays a conservative style of football," said Brown. "They have a solid kicking game with a good punter and a field goal kicker. Their defense, however, has to be their biggest asset.

"Their middle guard Mark Olivari is a dandy. He does their field goal kicking too. He is their leading tackler and has been a standout for the last two weekends. Jim Gueno is another tough player for the Wave at linebacker. These two compliment the Tulane defense.

Gueno leads the club in tackles with 107 followed by Alexander with 91 and Griffin with 61.

Saturday's game in New Orleans will be played in the Superdome at 6:30 p.m. (MST).

It will be the first appearance for the Falcons in New Orleans since the 1971 Sugar Bowl when Air Force lost to Tennessee 34-14.

Air Force holds a 2-1 edge in the series with Tulane, winning 13-10 in New Orleans in 1967 and 24-3 at Falcon Stadium in 1970. Tulane won 10-3 last year at Falcon Stadium on a snowy, cold day.

Mitchell Defense Rigs for Widefield Attack

By JACK MAGRUDER
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Mitchell's renowned, defensive corps, boasting the second best points-against average in the state's AAA ranks, faces its stiffest challenge of the season Friday when the Marauders visit Widefield in the South Central League playoff game.

The Marauders (8-1), who have given up only 46 points in their nine regular-season games to date, bring an impressive 5.1 points against average into the divisional playoff.

Widefield (7-2), on the other hand, has tallied 172 points in its regular season games, good for a 19.1 per game pace. Throw out the Glads' first game blanking by South, and they're averaging 21.5 points per outing.

The two teams, which each fashioned 5-0 marks in winning the championships of the Frontier and Century Divisions, meet on the Gladiator gridiron at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The winner of Friday's SCL clash will travel north next Saturday to take on the champion of the Northern League in the state AAA playoff quarterfinals.

Rocky Mountain (7-1-1) hosts Longmont (6-3) Saturday at 1:30 p.m. for the Northern title.

Mitchell's 5-2 defense has thus far repelled most enemy scoring threats, fashioning five shutouts and only twice giving up more than one touchdown in a game.

The Marauders molded a 20-plus quarter shutout streak earlier in the season and ended Frontier play last week with a 14-0 blanking of East. South's 20 points was the highest one-game total scored by an opponent.

But the Marauder stop-em squad is faced with a speedy, versatile Glad offense this week.

Widefield head coach John Meese has installed the Houston Veer attack, and that formation has caused nothing but trouble for Glad opponents.

Awesome Ken Fraser, with 13 touchdowns in 1975, leads the Widefield attack from his halfback post. The 5-9, 165-pounder broke a 97-yard scoring run from scrimmage against Central last week and is also a threat on punt and kickoff returns.

Jim Hartman, an 11-year veteran at the Marauder helm, knows all about Frazer and the Veer attack. In fact, he even went to school to learn from the Veer's originator, Houston coach Yeoman.

"I spent two weeks with Bill Yeoman two years ago when he was over at Western State," remarked Hartman, "and I think I understand the Veer pretty well.

"But it's not that simple to stop it. When you attack a triple-option team, whether it runs out of the Veer, the Wishbone or the I, you have to plan your defense on the theory of who you want with the football.

"But if you run into a situation where all three of the backs are good, that's when you run into problems."

Widefield's quarterback is Rusty Moore while Howard Ridgeway, the other halfback, rounds out the three-pronged attack.

"We feel that they have more than just Ken Fraser," continued Hartman. "If we put all our eggs in one basket and try to stop only him, those other fellows will hurt us.

"We will make some defensive adjustments, not because of their personnel, but because of their triple-option attack."

The defensive linemen, Don Connelly, Bob Bretz, Brett Hess, Tim Jardine and Brad Ward, will attempt to stop the Glads at the line of scrimmage while Darwin Kiselich, Chip Barthlow and Terry Mays (when the Fliers switch to a 5-3) will plug the gaps from the linebacker positions.

Mitchell's offense will try to do its thing against a 6-2 Glad front. While not boasting the prolific threat of a Fraser, the Marauder point-producers do have a capable, error-free attack.

Quarterback Tom Hinkle engineers the I-formation attack. Hinkle, who has thrown only two interceptions all year, has a pair of outstanding receivers in split end Toby Tabola and tight end Mark O'Connell.

Hinkle had his best game against South, which also played a run-oriented 6-2 defense, when he threw for 158 yards and two touchdowns.

While perhaps less-heralded than its opponents' point-production unit, the Marauders have averaged 24.6 points per game.

Hartman is wary of the Widefield defense. "A team doesn't win seven games on offense alone," he stated. "Their defense is pretty darn sound. They've got good speed in the secondary and this linebacker Gutierrez (Derek, a 165-pound senior) is tougher than a boot."

But the Marauder boss' last words were on the Glad offense. "Every time they come up to the line of scrimmage, I'm going to turn away and look at my cheerleaders and then just listen for which side of the crowd is cheering.

"One thing we have in our favor if they stop our running game," continued Hartman, "is that we have the capability of putting the ball in the air.

"They've got some concerns going into the game and so do we. It should be a good game."

Palmer, Mitchell in District Volleyball Playoff Contests

By JACK MAGRUDER
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Palmer and Mitchell venture into the unknown this weekend when the two representatives of the South Central League square off against a pair of Southwestern League foes in the district volleyball playoffs.

Palmer, which won the SCL volleyball title in a special league playoff match 10 days ago against Widefield, hosts the Southwestern League's runner-up, Durango, Saturday at 1 p.m. in the Terrors' girls' gym.

Joan Devine's Terrors and Sharon Peterson's Gladiators finished tied for the top spot in the SCL with 10-1 regular season records, but Palmer took the playoff with a 16-14, 15-3 straight set victory.

Mitchell, which joined Widefield, Wasson and Coronado in a sub-district meet last weekend to determine the second league representative, also stopped the Glads in straight sets to earn the other district berth.

Kathy Glassman's Marauders travel to Cortez to take on the Western Slope's top outfit. The clubs meet at 1:30 p.m. Friday.

The winners of those two district playoffs will join six other district winners in the first state volleyball tournament Nov. 14-15 at Highland High School in Thornton.

Neither Marauder coach Glassman nor Terror coach Devine are too familiar with their Southwestern League opponents, thus, the two enter the district playoffs with a bit of apprehension.

"I haven't talked to anyone who knows anything about the volleyball in that area," said Mrs. Glassman. "We'll walk into it cold, but then so will they."

"No one seems to know anything about Durango," reiterated Mrs. Devine. "And it's hard to prepare your kids for that."

Both coaches agreed that they were just going to concentrate on playing their style of volleyball and not worry about the unknowns.

"The only way to beat them is to play our game," continued Mrs. Devine. "I know if we play our game nobody can touch us."

Palmer plays a 4-2 offense — four hitters and two setters — and boasts one of the top hitter-defenders in the area in Senior Sharon Doyle. Juniors Judy Sondermann and Mickey Moss and senior Kris Goetze are the other starting hitters.

Junior Patty Koppy and senior Suzy Towner are the starting setters. Loretta Taylor, Sonja Johnson, Lucy Woodruff and Debbie Salley are Palmer's main reserves.

Mrs. Glassman echoed Mrs. Devine's words. "I feel we can beat them," she stated, "but we don't know what's out there so we're really working hard this week in practice.

"If we play our game, we'll do all right. But if we start playing what I call bump ball—just hitting the ball over without setting it up—things could change."

Seniors Nancy Cole, Kathy Gould and Gabi Franzese and junior Lori Hendrickson round out the starting lineup, Juniors Terri Craft and Sheryl Schmitt and sophomore Cindy Campbell are the top reserves.

Salida Challenges Rams

By LARRY FERGUSON
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Defending class AA champion Salida, unbeaten in 22 consecutive games and ranked No. 1 in the state, begins its quest for another state championship Saturday when the Spartans play host to Denver Metropolitan League runner-up Sheridan in a 1:30 p.m. game at Salida.

At the same time, Manitou Springs, the Pikes Peak League's runner-up, will take on Metro League champion Denver Christian on the Crusaders' gridiron.

Salida, 9-0, enters Saturday's playoff game with memories from four years ago when the Spartans dropped a 15-14 decision in the quarterfinals to Sheridan, which went on to win the state title that year.

If the Rams are going to repeat the feat this year, it will take a tremendous effort by both the offensive and defensive units. Salida is the state's most prolific scoring team, averaging 51 points per game, and also boasts one of the stingiest defensive units.

"This time, we're going to try to be a little more ready for Sheridan," promised Salida head coach Joe Hergert. "I'd hate to lose to the same team the same way again."

In nine contests this season, no opponent has seriously challenged the Spartans. Spearheaded by fullback Rick Gipson, the Salida offense has rolled unchecked.

At the quarterback spot, Frank DeLeo gives the Spartans a potent passing attack and his favorite receivers, end Joe Davis and wingback Joe Hergert, are two of the best in the state.

As a means of warming up for this Saturday's contest, the Spartan offense rolled to a 76-0 victory over Lake County in Salida's final PPL contest last week.

While Salida is a heavy favorite to sweep aside all its opposition in the playoffs, the PPL's other entry, Manitou Springs, enters the competition in an underdog role. The Mustangs, 8-1, also breezed through the league schedule but dropped a 49-0 decision to Salida in the conference's championship game.

The loss was a hard one for coach George Rykovich's team, but the Mustangs rebounded the following week to convincingly knock off Lewis-Palmer 21-0 in their final league game.

"Losing to Salida was a hard lump to swallow," said Rykovich, "but we've gotten past it. We hope it's made us a better team. The team did very well against Lewis-Palmer and displayed a lot of hard hitting.

"As far as the game with Denver Christian is concerned, we'll be using the same tactics that have worked well for us this season. Christian appears to be primarily a passing team, although they have a good running game too.

"We'll have to defense their quarterback Ray Vander Wald who is one of the better passers we'll see this year. Christian's defense is tough, too, giving up only one touchdown per game."

The Mustangs' probable starting lineup remains unchanged from recent games, with the exception of the loss of lineman Steve Louden, who suffered a shoulder injury last week.

Starting at quarterback will be Deron Brown, the Mustangs' No. 1 signal-caller this season who was hampered with a hip injury during the last two regular season games. Alvin Moore will get the starting nod at fullback while Bob Clothier will be at halfback and Mark Rico at wingback.

On the offensive line will be ends Mike DeVere and Mike Beard, tackles Stewart Hellum and Sterling Penman, guards Jay Gospill and Frank Crabbs, and center Kim Hulsey.

Defensively, Kirk Gomez, Bob Martin, Brad Ward and Tippy Clark are slated to see action along with two-way players from the offensive unit.

Canon City, Lamar Eye Championship

Canon City and Lamar, the two hottest teams in the Southern League, lay it all on the line Friday in the showdown for the league championship and state playoff berth.

Canon City, which opened its Southern League season by absorbing a 28-20 setback at the hands of Cheyenne Mountain, has since been unstoppable in its quest for top honors.

Lee Hitchcock's Tigers have put together five straight wins to remain in the thick of the title chase. The club picked up a particularly impressive victory two weeks ago when it stopped La Junta 28-15 to knock that club out of the race.

Lamar, on the other hand, has gone the Canon City crew one better.

Bob Davis' Savages have not been defeated in league play. Their closest margin of victory was six points, a 27-21 squeaker over Cheyenne Mountain two weeks ago.

In fact, the Savages have yet to taste defeat on the 1975 campaign. They defeated Las Animas and Liberal, (Kan.) in the pre-season while tying Grand Junction Central.

In other Southern League action on the final Friday, Cheyenne Mountain (4-2) travels to Alamosa (3-3), Fountain (2-4) journeys to La Junta (4-2) and Pueblo County (0-6) hosts Trinidad (0-6).

All games are slated for 8 p.m. kickoffs.

Bloom gives the Tigers strong punch through the middle of the line while Gilliland has fine speed to the outside. Quarterback Tom Gangel engineers the Canon City I-formation attack.

Hitchcock's troops are the top point-scoring team in the loop, coming into the final weekend averaging 28.2 point per game.

Lamar also has a strong rushing offense, led by quarterback Ronnie Peterson. Peterson, a sophomore, stepped in midway through the season and has exploded for several long gainers from the Savages' I attack.

Fullback Tony Hubbard is a battering ram up the middle while Arnie Reyher, the former quarterback, adds speed to the backfield from his tailback post.

Lamar also owns the best defensive statistics in the league, having allowed only 58 points in its six conference games, an average of less than 10 points per game.

The Savages have given up more than seven points in only two games thus far.

Roger Craig Named Padre Pitching Coach

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Roger Craig, pitching coach of the Houston Astros for two years, is returning to the same job with the San Diego Padres.

Craig signed earlier for a third season at Houston but the Astros' new manager, Bill Virdon, agreed to let him talk to San Diego.

Craig's home in Alpine, Calif., in the mountains east of San Diego, has been rented to Padres' Manager John McNamara and McNamara said in making the announcement Tuesday: "My only reluctance in hiring Roger was wondering where I was going to live next summer."

THE COLLEGES

William & Mary, divided over National Women's Strike Day earlier in the week, rolled to a 24-7 defeat to Virginia Tech Saturday to remain on top of The Bottom Ten charts for the fifth straight week.

Elsewhere, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger was fired following losses by Army (2-6) and Navy (5-3).

Cal's players, who had vowed to win the rest of their games in tribute to retiring USC coach John McKay, whipped the Trojans, 28-14.

And Washington, though a 17-14 winner over UCLA, moved up to Number 18 on the strength of Bruins coach Dick Vermeil's comment that "we should have beaten them (Washington) by four touchdowns."

THE RATINGS

THE PROS

Cleveland maintained its one - touchdown - per - game average. Chicago tried using 11 players on defense, and Dallas alternated the shotgun and the Saturday Night Special formations on offense.

But all were losers. The red-faced Browns, now 0-7 and ranked first in The Bottom Ten, denied rumors that next year they will return to the All-America Conference, which folded in 1949.

The less - than - super Chargers, also winless, fell to Number Two after a semi-respectable 35-24 loss to the Giants.

Small Schools Make Mark in Big Time

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

By The Associated Press

Louisiana Tech, Arkansas State and Central Michigan may not be getting much recognition from the polls in their first year as major college football teams, but the three former small school stalwarts are showing that at least statistically they belong in the big time.

In the weekly offensive team statistics released Tuesday by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, Louisiana Tech ranks fifth in passing, while Arkansas State and Central Michigan were ninth and 10th, respectively, in rushing offense.

Tech's Bulldogs are averaging 211.9 yards per game through the air. San Diego State, the leader in this category, has a 295.1-yard per game average, followed by Toledo, New Mexico and Stanford.

Arkansas State, meanwhile, has a two-yard per game advantage on Central Michigan on the ground. Arkansas State has averaged 310.9 yards, Central Michigan 308.9. The No. 1 rushing team is Georgia Tech at 376.4 yards, followed by Michigan, Arkansas and Ohio State.

The total offense leadership belongs again this week to California, a 28-14 upset victor over previously unbeaten Southern California last Saturday.

Local Gals Eye Swim Titles

A large contingent of local girl swimmers, including 10 members of the city champion Palmer team, will compete in the state championship meet Saturday at Colorado State University in Fort Collins

Preliminary diving competition will begin at 9 a.m. and other events will start at 1 p.m. at the university's main swimming pool.

Among the strongest local competitors are Palmer's Kathy Cotton, Kim Watson, Cama Jo Coupens and Margie Auer who comprise the Terrors' 400 freestyle relay team. At last week's Girls City-Suburban Swim Meet, they established a city record of 4:02.378.

"We're hoping for an under-four-minutes time Saturday," said Palmer coach Marno Milne. "Based on the times I've seen this season, I'd say the relay team has an excellent chance of finishing first at state."

In the 50 freestyle and 100 butterfly, one of the top competitors will be Miss Cotton who notched first in the freestyle and second in the butterfly last week. Miss Auer, a freestyler, is entered in the 200 and 500 events while Miss Watson has placed high this season in the 100 freestyle and Miss Coupens in the 50 freestyle.

Other Palmer entries include Suzy Cotton in the 200 freestyle and backstroke, and the medley relay team of Suzy Cotton, Sheri Kevari, Nancy Simmons and Patsy St. John.

Another top competitor who will be going after a state title Saturday is Jenny Caine of Lewis-Palmer who set two meet records last week with a 2:22.794 in the 200 freestyle and a 5:29.850 in the 500 freestyle. Joining her will be her sister, Ginny, a top performer in the 100 and 200 freestyle events.

Wasson's Joe Brousseau is the area's top entry in the diving competition, having won the city title with 364.30 points. Joining her will be teammate Julie West, who copped top honors in the 100 breaststroke with a 1:14.420 clocking.

Andrea Stock and Julie Smith, also from Wasson, will be competing in the backstroke and breaststroke respectively. In the city meet they turned in back-to-back victories in the events to help lift Wasson to a second place finish.

Doherty's Stacy Budner, a competitor in the 100 butterfly, will be the Spartans' top entry in the state meet. She won the city title with a 1:05.306 time.

Carla Ward and Karen Anderson from Coronado will give the local delegation plenty of talent in four events. Miss Ward, one of the areas' top freestylists, will compete in the 200 and 500 events while Miss Anderson is entered in the 200 individual medley and the breaststroke.

Harrison's Kathy Huber, the city's 100 freestyle champion, set a meet record in that event with a :57.913 and is expected to be among the top finishers Saturday.

Mitchell's Bonnie Bretz should be a strong competitor in the breaststroke while Widefield's Claudia Watkins is entered in the butterfly.

Air Academy's 200 medley relay team, the best in the city with a 2:03.531 time, is comprised of Sha. Newton, Donna Sherman, Kelly Johnson and Diane Courtaney. The team members will also compete in other events with Miss Courtaney entered in the 50 and 100 freestyle, Miss Johnson in 100 freestyle and 100 butterfly, and Miss Newton in the backstroke.

Cil Schutz, Air Academy's diving entry, placed second in the city meet last week and will be going after state honors Saturday. Academy's freestyle relay team will also be entered.

Bob Prince Waves Farewell To Pittsburgh Pirates Fans

PITTSBURGH (AP) — He waved his foot-long, rubber "Green Weenie" like a scepter. It was a royal farewell parade for Bob Prince, fired baseball broadcaster for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Perched atop a fire truck, Prince got a hearty and perhaps final hurrah from sun-splashed thousands who lined downtown streets at lunchtime. Some estimated the crowd at better than 10,000.

The "Green Weenie" was a hexing device Prince came up with a decade ago. The one he used in the parade was adorned with a "Babushka Power" scarf, his gimmick from last season.

A high school band led the way, and Prince was flanked on the truck by his fired partner, Nellie King, a half dozen Pirates and some politicians.

"Bob's a landmark. It's like the U.S. Steel Building falling down,' said Pirate captain Willie Stargell, who stood at the rear of the fire truck.

The firings of Prince and King were announced last week in a joint statement by the Pirates and KDKA, a "Group W" station. There has been no indication of a reversal.

"Group W has no Prince-ables," said one banner toted behind Prince, the baseball broacaster here for 28 seasons.

The parade was set up by one of KDKA's rival stations, which circulated bumper stickers reading "Weep for Prince." The rival station denies it's taking advantage of Prince and King.

The parade ended at Point Park, where the crowd of several thousand crammed along the Allegheny River shoreline as Prince, King and others spoke from a flat-bed truck.

As Prince repeated his claim that the man who fired him was Edward Wallis, a Westinghouse Broadcasting executive, he was interrupted by a long, loud blast from the horn of a passing coal barge tugboat.

The crowd booed at the mention of Wallis, who steadfastly contends the firing was a group decision.

"I sincerely don't think there's a chance of a snowball in hell for me to be rehired," said Prince.

"No, no, no,' shouted the crowd.

"But let me say," Prince added, "that I thank you all from the bottom of my heart, and I pray that my dear friend Nellie King will not suffer because of what they feel about me. Let go, but bring back Nellie King."

"This demonstration here today proves to me the love of the people of Pittsburgh," King said.

"It's been a crushing week for me, my wife and for my three daughters, but you are a tremendous comfort . . . The greatest wealth this city has is the people of Pittsburgh . . . this is the Pirate family."

PBA Schedules Rich Tourney at Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The Professional Bowlers Association has announced the scheduling of an $80,000 tournament at Toledo's Imperial Lanes, April 6-10, one of 16 on the PBA winter tour.

Imperial Lanes has held a PBA even each year since 1966. The first tournament had a total of $38,000 in prize money.

Defending Toledo champion Louie Moore of Columbus, Ohio, will be back, along with such established PBA stars as Earl Anthony, Dick Weber, Carmen Salvino, Don Johnson, Ed Ressler and Jim Stefanich.

HONORING THE PRINCE — Recently fired baseball broadcaster Bob Prince greets a crowd of thousands in downtown Pittsburgh Wednesday in a parade organized by supporters who want Prince and fellow broadcaster Nellie King re-instated. Nebraska Still Dominates Big Eight Grid Statistics

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nebraska, seemingly getting better every week, still dominates Big Eight Conference football statistics, leading in four major departments.

The unbeaten and untied Cornhuskers are out front in scoring offense and three defensive categories — rushing, total defense and scoring defense.

Nebraska has averaged 34.9 279 points in eight tests. Oklahoma, also unbeaten and untied, is right behind with a 33-point game average and Colorado third with 29.5.

On defense, the Huskers have held their opponents to 1,003 yards in rushing on 334 attempts for a game average of 125.4 yards. Behind Nebraska are Oklahoma with a 135.4-yard game average and Kansas with 169.9.

Nebraska has yielded only 1,836 yards on 497 plays in the total defense department and has a game average of 229.5 yards.

The same three teams are the only Big Eight clubs which have held their opponents to less than 100 points. Nebraska has given up 85 or an average of 10.6 points a game, Oklahoma 88 for 11.0 and Kansas 96 for 12.0.

Four different teams lead the other four categories. Oklahoma is tops in rushing, gaining 2,462 yards on 527 plays for a game average of 307.7 yards. Kansas, in second place, has a 305.6-yard game rushing average and Colorado, in third, 297.0.

Missouri is far ahead in passing offense, the Tigers having connected on 95 of 178 passes for 1,425 yards and 178.1 yards a game. Trailing the Bengals are Nebraska, with a game average of 151.6 yards through the air, and Colorado, 118.2.

Colorado is out front in total offense. The Buffs have made 3,322 yards on 634 plays and are averaging 415.2 yards a game. Nebraska has averaged 410.2 yards and Missouri 364.4.

Iowa State is the leader in pass defense. The Cyclones have allowed only 46 completions on 113 throws for 605 yards or an average of 75.6 yards a game. Kansas is second with a 94.6-yard game average and Missouri third with 99.0.

Killanin Denies Olympic Crisis

LONDON (AP) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, said today he knows nothing of any new crisis facing the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

According to my latest information, everything in Montreal is going according to plan," Killanin said.

A Quebec government committee met with the organizing committee of the Games in Montreal last Monday. According to Montreal press reports, the government delegates said it will be almost impossible for the Olympic Stadium to be finished in time and urged that plans be made for alternative sites for the track and field and swimming.

Jean Drapeau, mayor of Montreal, sends a weekly report to Killanin. The president also is in regular touch with Jim Worall, Canadian member of the IOC executive board, who is on the Montreal Organizing Committee.

"No doubt the mayor's next report will include this week's meeting with the Quebec Government Committee," Killanin said.

"I have spoken to Jim Worrall on the phone and he tells me there are no panic stations."

Killanin was last in Montreal in early October and said then he was satisfied with progress.

Since then strikes by construction workers held up the building of the stadium for one week. IOC leaders do not consider this was enough to affect the building schedule seriously.

There never have been any formal talks between the Montreal Organizing Committee and the IOC about alternative sites if the main stadium is not ready. Drapeau has insisted all along that the building will be finished on time.

"The Olympic Games are held on the ground, not in the air," he said today.

Four Yanks Still Alive In Tourney

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Arthur Ashe and Jimmy Connors were among the four U.S. survivors to advance to today's third round of the $100,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Tournament in play marked by no significant upsets.

Another six Americans including ninth-seeded Eddie Dibbs and 13th-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis were ousted from the singles tournament.

Top-seeded Ashe subdued countryman Trey Waltke of St. Louis 6-2, 6-4, while second-seeded Connors whipped unseeded Uli Pinner of West Germany 6-3, 6-2 before a sellout crowd of 4,000.

Home favorite Bjorn Borg, seeded fourth, overcame Roger Taylor of Great Britain 6-0, 6-4. Borg will play Eric van Dillen, who ousted Gerulaitis in straight sets 6-3, 6-4, in the third round.

Crowd-pleaser Ilie Nastase of Romania, who will train the Swedes before the Davis Cup final against Czechoslovakia Dec. 19-21, ousted Sweden's Davis Cup hero, Birger Andersson, 6-2, 6-2 and said afterward he would'nt include Andersson in the Davis Cup team if he was the captain.

Colorado Tackle Undergoes Surgery

BOULDER (AP) — University of Colorado offensive tackle Mark Koncar underwent surgery Wednesday for a broken hand and will miss Saturday's Big Eight football game here against Oklahoma State, Coach Bill Mallory said.

Koncar, a 6-foot-5, 273-pound senior who is a mainstay in the Buffaloes' offensive line, will have a pin placed in the main bone of the injured hand. Mallory said he hopes Koncar will return to action the following week.

Frustrated UTEP Tests CSU Rams

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stymied by its inability to score, Texas-El Paso takes out its frustrations Saturday night on Colorado State, a team that has thrived on its defensive play this season.

The Western Athletic Conference contest in El Paso represents one of the final chances the Miners have to escape the league cellar. UTEP is saddled with a 1-7 over-all record and 0-4 WAC mark.

CSU, tied for second in the WAC at 3-1, brings a 5-3 season log into the game. The Rams have lost all three games by decisive margins—46-0 to Texas, 33-3 to Arizona State and 28-7 to Tennessee—but have played other opponents tough.

In the only other WAC game of the weekend, Wyoming travels to unbeaten Arizona State. In non-league contests, Arizona is at San Diego State, New Mexico journeys to San Jose State, Brigham Young is at Utah State, and Utah treks to Tennessee.

UTEP's game with New Mexico last week was typical. Although the Miners gained 352 total yards, their only score came on a Miguel Alvarez field goal.

A meager passing attack that has averaged just 78 yards a game is one of the problems. "It's a combination of Bobby McKinley not throwing well, and our receivers dropping passes," explains Coach Gil Bartosh. "I think if our passing attack had been on schedule, we'd have won a few more games."

McKinley has completed just 33 per cent of his passes and has been intercepted 15 times.

It's as a runner that McKinley poses his biggest threat to CSU, Ram Coach Sark Arslanian feels.

"We had trouble containing Tennessee's quarterback Randy Wallace, and McKinley presents us with the same type of problems," says Arslanian. "He's an excellent running quarterback."

The Ram defense, led by linebacker Kevin McLain, has been a strong point and is ranked No. 2 in the WAC.

Since early in the season, ASU Coach Frank Kush has insisted that "we can't keep expecting our defense to bail us out week after week." But week after week the Sun Devil defense has done just that. In last Saturday's 40-14 triumph over Utah, the ASU defense came up with a WAC record nine interceptions.

That defense still hasn't surrendered a touchdown rushing this season, which presents a major obstacle for the run-oriented Wyoming fullback Lawrence Gaines, who is averaging 5.9 yards per carry, is one of the main Cowboy offensive weapons.

Brigham Young, 3-4, begins its quest of the Beehive Boot against in-state rival Utah State, 4-4. Pat Degnan will try for more passing accuracy when 1-7 Utah goes up against heavily favored Tennessee, 4-3.

Marsh 2-Up On Field In Australia

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Expatriate Australian Graham Marsh shot a three-under-par 68 today and took a two-stroke first-round lead in an Australian golf tournament.

Tied for second at 70 were fellow Australians Allan Cooper, David Good, Bill Bunk and Barry Burgess.

At even par 71 were Rod Funseth of the United States and Australians Kel Nagle, Mike Cahill and George Serhan.

Marsh had six birdies but three bogeys. One birdie came when he holed his bunker shot on the par-3 seventh hole.

Cooper had five birdies and three bogeys. He shot a four-under-par 32 on the back nine, on which he needed only 11 putts.

Marsh is playing his first tournament in Australia since 1973. He has refused to play in many Australian tournaments because promoters have paid appearance money instead of increasing prize money.

The name of the tournament is the Chrysler Classic.

Maravich Playing His Kind of Jazz; New Orleans Rocks to Pistol Shots

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

All that great New Orleans Jazz these days is not being played on Bourbon Street or in Preservation Hall.

With a National Basketball Association record crowd of 26,511 cheering them on, the Pete Maravich-led Jazz won their sixth straight game by nipping the Los Angeles Lakers 113-110 Wednesday.

"The crowd was just fantastic and I had a feeling that our team wanted to play well for this one," said Jazz Coach Bill van Breda Kolff. "But we didn't play as well as we can."

In other NBA games Wednesday night, Boston defeated Buffalo 105-95, Detroit toppled Seattle 124-107 and Philadelphia crushed Chicago 115-82.

With Maravich pouring in 30 points, New Orleans ran its record to 6-1, best in the NBA. The Jazz controlled the backboards behind Otto Moore, and Moore teamed with Mel Counts to hold Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to just 11 field goals in 28 attempts.

"Otto Moore has been playing great and I thought he played as well as he can tonight and that's all you can ask," van Breda Kolff said.

Lakers Coach Bill Sharman said four quick fouls called on Abdul-Jabbar slowed down the 7-foot-4 center, who wound up 25 points and 24 rebounds. Lucius Allen paced the Lakers with 28 points.

"I don't think the crowd had any effect on us, but it sure did jazz New Orleans up," Sharman said. "The Jazz are going to be tough. They are getting familiar with each other and they are going to have one strong ball club.

"You have to give a lot of credit to van Breda Kolff and Elgin Baylor for their coaching job," Sharman said.

Paul Silas scored 13 points in the third period, including 10 straight to end the quarter, as Boston downed Buffalo.

"They tried to gamble his man on other people," Celtics Coach Tom Heinsohn said of Silas. "So we just kept giving him the ball."

Jo Jo White finished with 22 points for Boston while Cowens added 21, Charlie Scott 16, Silas 15. Bob McAdoo, the league's leading scorer, paced Buffalo with 25 before fouling out in the final period.

Al Eberhard gave Detroit the lead at 96-95, then Bob Lanier and Howard Porter went to work, sparking a fourth-period rally that enabled the Pistons to whip Seattle. Lanier and Eberhard finished with 22 points apiece while John Mengelt added 21. Kevin Porter handed out 16 assists.

Slick Watts paced Seattle with 25 points.

A balanced scoring attack, paced by Coniel Norman's 20 points, and a tight defense gave Philadelphia an easy victory over Chicago. The Bulls led at the end of the first period, but Doug Collins scored 20 seconds into the second period and the 76ers were off and running. Billy Cunningham finished with 19 points and Collins 16. Chicago's Rowland Garrett took game scoring honors with 23 points.

Crenshaw Texas State Golf Leader

MARBLE FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Ben Crenshaw hopes the magic doesn't go away.

The former University of Texas All-American known as "Gentle Ben" on the professional tour has fired successive 67s for a 134 total to open a three-stroke over Homero Blancas and Don Massengale going into today's third round of the $25,000 Texas State Open

"I would just like to have two more rounds like these first two," said Crenshaw, who dropped birdie putts of 8, 3, 12, 9, 10 and 18 feet.

His only bogey over the par 72 Horseshoe Bay Country Club Course Wednesday came when he drove into the rough on the 10th hole

Blancas, only a stroke away at the start of the day, shot a 69 and Massengale fired a five-under par 76 for 137 totals.

Blancas began the second round with consecutive bogeys but had birdies on three of the next four holes. Massengale, who still has not had a bogey, birdied five holes and missed the green on only the 18th hole, where he chipped up for his par.

Five golfers were bunched at 140, six strokes off the pace. Among those in the group were Miller Barber, who fashioned a 69 to go with his opening round of 71.

Among those failing to make the cut for the final 36 holes was defending champion Jackie Burke Jr., who shot 154, four strokes over the cutoff. Some 66 players survived the cut for the final two rounds of the tournament.

WAC Teams In Statistics

The WAC has four teams ranked among the top 10 in the passing category, led by New Mexico. The Lobos are third nationally, with 216 yards per game through the air

New Mexico's Steve Myer holds down the No. 3 spot in individual passing with 16 completions per game and 1,696 yards. He is second in touchdown passes with 13.

Bob Berg of New Mexico and Lee Pistor of Arizona are third and fourth in field goals with 14 and 12, respectively.

Grambling Boss Wants Club in Bowl

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Grambling football Coach Eddie Robinson says he's got just what the major post-season bowl games need—fans to fill their stadiums.

"We can bring the people into a stadium and we've proved it," Robinson said at a news conference here to promote the Nov. 15 Whitney M. Young Jr. Memorial game between the Louisiana football power and Norfolk State. The game will be played at 60,000-seat Shea Stadium.

Robinson, who has led the Grambling Tigers to 244 victories, only five behind Bear Bryant of Alabama, the leader among active college coaches, said his team's success at the gate and on the field should qualify the black college for a major bowl bid.

"Grambling had the distinction of playing the first college game in the Superdome (in New Orleans) with Alcorn State as an opponent," Robinson said. "The contest attracted 61,571 spectators.

"We'll play Southern on Nov. 29 in the Superdome and already 62,000 tickets have been sold. And I know we'll get to the full 80,000-plus before game time," he said. "Last year the two schools drew the biggest crowd ever for a black college game—76,753 paid.

"This should qualify us for a major bowl bid. We would like to state publicly that Grambling is available for the Astro-Bluebonnet, Liberty, Peach, Sun, Fiesta, Gator or Sugar Bowls."

In five Whitney Young Classics at Shea and Yankee Stadium, Grambling has played before more than 300,000 fans, an average of 60,000 a game.

"We think these figures are significant," Robinson said.

Ranked fourth in The Associated Press' college division poll, Grambling has posted a 7-1 record this season, with two major schools—Hawaii and Oregon State—among their victims.

"Football is show business and it's a matter of dollars and cents," said Robinson. "Some of the bowls haven't been drawing that well the past few years and we think we can help then increase attendance."

This season the traveling Tigers have played in the Superdome; the Houston Astrodome; Washington's RFK Stadium; Honolulu; Portland, Ore.; Nashville, Tenn.; and Jackson, Miss., besides three games at their 18,000-seat home stadium.

Grambling is unable to compete in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's college division playoffs which begin the same day of the Grambling-Southern game.

St. Mary's Meets Christian

St. Mary's will host Denver Christian Friday at 7 p.m. with the hopes of landing a berth in the state volleyball tournament.

St. Mary's, 8-3 overall, split the Pikes Peak League championship with Lewis - Palmer while Denver Christian was runnerup in the Metropolitan League.

Issel Sparks Denver Victory

DENVER (AP) — Dan Issel scored 33 points and Bobby Jones contributed a brilliant floor game, sparking the Denver Nuggets to a 111-98 American Basketball Association victory over St. Louis Wednesday night.

The victory, coupled with Indiana's loss to New York, moved Denver into a first-place tie with the Pacers in the Western Division. Denver, 4-2, broke a two-game losing streak with the triumph.

The Spirits slipped to 5-3 with the loss, breaking their five-game winning streak.

Issel, getting 13 of his points in the fourth quarter as the Nuggets withstood a momentary St. Louis rally, paced the offensive show for the Nuggets, who hit 50 per cent from the floor.

Jones pulled down a game-high 18 rebounds and added nine assists and seven blocked shots.

The Nuggets jumped out to an early 6-0 lead and never trained in the contest, holding leads as much as 14 points.

St. Louis' Marvin Barnes scored 30 points and had 10 rebounds.

Knight Hampered; Nets Beat Pacers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Indiana's Billy Knight felt like he was being guarded by 10 players, he might not have been far wrong.

"The reason we were able to stop Knight this time was that we put a lot of different players on him," said New York Nets Coach Kevin Loughery.

Julius Erving's 36 points didn't hurt, either, as the Nets posted a 119-102 victory over the Indiana Pacers Wednesday night.

In other American Basketball Association games Wednesday, San Diego stopped Virginia 118-104, Denver crushed St. Louis 111-98 and San Antonio defeated Utah 121-117.

"I felt in the first game when Knight scored 43 points we overplayed him," Loughery said. "We have a very physical team this year. That's the reason I made the trades in acquiring Swen Nater and Rich Jones from the San Antonio Spurs."

"We just weren't physical enough and our sharpness wasn't there," Leonard said. "We just couldn't get the ball in the hole and couldn't get the big hoop when we needed it.

"Maybe we need a game like this to wake us up," the Indiana coach said.

When the Pacers narrowed New York's lead to three points, 97-94, midway through the fourth period, Erving scored 10 points as the Nets spurted back to a 13-point advantage. Guard Billy Keller paced Indiana with 31 points while Knight, the ABA's top scorer going into the game, was held to 16 points, only two coming in the second half.

Bob Warren's 22 points paced a balanced scoring attack as San Diego handed Virginia its seventh loss in eight games and ruined the debut of interim Coach Mack Calvin. The Squires' defeat came despite a 40-point performance by rookie guard Luther "Ticky" Burden, including 20 points in the fourth period.

James Silas, Billy Paultz and Larry Kenon combined for 80 points to lead San Antonio and hand the Utah Stars their fourth consecutive defeat. Down by 10 points after the opening period, the Spurs outscored Utah 36-21 in the second quarter to take a 63-58 halftime advantage. The victory gives the Spurs a 4-3 record while Utah dropped to 1-6. Silas paced the victory with 28 points.

Denver, behind Dan Issel's 33 points, moved into a first-place tie with the Indiana Paacers in the Western Division by dropping St. Louis. The loss snapped the Spirits' five-game winning streak. St. Louis' Marvin Barnes scored 30 points and grabbed 10 rebounds. Denver's Bobby Jones pulled down 18 rebounds handed out nine assists and blocked seven shots.

Miami Hosts Navy Gridders In Homecoming Encounter

MIAMI (AP) — The University of Miami will try to avert its sixth losing football season in seven years Friday night when it hosts Navy in a homecoming battle at the Orange Bowl.

Navy looked like one of the weak sisters in Miami's schedule before the season began But the Midshipmen will throw a 5-3 record against the 1-5 Hurricanes and will be favored.

Miami can do no better than salvage a 5-5 season by winning its four remaining games. But the Hurricanes were unimpressive in falling 21-7 to Boston College last week, a team Navy lost to by 17-10.

"After we got emotionally worked up for Oklahoma, Nebraska and Colorado, we may have had a psychological letdown," said Miami Coach Carl Selmer.

"We lost the ball five times and made a difficult game out of it against Houston (a 24-20 Miami victory)," Selmer continued. "Then we took a week off after a victory and went flat (against Boston College)."Maybe some of us are a teeny bit discouraged, but we feel that a good effort on Friday will revitalize everything."

Navy is coming off a 31-10 loss to Notre Dame last week The Midshipmen had five turnovers in the game, ruining a defensive effort which held Notre Dame to 80 yards rushing.

The game will be the fifth between the two schools, the last coming in 1971 when Miami scored a 31-16 victory. Navy's only win in the series was a 17-6 conquest in 1961.

Orr-less Bruins Shut Out

By The Associated Press

It was pointed up, once again, Wednesday night, when Buffalo held the once-powerful Bruins to 16 shots and goalie Gerry Desjardins recorded his first shutout in over six years in the Sabres' 4-0 National Hockey League victory.

With Orr out of the lineup with a bum knee, the Bruins' opponents have been able to concentrate on Boston's other major scoring threat, Phil Esposito.

The result is a feeble Boston attack, which has netted just 37 goals, three more than California in the Adans Division. The Bruins, in third place, now trail first-place Buffalo by nine points.

"Boston is the team we feel we have to beat in our division," said Buffalo Coach Floyd Smith after Peter McNab scored two goals and assisted on a third to pace the Sabres' attack. "It's good to get out in front against them. I thought we checked very well. We kept Esposito bottled up in his own end most of the night."

"I'm embarrassed," said Boston Coach Don Cherry. "I don't think anybody on our club played up to his capabilities, except the goaltender (Dave Reece). He played a good solid game. Without him, the score would have been higher. Bobby Orr will make a difference in our club, but I don't know if he would have made a difference tonight."

Elsewhere in the NHL, the Pittsburgh Penguins held off the New York Islanders 7-6; the Montreal Canadiens trimmed the Atlanta Flames 3-1; the Los Angeles Kings downed the Washington Capitals 3-1; the Toronto Maple Leafs dumped the Detroit Red Wings 7-3; the Philadelphia Flyers and Chicago Black Hawks skated to a 4-4 tie; the St. Louis Blues beat the Minnesota North Stars 4-1, and the Kansas City Scouts Seals 3-2.

In the playoffs last year against Pittsburgh, the Islanders got off to a slow start, losing three games before winning the next four. Wednesday night, their late surge wasn't enough.

Two first-period goals by Lowell McDonald and another by Bob Kelly triggered the Pittsburgh to a 6-2 lead midway through the second and the Penguins held off a furious Islanders rally.

Shutt scored his first goal of the game and the third of the season at 9:40 of the middle period, taking a feed from Pete Mahovlich at center ice before skating in alone on Flames goalie Phil Myre and tucking the puck into the net from in close.

The Scouts ended a five-game losing streak. Ed Gilbert deflected a Dennis Patterson slap shot past California goalie Gary Simmons midway through the second period and set up Randy left in third period.

Grant Mulvey's second goal in the third period, with less than five minutes remaining, completed a Chicago comeback and enabled the Black Hawks to tie Philadelphia. Down 4-1 entering the final period, Mulvey sandwiched goals around Ivan Boldirev's score to tie the game.

Mike Murphy's goal snapped a 1-1 tie in the second period and Marcel Dionne added the insurance with his 11th goal of the season as Los Angeles, in first place in the Norris Division, beat the last-place club, Washington.

Don Ashby, Stan Weir and Blaine Stoughton scored goals in a 2:16 span of the second period, while Detroit's Dan Maloney was serving a major penalty, sparking Toronto's victory.

The Maple Leafs held a 2-1 lead before Maloney was sent off the ice for five minutes for punching Toronto defenseman Brian Glennie.

Gilles Gratton, making his first NHL start after three years in the World Hockey Association, stopped 28 shots, including four by his brother Norm in St. Louis' victory over Minnesota.

Unassisted goals by Derek Sanderson, acquired by St. Louis from New York a week ago, and Chuck Lefley gave Gratton the offense he needed.

Leafs Defenseman Suffers Concussion

Glennie was hit from behind by Detroit left winger Dan Maloney in the second period after the Toronto defenseman had dumped Detroit center Bryan Hextall to the ice.

Maloney appeared upset when no penalty was called, and after knocking Glennie down with a punch, lifted the Toronto defenseman off the ice twice.

"Glennie hit Hextall and I hit Glennie," Maloney said. "It was no more serious than what (Dave) Williams (of the Leafs) did to (Terry) Harper (of Detroit)."

Moments after Maloney was given a five-minute major for the altercation with Glennie, Williams challenged Harper to fight, to which Harper declined. Williams was given a penalty for delaying the game, was sent to the penalty box and taunted Maloney from there.

After an aborted attempt to fight later in the period, Maloney and Williams fought the moment they stepped from the penalty box. Each drew fighting majors and 10-minute misconducts.

Ontario's new attorney-general, Roy McMurtry, announced two weeks ago that his department would crack down on violence in all sports, and said there would be closer scrutiny of games at Maple Leaf Gardens, home of the Maple Leafs and the Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association.

Following Wednesday night's game, a Metropolitan Toronto Police sergeant identified only as Sgt. Steen said: "We have people from our department looking at the game, but it must go through the Crown attorney's office if anything is to be done."

Mark Howe Scores Hat Trick on Fighting Saints

'Hey, where can we find that spider,'' they teased Wednesday night after Mark scored three first period goals to ignite the Aeros to a 6-4 World Hockey Association victory over the Minnesota Fighting Saints.

It was Mark Howe's first action since missing five games and spending four days in a hospital because of the spider bite.

But he seemed to have lost little because of the absence, scoring his first goal after only nine seconds. He hit again at 4:54 and finished with a goal at 18:32 as the Aeros led 5-1 at the end of the period.

"If you get down against this team it's really tough," Minnesota Coach Harry Neale said. "Houston played very good in the first period but we also played extremely bad. The first period was a disaster. We made two bad plays on their initial goals.

In addition to Mark Howe's three goals, Frank Hughes and Rich Preston each scored for Houston and Minnesota's John McKenzie scored his first of two goals at 7:46 of the opening period.

It was a different type game in the second period and resulted in a record 16 penalties called for both teams. That was the most penalties called against both clubs in one period for the Aeros.

Minnesota managed to take some advantage of the confusion with goals by Mike Antonovich and Paul Holmgren but Gordie Howe broke their momentum with his second goal of the season at 14:06.

'We started fast,' Houston Coach Bill Dineen said. 'We skated very well in the first period and controlled the initial tempo of the game.

'The ice was too wet at first but that will be corected. Also, the lighting is poor in the corners and around the net. We'll fix that too.''

Rick Sentes' first goal of the game, at 6:59 of the third period, snapped a 1-1 tie but Chris Bordeleau scored for the Nordiques 1½ minutes later to even the game. Terry Caffery scored his first goal of the season, at 10:14, to give the Cowboys a lead they never lost. Sentes provided some insurance, connecting at 11:25 to complete the scoring.

O'Connor's Return Set

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Pat O'Connor of Rochester, Minn., will make his professional boxing comeback Nov. 13 at Metropolitan Sports Center, promoter Ben Sternberg announced Wednesday.

O'Connor, 25, was 35-3 when he retired two years ago after a loss to Denny Moyer.

He will return in a 10-round bout against Roger Buckskin of Portland, Ore. Buckskin has a 21-14 pro record.

On the same card, undefeated heavyweight Duane Bobick of Bowlus, Minn., will meet veteran George "Scrap Iron" Johnson of Los Angeles. Bobick is 31-0, Johnson 42-28.

Six YAL Teams Win To Reach Semifinals

Six teams advanced to Saturday's Young America League football semifinals at Memorial Park by posting victories Wednesday.

The Cowboys defeated the Oilers 25-6, the Lions knocked off the 49ers 13-6 and the Jets gained a 1-0 overtime victory over the Gladiators in the fifth grade Lightweight games.

In sixth grade Lightweight games, the Spartans topped the Giants 14-13, the Gladiators defeated the Warriors 12 and The Dolphins defeated the Oilers 14-7.

Equipment Managers' Family Found Slain

HAMILTON, Ont. (AP) — Three family members of the equipment manager of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League were found shot to death at his home Wednesday night, police said.

Police said the shooting apparently was a double slaying and a suicide.

Hudson After 71st Victory, Share of National Record

But Hillsdale Coach Jack Hepinstall insists preparation for tonight's high school football game against Hudson "didn't begin earlier than this week" and that "we have not pointed to this game."

Despite the opposing views, nobody can deny the importance of the clash at Hillsdale. On the line is Hudson's 70-game winning streak and a share of the national record of 71 straight triumphs — plus advancement to Michigan's first statewide playoff in modern history.

"We welcome the challenge. It's a great opportunity to get to play someone who has reached that point," said Hepinstall. "We're excited about playing the game.

"We think if we play well we'll have a good shot at winning. It could be a very even game."

Hudson, Associated Press state poll champs the last three years in Class C, has posted an 83-4-1 record in Saylor's 10 years as head coach. Hepinstall teams have dealt him two of the losses and the tie.

In 1966 and 1967 Hepinstall coached Blissfield, which tied Hudson and then won the next year. Hepinstall left to take a coaching job at Western Illinois and his successor, Lloyd Clink, coached Blissfield to a 13-0 triumph over the Tigers in the 1968 opener.

That is the last time Hudson lost.

Tonight's game is the regular season finale for both squads. Hudson has an 8-0 record and Class B Hillsdale is 5-3.

Should Hudson win, the Tigers will tie the national record for successive triumphs set by Jefferson City, Mo., 1958-66. They could break the record Nov. 15 in the state semifinals. At this point their opponent would be Kalamazoo Hackett.

"I don't want to talk about the playoffs now," Saylor said. "We have to beat Hillsdale first or else the record, playoffs and everything else is lost."

Saylor has said he almost hoped Hudson didn't qualify for the playoffs because the school would get more financial gain by going after the record in the opener next year against Blissfield.

According to one source, Hudson would only get $500 plus mileage from the Michigan High School Athletic Association for going to the playoffs. By going after the 72nd triumph next year, the Tigers could realize at last $5,000 from gate receipts and local businesses could get another $5,000 in profit which the matchup would generate.

Saylor has said, however, that his seniors deserve a shot at the national record this year.

Hepinstall said there is plenty of excitement at Hillsdale, although there haven't been any special pep rallies or unusual posters in school.

"No doubt everybody in town is talking about it," he said. "But I haven't felt that much pressure from any faculty or townspeople.'

Prothro, Chargers Still Looking for Light at End of Tunnel

SAN DIEGO (AP) — This was supposed to be the year the San Diego Chargers started turning things around, to win more games than they lost for the first time in six years.

Don Woods was back to run the ball behind a powerful and veteran offensive line. Free agent wide receiver Dwight McDonald looked like the man to draw the double coverage away from Gary Garrison.

Seven talented defensive rookies seemed destined to lift the San Diego defense from the title it won last year—worst in the National Football League.

There was even some talk about edging into a wild-card playoff spot.

All that is dead now. For the Chargers, the numbers speak painfully for themselves, no wins, seven losses.

"I've made every effort I know," said second-year coach Tommy Prothro. "I don't know any other pitch to make. I'm not going to criticize the players publicly. I'll criticize them privately."

In seven games, the Chargers have surrendered 161 points and scored only 61. They have been shut out three times, once by the Pittsburgh Steelers and twice by the Oakland Raiders. They managed only 17 points against the reborn Houston Oilers. Against the Kansas City Chiefs and the Los Angeles Rams, they scored only 10 points.

Against the New York Giants last Saturday, the offense broke loose for 24 points. But the Giants pierced the Charger defense for 35.

"Tell me, are they beating us or are we beating ourselves?" fumed tight end Pat Curran, who answered his own question. "We keep beating ourselves. Nobody else is beating us."

The injury situation is critical. Woods, 1974's NFL Rookie of the Year, is out for the season with torn knee ligaments. Quarterback Dan Fouts has endured a sore ankle throughout the season and few other regulare are completely healthy.

"We seem to be snakebitten or something," said Garrison, a 10-year Charger veteran. "I don't think anybody can put their finger on what's happening."

That includes Prothro. "Maybe we'll simplify some things," said the coach. "Maybe we'll walk through more things on the field."

The sad showing is being felt at the box office. More than 52,000 fans are expected in San Diego Stadium on Saturday to watch unbeaten San Diego State play Arizona. The Chargers will be lucky to draw half that many the next day when they face the New England Patriots.

And the boos will be for the home team.

After the Patriots, San Diego must play two games against the Denver Broncos and single contests with the Minnesota Vikings, the Jets, Cincinnati and Kansas City.

Neither the players nor Prothro have given up hope. "We've got to pull together and regroup," said Garrison.

Fouts echoed his feelings and expressed confidence in the defense. "We know they can play," he said. "They'll be back."

When it comes to salvaging seasons, the Chargers have a little history going for them. They were 1-6 at the halfway point in the season last year, but won four of the last seven games, including the last three.

Nevertheless, Prothro is already thinking in terms of 1976. "It's important to win some games this year to hold this thing together for next year," he said. "We've got some young players, and some older ones, too, who need to develop some confidence coming to camp next year."

With the Raiders beginning to run off with the AFC West division and Pittsburgh, Houston and Cincinnati running a tight race in the AFC Central, the talk about winning a playoff spot has long since died. The goal now is a measure of self-respect.

"Everybody's lost, looking for something," said safety Chris Fletcher, the defensive captain of the team. "Right now, confidence is the big thing. If we lose that, we won't win anything."

Dahlia Heads for Race

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Like Allez France, another great French mare, Dahlia may well be headed for a breeding date with the American stallion Secretariat.

But while the owners of Allez France have just announced her retirement from competition, Dahlia still has some racing to do.

First on the schedule for the 5-year-old American-bred is Saturday's running of the $150,000 Washington, D.C. International, a 1½-mile grass classic she won at Laurel Race Course in 1973 and in which she finished third last year.

"After the International," owner Nelson Bunker Hunt said, "she's going to California and if she trains well under Charlie Whittingham, she'll race all winter. If not, she'll go to stud in Kentucky."

Since winning the Gold Cup in England on Aug. 19, she finished third twice and on Oct. 26 was four lengths behind winner Snow Knight while finishing fifth in the Canadian International at Woodbine.

With a little luck, she could have won more this year," Hunt said in a telephone interview from his home in Texas. "But she has a tendency to get better this time of year, and she's completely sound."

Hunt said in the Canadian race, Dahlia had to rally from far back and then gave up another six to eight lengths while going wide around the field.

He likened that race, including a slow early pace, with the 1974 International at Laurel, and part of that problem may be solved Saturday by Nobiliary, Dahlia's stablemate which will run as an entry in the nine-horse field.

Nobiliary, like Dahlia sired by Vaguely Noble, is consistently on the front end in her races and the 3-year-old filly could well keep the pace honest.

The winner of five straight turf starts, Snow Knight has been installed the early favorite. Comtesse de Loir, second in the Canadian International and one of four French entries at Laurel, is rated the second choice ahead of the Dahlia-Nobiliary entry.

Shug's Last Hurrah Fades Into Oblivion at Auburn

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — The Auburn Tigers were flying high into Coach Shug Jordan's last season. They were coming off a 9-2 campaign and a 27-3 manhandling of Texas in the Gator Bowl.

As usual, Shug's troops were among college football's elite in preseason pickings.

What happened?

The Tigers plummeted into the oblivion of also-rans. They're 3-4-1, but it's worse than that.

They've lost all three games on their home field. They have lost to the likes of Virginia Tech and Memphis State. Except for three consecutive mir-acle turn-around victories, Shug's last hurrah, at this point, would be winless.

Again: What happened?

Jordan says, for starters, the crystal balls were cloudy when the preseason pickers put Auburn among the Top Ten. The defense was way too green. Key leaders were gone from the offense.

Then the injuries came.

It wasn't because his players didn't try. And Jordan says that his coaching staff was not beset by deteriorating jealousies when he announced last spring that assistant coach Doug Barfield would replace him at the helm next year.

Auburn's veteran defensive coach, Paul Davis, was admittedly disappointed that he was overlooked for the more youthful Barfield. But the staff reports no dissension, and Jordan adds, "All these people are professionals."

If anything, he says, the preseason announcement of his retirement "got everyone together better than usual."

Only three players returned in the fall overweight, and none of them by more than three pounds. There has not been a single disciplinary action all season.

The Tigers descent is attributed primarily to the loss of nine starters from the defensive unit which was Auburn's strongest suit last year. Nobody has stepped into Ken Bernich's huge shoes at linebacker.

Last year, the defense repeatedly gave Auburn's offense the ball in good field position. Also, for the first eight games last year, opponents didn't begin a single drive on Auburn's side of midfield.

Field position has been lacking this year, and turnovers have hurt. Auburn has had its share of fumbles and interceptions, but opponents have had only a single pass picked off. Four straight opponents went without a single miscue.

Injuries to Auburn's top two fullbacks—Decdrick McIntyre and Kenny Burks—hurt the Tigers early in the season before they returned to full speed. Auburn's excellent wide receiver, Jeff Gilligan, was also sidelined early before coming back to lead the Tigers with several circus catches.

Three games still await Auburn—Mississippi Georgia, and Alabama.

The Tigers can still hope Shug will go out with a winning year. But prognosticators don't think so.

First Class Heads RMKC Derby Event

Don Conatser's First Class, the track's leading winner with 13 firsts in 18 outings this season, heads a group of 16 hopefuls bidding for eight berths in Monday's 27th Rocky Mountain Kennel Club in a pair of elimination races at the track tonight.

The Derby eliminations, contested over the 2080-foot Springs Course, are the fifth and eighth events on the 12-race program.

The first four finishers in each qualifying run will advance to Monday's Derby finals.

First Class, who must win both her elimination race and the finals to tie an all-time state win record of 15 wins for a greyhound in one season, is entered in the eighth race along with Dan Ryan's Dutch Certified, Dan O'Connor's Gold Money, George Wood's Oshkosh Pam, Nova Kennel's Tribunal, R.F. Bennett's Go Bess, Charles Brotherton's Charlie B. Eckert and Al Olson's Billy Walkr.

Gold Money won the $10,000 Colorado Derby at Cloverleaf Greyhound Park near Loveland this spring while First Class, winner of 20 races over the last five months in Colorado, captured the Mile High Kennel Club Derby in Denver this summer.

Post time is 8 p.m.

RMKC winds up its 63-night season Tuesday.

McAlister May Miss Next Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Philadelphia Eagles' running back James McAlister cut his right hand in practice Wednesday and is listed as questionable for Sunday's National Football League game with the St. Louis Cardinals here.

ALL SMILES — Mississippi Insurance Commissioner Evelyn Gandy grins as returns show she has been elected the state's first woman lieutenant governor. Miss Gandy, a 55-year-old veteran of three decades in politics, defeated Republican Mayor Bill Patrick of Laurel. Miss Gandy is a Democrat. (AP Wirephoto)

Women Lieutenant Governors Elected in Two States

(AP) — Women were elected lieutenant governors in two states, and voters in two others rejected proposed equal rights amendments to their state constitutions in elections that offered feminists both victory and defeat.

The rejection of state ERA proposals in New York and New Jersey on Tuesday was considered by some supporters to be a harbinger of a similar fate for the national ERA that must be approved by 38 states by 1979 for adoption to the U.S. Constitution.

Thirty-four states, including both New York and New Jersey, have ratified the ERA so far.

The women elected to No. 2 spots in Mississippi and Kentucky and New York's Mary Anne Krupsak are the only women lieutenant governors in the nation. Both of the women elected Tuesday have expressed support for the ERA, but they campaigned primarily on the basis of their many years in state government.

Democrat Evelyn Gandy, 55, first woman elected lieutenant governor in Mississippi, is a 30-year political veteran. She served as an aide to the late Sen. Theodore Bilbo, D-Miss., before being elected to the legislature in 1947. She later served as an assistant attorney general, state treasurer and welfare commissioner.

For the last four years, Miss Gandy has been Mississippi's insurance commissioner. She defeated five men in the Democratic primary and trounced Republican Mayor Bill Patrick of Laurel in the general election by more than 100,000 votes.

She has generally avoided controversial issues, and she said in response to questions about the ERA that "although I personally favor the amendment, I feel at this time we should concentrate on equal opportunity, equal pay for equal work and encouraging more women to take an active interest in governmental affairs."

In Kentucky, voters chose their first woman lieutenant governor, Democrat Thelma Stovall, by a 3 to 2 margin over Republican Shirley Palmer-Ball, a businessman making his first bid for public office.

Mrs. Stovall, who has held a variety of posts during her 25 years in state government, said her sex "hasn't made any difference in the past, and it won't now.

"In fact, my opponent might have been better off if he hadn't tried to straighten out some voters' confusion over his name," she said, referring to Palmer-Ball's unsuccessful attempt to have his name appear on the ballot as S.W. rather than Shirley.

Mrs. Stovall, 56, who has twice served as state treasurer, is completing her third term as secretary of state. She has long been linked with Kentucky's labor movement and has been a member of the Tobacco Workers Union since 1936.

In both New Jersey and New York, voters turned down state ERA proposals by narrow margins. Supporters had hoped approval in New York would add fuel to the national ratification drive. In New Jersey, state Sen. Thomas Dunn, the only member of the state Senate to vote against the national measure when the legislature approved it in 1972, said he would move to repeal New Jersey's ratification.

Thieves Steal $500 Flags

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Eddie Floyd, owner of a mobile homes company, is taking down his 100-foot flagpole because he has lost six giant flags to thieves.

The flags were 20 by 30 feet and cost $500 each, but Floyd says he is taking down the pole because he is afraid a thief will be hurt by having a flag hit a nearby power line.

He said they had to take precautions when taking down the flag because of the proximity of a high-power tension line. Occasionally it was con-

States Fret Over Refugee Costs

WASHINGTON (CNS) — As October began, more than 102,000 Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees had been resettled into new lives around the United States. Still waiting in federal camps for resettlement sponsors were nearly 25,000 men, women and children.

In a nation of 213 million persons, this number of refugees would hardly seem noticeable. Yet many of the states where they have settled are viewing them with substantial — and warranted — concern.

The primary reason is a combination of a conviction of what Americans should do for the refugees and the fact that such help is very expensive at a time of distressed local government budgets.

In contrast to the national attitude decades ago when it was considered enough just to open the door to the "tired . . . poor . . . huddled masses yearning to breathe free," the federal, state and local governments today are providing special education, job training, health care and welfare benefits.

All of this is quite expensive. The federal government is paying for health and welfare, but local school districts and state agencies are being left with the cost of education and job training.

Legislation with broad geographical and partisan support is moving through Congress to reimburse states for education costs, but it won't be until early 1976 before the local school districts see any of this money.

Julia Taft, director of the federal interagency task force in charge of the resettlement effort, thinks it is a bit unseemly for local officials to complain about the costs of helping refugees who have chosen to live in their cities.

But the states argue that since it was federal policy to get involved in Vietnam and federal policy to bring refugees to the United States, it should be federal policy to pay for all assistance. Local school budgets, they note, have no stretch in them.

In a recent gesture toward this concern, the federal government has offered school districts a flat, one-time grant of $300 per refugee child.

The congressional legislation, however, would not only provide $300 for special assistance (primarily language training) but also reimburse districts for their average annual cost per pupil (which is $1,290 nationally). The legislation would provide half as much the second year.

California has turned out to be the favorite state of the refugees. So far, 22,500 have settled there, with nearly 10,000 of them school-age children.

Other states favored by the refugees include Texas (6,800), Florida (4,900), Pennsylvania (4,750), Washington (3,600), Minnesota (3,250), Virginia (3,050) and New York (3,000).

With nearly 35 percent of the refugees being of school age, the impact on local school districts has been heavy. Even where the numbers of Indochinese children are small, the districts want to provide special help. Furthermore, recent Supreme Court decisions now require bilingual education in most instances, and it is costly.

Of the adult refugees, about 45 percent are graduates of Vietnamese high schools, but they need language and job training to speed up their assimilation into American society. Welfare is anathema to most of the refugees; self - sufficiency is their goal.

The federal government already has spent millions bringing the refugees to the United States, setting up transition camps, organizing the resettlement sponsorship program and paying for health and welfare assistance.

It is more than this nation has ever done for refugees or immigrants.

Still, it is considered surprising on Capitol Hill that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare expected local school districts to pick up the costs of educating the children and adults who obviously have special needs — and who realize that education is the route to self - sufficiency.

The Real Betty Crocker Alive and Well

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Relax America, one of your favorite homemakers, Betty Crocker, is alive and well, and baking cakes and other goodies in her David City, Neb., home.

Several months ago, the legend of Betty Crocker, a General Mills trademark for more than a half century, was shattered. The company acknowledged that Betty wasn't for real, but a made-up person.

According to John Wickland of Minneapolis, a spokesman for General Mills, Betty Crocker was created in 1921.

Wickland said Crocker was the last name of a popular member of the board of General Mills' predecessor company, and Betty was a "good American name." So the company put them together, using the name to sign company responses to questions from homemakers.

The same year, 1921, Betty Jane Grogan was born in Chicago, and 28 years ago she married Donald A. Crocker, thus becoming "Betty Crocker."

"I just claim the name, but not the fame, but my cakes are as good as hers," said the true-life, flesh and blood Betty Crocker.

However, Mrs. Crocker has been having problems because of her name, especially since the General Mills announcement.

"Today was just a [illegible] bit too much to take," said Mrs. Crocker after getting nine telephone calls from pranksters. The calls have become so numerous that Mrs. Crocker has resorted to leaving the phone off the hook. She rejects the idea of getting an unlisted number, but she has entertained thoughts of a name change.

The calls don't just come from persons in Nebraska, but from other states as well. Mrs. Crocker can't figure out how the callers are getting her number, but she wishes they would stop calling at all hours of the day and night.

So far, the callers have been nice. About the worst one was when one caller asked Mrs. Crocker how her crumbs were.

Betty says she likes to talk with the unknown callers, but that it gets very tiring after awhile.

"It does get irritating. I don't want to be a complainer, but I do get tired of it once in a while," she said.

Despite her famous name and a good hand in the kitchen, Mrs. Crocker has never won a cooking contest, in fact she's never entered one - because of her name.

But Mrs. Crocker has made the most of her name, and gets a kick out of some of the odd looks she gets.

Two of her prized possessions are buttons given to her by friends. One reads, "Betty Crocker Week," the other says "Betty Crocker for Sheriff."

GORILLA BIRTHDAY

He's fast approaching the world record reported for primate longevity (excluding humans) which, according to the Guinness Book of World Records, is 50 years and three months for a male chimpanzee who died in Chicago in 1971.

SHE DECIDED TO LET HER HUSBAND DIE—Kristin Kramer in her Concord home with Kara, 3, one of two children she is raising since her husband's death. Robert Kramer, her husband, officially died on Sept. 15, two days after a sudden devastating pain in his head brought him to his knees. After two agonizing days of watching her husband in the hospital, Mrs. Kramer authorized doctors to "pull the plug" on the respirator used to keep him "alive." "It was like going to a funeral parlor and seeing the body breathe," Mrs. Kramer said of seeing her husband.

Dear Abby

Family Stands To Lose Dollars at Wedding

DEAR ABBY: I want to get married again, but my family is against it.

You see, I met this man in 1914. We wanted to get married in December of 1915, but our parents said we were too young. (I was 14 and Rudy was 18.)

World War I came along and Rudy joined the Navy. Meanwhile I married someone else and spent 54 unhappy years with him. He died three years ago and guess who suddenly came into my life again? Rudy! His wife of 51 years had died, and we discovered the old love was still there.

I am now 75 and my children don't want me to get married because they're afraid they'll lose my monthly checks. I'm sure Rudy and I can make it together. Please answer soon. — FIRST LOVE IN GALVESTON.

DEAR FIRST: Your family has no right to stand in your way. If you and your first love can "make it together," the word from here is to tell your family to go jump into the Gulf of Mexico and for you to marry Rudy. Life is short. Make it sweet.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a terrific guy. He has everything a girl could want in a man. Looks, personality, character and money.

So, what's my problem, you ask?

He's a wet kisser!

I hate to mention this to him because I don't want to hurt his feelings, but if it weren't for those wet kisses, he would be perfect.

Please help. —GEMINI

DEAR GEMINI: So, what's wrong with telling him to dry up?

DEAR ABBY: Please tell the next reader who asks what to do about a flooded basement to call the fire department.

We help in any emergency not involving a crime; sudden illness from simple fainting to heart attacks; accidents from falling out of bed to auto collisions; electrical power failure (anything from a blown fuse to a high— voltage wire that could be very dangerous).

We give emergency aid and call an ambulance, doctor or any other agency as required.

We'll even come out and check your home to make sure it's fireproof. Please spread the word, Abby. We want to help. — FRIENDLY FIREMAN, SUN CITY, CALIF.

DEAR FIREMAN: I'll spread the word. The printed word reaches more people than smoke signals.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Ticked off in Tulsa" whose husband always told departing dinner guests to come back soon because he never got a decent meal unless they had company:

If that's all she has to complain about, she's lucky. My husband always makes jokes about what lousy bed partner I am.

His favorite joke is: "If a man ever rapes my wife, he could never be charged with a moving violation." — TICKED OFF IN TACOMA.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Old, worn-out, but reasonably well-cared for paint brushes (three to four inches wide) are far superior to whisk brooms for many purposes.

I keep one in my car to sweep dirt and sand off the floor.

Another I use when washing windows or when painting to sweep dust and cobwebs off window sills or out of corners.

My wife has one to use when dusting corners such as on stair steps.

I also use one on my work bench and like it much better than the brush made for that purpose.

Old paint brushes are convenient, long lasting, and don't cost anything.

Mr. F.L. Niven

That's what I like — something for nothing! Thanks for writing, sir, and for clueing us in on this money-saver idea.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

O.K., Heloise — here's one for some of the "old-timers." How do you make rag curls?

When I was little, I wore my hair short and straight, but my daughter has hair down to the middle of her back.

Regular curlers are hard to sleep on and sponge rollers come out as soon as the hair is dry.

Any hints?

Not-So-Young-Mother

By cracky, I haven't thought about rag curls for years! Don't remember how they are made either!

Can some of our grandmothers help us out and refresh our memories?

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

For years I have used petroleum jelly to clean patent leather shoes and purses.

I have always dreaded the task until I discovered the petroleum jelly cloths in my daughter's nursery did the job fast and easy.

Charles Atlas Phyique Loses Popularity

CHICAGO (AP) — If you are a former 100-pound weakling who went to body-building school to impress your girl, just hope she isn't the liberated type.

A recent Loyola University study has found that women, particularly the "liberated" ones, prefer men of medium-thin, linear builds over the Charles Atlas types.

"The most preferred physique was that of a medium-appearing male with a slight tapering physique, but nothing to the extent of the muscleman physique with the massive chest and arms," said Paul Lavrakas of Loyola's applied social psychology program.

"Women who described themselves in liberated terms and who led more liberated lifestyles had a preference for thinner, more linear physiques, whereas women who saw themselves in more traditional feminine roles liked more massive torsos—the typical muscleman," Lavrakas said.

He spent some two years conducting the study, which involved 70 women from 18 to 30, most of whom were single and from an urban, middle-class background. He said many more of the women described themselves as liberated than as traditionally feminine.

The psychologist broke down the male body into four areas: the arms; the upper trunk, which includes the chest and shoulders; the lower trunk, which includes the stomach, waist and hips; and the legs. He constructed a build of medium scale in all four categories, then one at a time he switched each part of the body with the same part in four proportions: Thin, medium-thin, medium-wide and wide. The height and head size remained constant. The result was 19 different figures.

"Those 19 do not represent all possible combinations, but they do give a very representative variety," Lavrakas said.

The women viewed and rated each build, after detailing to Lavrakas their backgrounds, habits, lifestyles and relationships with males.

The most unappealing physique: "A pear-shaped body, the kind with a heavy lower trunk and medium upper trunk or medium lower and thin upper," Lavrakas said.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♥.

Here's a chance to test your play technique. Cover the East and West hands with your thumbs and see how you would fare at a contract of three no trump.

There is nothing remarkable about the bidding. After partner responds at the two-level, your rebid of two no trump shows a sound opening bid—about 15 points. Partner adds his 11 and, since his hand is also balanced, raises to the no trump game.

West leads the three of hearts and East plays the king. You can take a bow if you elected to let East hold the trick. Your aim is to try to exhaust East's hearts. East continues with the jack of hearts, and naturally you hold off the ace one more round. The defenders play a third round of hearts, and this time you are forced to win the ace. How do you continue?

You can count seven tricks in high cards—three spades, one heart, two diamonds and one club. Therefore, you need two more tricks for your contract, and these tricks can only be developed in the club suit. Since you have lost two tricks, you can afford to lose two more. Finally, West is the danger hand, for he holds the long hearts, so you must make every effort to keep him off lead while you develop the clubs.

If you worked this out, the winning play should now be obvious. You should lead the eight of clubs, intending to let it ride if West plays low. You do not mind if East wins this trick, for he cannot make a damaging return. Whatever suit he plays, you will win in your hand and take another club finesse, thus guaranteeing your contract. As the cards lie, you will make two overtricks. Notice that it would be a fatal mistake to finesse the queen of clubs on the first round. The deep finesse for the jack guards against this particular distribution.

What if the club finesse loses to East's jack and he still has a heart to return? In that case, you will still make the contract if the club honors are split and your next finesse in the suit is successful. And if East started with four hearts and both club honors, you have just cause to moan about the whimsical character of Dame Fortune.

Buddies Reunited After 30 Years

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Robert Chappuis was reunited with an Italian who saved his life during World War II when the latter visited here recently.

The Italian, Also Comucci, worked during the war in an underground group known as the "Partisans." Then 21, he risked his life to hide Chappius and four other Army Air Corpsmen when their B-25 was shot down behind enemy lines in Italy.

High Court To Examine Servicemen's Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court will hear arguments in two cases raising the same question: Do military authorities have to observe the constitutional rights of individuals as rigorously as civilian authorities?

The nation's military establishment has a perfect record before the Supreme Court in its last three cases involving the issue.

Today, the court is to hear arguments on demands by servicemen who want the right to be represented by attorneys in courts-martial involving minor offenses. In a separate case, the court will consider whether politicians may be barred from campaigning on military bases.

Three times in the last 16 months, the court has confronted the question of the constitutional rights of military personnel in one form or another. Each time, a divided court has decided that the armed forces need not observe the right of individuals as rigorously as civilian authorities.

The justices apparently are closely divided again on the court-martial case scheduled for argument. They heard arguments last term but failed to decide the issue and called for reargument.

The case involves summary courts-martial, which are used to try servicemen for minor offenses such as misbehavior on sentry duty, unauthorized absence or assault.

It is already settled that a defendant is entitled to an attorney in general and special courts-martial, which deal with more serious offenses.

In 1972, the Supreme Court held that a defendant in civilian life is entitled to an attorney in any trial which can result in his going to jail. The Army and Air Force started appointing defense lawyers in summary courts-martial after that ruling, but the Navy did not.

Four Marines stationed at El Toro Air Station in Santa Ana, Calif., demanded in 1973 that the Navy do so. The U.S. Circuit Court in San Francisco ruled that counsel must be appointed if the defendant needs legal assistance in proving a defense or proving that there were mitigating circumstances.

Appealing to the Supreme Court, the government argued that "military necessity permits procedures which might be constitutionally invalid in civilian society."

The other case being argued arises from a court order permitting Dr. Benjamin Spock and three other minor party candidates to campaign at Ft. Dix, N.J., in 1972. They had been refused permission by the post commander.

In upholding the order, the U.S. Circuit Court in Philadelphia ruled that the Constitution prohibits the commander of a military base from forbidding all political speeches. It said they must be permitted in areas which are open to the civilian public.

The American Civil Liberties Union, entering the case on the side of Spock, argued that the Army was attempting to preserve a "feigned neutrality."

Wife Kills Killer of Policeman Husband

With those words, 4-year-old Tony Wiliams tried Tuesday to understand the death of his policeman father and the heroism of his policewoman mother.

The child sat in a parked car Monday night and watched as his father, Anthony, a fourth-generation policeman, was slain trying to thwart a holdup.

The Williamses were on their way home that night. They stopped by a convenience store to buy a carton of milk and came upon the robbery.

It was Williams' night off. He had been minding little Tony and drove downtown to pick up Mrs. Williams after her tour of duty.

Williams, 27, went to the front door of the store, spotted three men inside and knew what was going on, police said. He crouched and called to his wife to slide him her service revolver.

Before the patrolman got off a shot, a gunman fired. The bullet struck Williams under the arm and traveled across his chest. He pitched forward in the dirt next to the building.

Mrs. Williams bolted from the car, retrieved the revolver and fired killing one of the fleeing bandits, police said.

An auxiliary Hillsborough County sheriff's deputy was on the scene moments before the Williamses noticed the men looked suspicious and he was waiting out their moves in the rear of the store.

He opened fire, wounding one of the men in the buttocks, according to Sheriff's Maj. Walter Heinrich.

Heinrich identified the dead man as Vito Mikenas, 21, of Waterbury, Conn., and the wounded man as his brother, Mark, 22, who was listed in guarded condition in a hospital. Heinrich said both men have criminal records and were wanted on burglary and larceny charges by authorities in Waterbury.

A third man, Mark Rinaldi, 20, of Tampa was arrested on a first-degree murder charge and held in the county jail without bond.

Williams was a three-year veteran of the force. He had encouraged his wife to join 18 months ago.

"Losing your own son or your own husband and killing your first person at the same time is kind of a double strain," said Williams' father, Tommy, formerly a Evansville, Ind., detective.

"But I think she has a lot of stamina. She'll still be a good cop," he said of his daughter-in-law.

New Missile Claimed Tested by Russians

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians have tested what could be their first submarine-launched missile equipped with multiple warheads that can be aimed at separate targets.

If the Russians have achieved such warheads for their submarine-fired missiles, they will have caught up with the United States in one of the few facets of the missile race in which they have trailed until now.

U.S. intelligence sources report that a new Soviet missile for submarines was test-fired for the first time on Oct. 25 from Nenoksa Test Center in the remote White Sea area.

The missile traveled nearly 3,500 miles to the Kamchatka Peninsula in the Pacific, the sources said.

According to U.S. observations, the new missile carried multiple warheads.

But American technical specialists are not certain whether these warheads were the less sophisticated MRVS (multiple re-entry vehicles) or the much more advanced MIRVS (multiple independently targetable vehicles).

The difference is important. MRVS are fired in shotgun fashion, usually against a single target. MIRVS can be aimed with precision against widely separated targets.

Analysts believe the new weapon is intended for the advanced Delta class submarines which now carry 4,900-mile range weapons armed with single warheads.

By mounting MIRVS on submarine-launched missiles, the Russians could add thousands more nuclear warheads to their strategic forces.

The Soviets already are deploying three new types of powerful land-based intercontinental-range missiles, two of them equipped with MIRVS and the third believed capable of carrying them.

The 1972 strategic arms limitation agreement, while curbing the number of missiles, placed no restriction on the number or size of nuclear warheads. A new U.S.-Soviet agreement now being negotiated also lacks any such curbs. This has caused critics to argue that the SALT agreement fails to put a cap on a vital element of the arms race.

In recent years, Russia has outstripped the United States in numbers and size of land-based missile launchers and has pulled ahead of this country in modern missile-firing submarines.

The United States still leads the Soviet Union in the number of deployed MIRV warheads for its missiles. But this lead is expected to be eclipsed within five years as the Russians exploit their MIRV technology.

The United States is in the early stages of developing advanced missile warheads and other strategic weapons designed, Pentagon officials say, to counter Soviet gains if the new SALT agreement fails to restrain the arms race sufficiently.

Senate Votes Food Aid For Neediest Countries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is nearing final action on a $3 billion 27-month foreign economic aid bill after voting to require that at least 80 per cent of food aid go to the neediest countries.

The bill, previously passed by the House, represents only a fraction of the Ford administration's total foreign aid program.

The President's request last week for $4.7 billion in economic and military aid, principally for the Middle East, will be considered by Congress later.

The Senate voted 52 to 39 Tuesday to require that at least 80 per cent of the estimated $876.4 million available for Food for Peace credit sales in the current fiscal year go to countries with a per capital gross national product of less than $250.

The amendment was offered by Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., as a substitute for the present requirement that at least 70 per cent of the food aid be channeled to the neediest of food-short countries.

It was opposed by Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga. of the Senate Agriculture Committee, who said it was regarded by administration officials as "too restrictive an effort to curb the use of food aid for U.S. political purposes in international diplomacy."

The Hatfield amendment was adopted after a proposal by Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, to channel at least 70 per cent of the food aid loans to countries of less than $200 per capita GNP was defeated 53 to 36. Clark's proposal presumably was defeated because it would have excluded Egypt.

The Senate accepted by voice vote an amendment by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., to ban economic and humanitarian aid to countries consistently violating human rights. The ban could be waived upon assurance that the U.S. aid program will "directly benefit" needy people.

Before final amendment, the bill would authorize $1.3 billion for fiscal 1976, $1.4 billion for fiscal 1977 and some $320 million for the three-month transitional period between July 1 and Oct. 1, 1976, the start of the new federal fiscal year 1977.

At 83, William Demarest Bothered By Old Picture, New One on Its Way

The old picture, just rereleased, is "The Jolson Story," and Demarest had torn himself away from his Palm Springs home to come into Los Angeles to promote it.

"I remember when Darryl Zanuck was writing those Rin Tin Tin pictures," Demarest said reminiscently. "Then I woke up one day and found out he'd been made head of 20th Century Fox."

He worked in carnivals, appeared with stock companies, played the Palace and, of course, starred on Broadway, all well before he made his first movie, back in 1927. He's done a lot and knows a lot.

"But the one thing I'm most proud of," Demarest said, "is that in 1905 I was on the bill at the Terrace Garden in New York City with Marie Dressler.

Demarest was not only in "The Jolson Story" but was part of the real thing since he worked with the singer-actor in "The Jazz Singer," the film which made sound a permanent part of Hollywood.

"You may think 'The Jazz Singer' was the first talking picture, but it wasn't. Byrne E. Foy made the first 100 percent talkie two months earlier. It was called 'The Lights of New York.' "

Demarest is such an unabashed fan of the late Larry Parks, who played Jolson in "The Jolson Story" and "Jolson Sings Again," that it's a wonder he didn't ask for an autograph when they were working together.

"Parks was just sensational!" Demarest declared. "Naturally the singing voice in the picture was Jolson's, but I'd be standing no more than a foot and a half away from Parks while he was mouthing the lyrics, and I could have sworn the songs were coming from his mouth.

"I don't think he ever received enough credit for what he did.

"Sidney Skolsky was responsible for getting 'The Jolson Story' to the screen. He produced it.

"We had Jolson barred from the set, because every time we were doing a scene he'd get behind a lamp and play it too.

"This was so distracting we told Sid we thought it would be better if Al stayed away.

"Jolson was very eccentric.

CITIZENSHIP

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Mricka Mrnacaj may be the oldest person ever to apply for U.S. citizenship.

Mrs. Mrnacaj, who came here from Albania by way of Yugoslavia to live with her two sons and their wives and 10 grandchildren in the Bronx, knows that it takes five years to become a citizen. And she knows that in five years she will be 116.

"I came here because I want to be with my sons and be American like them," said the spry Mrs. Mrnacaj, born in 1864. "There is no other country like this, and I'm happy to be here."

Mrs. Mrnacaj, her husband and seven of their 13 children fled Albania for Yugoslavia when she was only 95. She decided to come to America after her husband died in 1972 at age 108. Despite her 111 years, Mrs. Mrnacaj will have to wait the full five years before she can become a citizen, an immigration official said, unless some congressman puts through a special bill.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Trent Luttrell, Bakersfield printer, was plowing his yard when his billfold, containing his driver's license and other valuable papers, fell out of his back pocket and was buried in the dirt.

"I dug in the yard three or four days trying to find it, but never could," Luttrell said. "I thought I would never see it again.

"I hated the idea of having to go into Bakersfield to renew all the papers lost with the wallet. But just before I was ready to take off," Luttrell said, "my part Australian Shepherd went on a digging spree and of course you know what happened. He dug up the wallet. It was a little dirty, but otherwise in good shape."

CURE Tries New Approach

Having created what is increasingly being referred to as "Asphalt Acres" by razing taxpaying establishments in the downtown area, that blue sky agency is now finding to its consternation that private enterprise investors are not exactly rushing in to fill the void as it had anticipated. One would think that the proper time to have found that out was before, not after, CURE turned the bulldozers loose.

Having promised much and delivered little, one senses that the agency is getting concerned; concerned enough, in fact, to begin talking again about a project which the taxpayers of this city have twice rejected with a resounding "No!" That is, a tax funded or subsidized downtown "convention center;" that being the currently fashionable term for a proposed project that was called a "civic center" during the first election and a "community center" during the second.

The reason, you see, why private enterprise investors have not flocked to the CURE call, according to chairwoman Dianne Ingles, is that a ". . . convention center and parking structure must be built by the public sector as a prerequisite for private development and investment." Twenty developers for the proposed $20 million project (250-room hotel, convention center, and parking structure, with an office building possibly to be added later) have been approached by CURE, Mrs. Ingles said, without any firm offers being received. Can't say we blame them; CURE's track record to date, after all, is not one to inspire confidence or sustained applause.

But, to give CURE its due, it did come up with a new approach this time around. Instead of obligation bonds to finance the proposed convention center and parking structure, which require approval by the voters, CURE is proposing financing via revenue bonding, which does not require voter approval.

And this, chairwoman Ingles emphasized, can be done without raising taxes or jeopardizing the city's mill levy or fiscal stability. For taxes under the plan would not be "raised," you see, merely added; a parking tax, a use tax, a room tax, a food and beverage tax and a ticket tax, to be exact, CURE's chairwoman said.

A tax, to paraphrase the Bard, is still a tax by any other name.

Nation's Press

FTC Still Boondoggling

(Wall Street Journal)

We know a former Federal Trade Commission attorney who, after spending several weeks working on a highly publicized FTC complaint against a major industry, informed his boss that, alas, he couldn't put together much of a case and recommended dropping it altogether. "That's okay," said his superior. "Go ahead with it anyway. It will be good practice for you."

It's a true story. And the case was in fact litigated, with the verdict sustaining the attorney's initial judgment of his own case. We fear that while the idea may not often be so clearly expressed, this kind of thing goes on all the time, with the public having to pay twice for the on-the-job training of young government lawyers and their supporting staffs. We pay once as taxpayers, directly paying the salaries and overhead of the administrative and judicial parties involved, and again as consumers when the industries used as guinea pigs in these federal field exercises pass on the bills for their lawyers and accountants in the form of higher consumer prices.

A flagrant current example of FTC boondoggling is the effort of its Bureau of Competition to force the automobile industry to stop manufacturing spare body parts. That the whole idea is ridiculous has been certified by none other than the FTC's own Office of Policy Planning and Evaluation, which has been trying to get the investigation scrapped since its inception. In a report to the full commission last January, OPPE Director Wesley Liebeler estimated that in the unlikely event the FTC were successful, the consumer prices of automotive crash parts would rise by 150 percent to 580 percent.

The simple notion behind the FTC's drive is that General Motors, say, has a monopoly in the production and sale of spare fenders and hoods for 1972 Pontiacs. Monopolies are bad and mean higher consumer prices, right? Competition is good and means lower consumer prices, right? If GM would stop making fenders and hoods for 1972 Pontiacs, and instead rent its tools and dies to anyone who wanted to get into the business, the marketplace would soon be swarming with clever entrepreneurs stamping out 1972 Pontiac fenders and hoods. Right?

The starting assumption is wrong. General Motors competes with Ford, Chrysler, Volkswagen and all the others on the production of crash parts even though the parts are not interchangeable. If any one manufacturer charged monopoly rents on spare parts, insurance rates would soar for those models, used cars would lose market value and new car customers would shift to other models.

If the FTC were successful, imports would enjoy an immediate competitive advantage. Indeed, probably the only way the cost of domestic crash parts could be held to an increase of only 150 percent is if General Motors would allow the independents to come into its plants at night and use GM machinery to stamp out the fenders.

Still, the FTC doggedly pursues its goal. Having invested so many tax dollars and man hours on this boondoggle, and by now realizing it would be laughed out of court, the Bureau of Competition is trying to snatch a face-saving consent decree from Detroit that might only push prices up by 50 percent or so. How much neater and cleaner it would be if the commission simply wrote off the whole project to experience.

Point of Revolution Obscured at Our Peril

By DR. GEORGE C. ROCHE III
President Hillsdale College, Michigan

On the eve of our Bicentennial we continue to hear a great deal of conversation concerning the nature of the American Revolution. All too often, such discussion describes the eighteenth century as an age of revolution, an age in which the major upheavals in France and America are treated as two essentially similar social revolutions. This obscures an important point that Americans today overlook at their great peril.

Since both the French and American Revolutions occurred in the late eighteenth century, and since both the French and American experiences are termed "revolutions," it is all too easy to jump to the conclusion that both events were manifestations of a single set of ideas. Nothing could be further from the truth. The French and American Revolutions are completely at variance in their widely differing attitudes toward law and order, property, the individual, the role of governmental authority, and the place for religious faith as the foundation of civil society. To clarify the point, it is helpful to recall the differences between "Anglican" and "Gallican" liberty. As Francis Lieber, the nineteenth-century German-American political thinker described the difference in an 1842 newspaper editorial:

"Gallician liberty is sought in the government and, according to an Anglican point of view, it is looked for in a wrong place, where it cannot be found. Necessary consequences of the Gallican view are, that the French looked for the highest degree of political civilization in organization, that is, in the highest degree of interference by public power. The question whether this interference be despotism or liberty is decided solely by the fact who interferes, and for the benefit of which class the interference takes place, while according to the Anglican view, this interference would always be either absolutism or aristocracy. . . ."

Phrased in other words, the French Revolution and the American Revolution are diametrically opposed answers to the same question: Is the highest value to be found in a society emphasizing the God-given integrity of individual men, or in a society emphasizing the collective will, a collective will which attributes to itself its own divine sanction?

In any comparison between the French and American Revolution, it is immediately clear that the American Revolution was primarily concerned with conserving and further enhancing an evolutionary structure of Anglican liberty. The American Revolution was turning back to previously held individual rights and governmental limitations (emphasizing the traditional rights of Englishmen); it was middle-class and property-conscious in its leadership, therefore being anything but class-oriented, as was the French Revolution; finally, the aftermath of the American Revolution produced a constitution based upon property rights, upon republican government, and upon the restriction of governmental interference in the private sector, even when that interference takes place in the name of "majority action."

The French Revolution, on the other hand, was radical and Gallician in nature in that: It demonstrated a willingness to overturn and destroy the existing order, in the Terror and in the radical legislation passed during the period; its appeal was strictly in terms of class against class; finally, its aftermath was mass-oriented in repeated rounds of dictatorship alternating with mob action, as, for example, in Napoleon, Napoleon III, the Paris Commune, and similar political aberrations.

Any comparison of the two revolutions demonstrates a basic difference in the original intent, the course, the leadership, and the aftermath of the revolutions.

Edmund Burke was among the first to see the vital distinction between the American and French Revolutions and to sense the danger to human freedom implicit in the French experiment. Grounded in the tradition of Cicero and Aquinas, Burke understood the necessity of a religious foundation for Natural Law. He drew upon the heritage of Western man's experience in the handling of power, and warned that a society which would not recognize God as its sovereign and which elevated man to a pretension as ruler of the universe would ultimately center such terrible power in the state that individual man would be degraded beyond recognition.

Burke saw, perhaps more clearly than any other single individual of his time, the role of the American Revolution as the defender of the traditions of Western civilization, just as he saw in the French Revolution an assault upon those same traditions.

In the Age of Revolution, the battle lines became more sharply drawn between those who espoused the Western tradition, with its emphasis upon Natural Law, the individual, and limitations of governmental authority, and those who wished to destroy the Western tradition, substituting in its place the omnipotent state, exercising unlimited power derived not from God, but from man. The history of the Western world during the past two hundred years is the history of these two mutually antagonistic systems in their confrontation, one with the other.

And the confrontation continues today.

Detente Euphoria and Now the Rehabilitators

By M. STANTON EVANS

Washington — One major byproduct of the blooming euphoria over "detente" is the attempted rehabilitation of Communist agents, fellow travelers and pliable innocents brought to justice in the epoch of the cold war, now presumably over and done with.

The object of this exercise is plain enough on the face of it, and it seems to be succeeding: Not only to vindicate the individuals netted in various internal security cases, but to expunge all trace of national memory concerning Communist machinations against the well-being of the United States. In good Orwellian fashion, we are to forget that there is or ever has been a Communist conspiracy devoted to espionage and policy subversion inside the American government.

In this connection, successful efforts have been made to refurbish a number of so-called "China hands" of the 1940s, who played a crucial role in advancing the cause of Mao Tse-tung and turning U.S. policy against the Chinese Nationalists. In recent months, several of these worthies, thoroughly exposed in the Senate's hearings on the Institute of Pacific Relations, have been touted again as authentic experts, their past performance funneled conveniently down the memory hole.

Now this exercise is moving toward a logical apex—the attempted rehabilitation of Alger Hiss. When this dapper Establishmentarian was convicted of perjury for denying he had passed official documents to Communist courier Whittaker Chambers, the sky fell in for credulous liberals, and the fact of Communist espionage and policy subversion was res adjudicata. As long as the verdict stands, the reality of the Communist threat is incontestably part of the official record.

So by degrees an effort is being made to undo the Hiss conviction, an effort in which Hiss himself has been spasmodically engaged for the past two decades and which is currently gathering new momentum. And because the details are by now quite ancient and certain leftward civil liberties-types adept at throwing dust into the public eye, it should not be assumed that this improbable enterprise will necessarily be a failure.

It is encouraging to see, therefore, an excellent discussion of this famous case by Prof. Irving Younger in the current issue of Commentary magazine. Younger is a professor of trial techniques at Cornell, and has served as a trial attorney and as a New York City judge. Commentary, of course, is the influential monthly magazine of the American Jewish Committee, solidly anti-Communist but generally liberal in its orientation and not lightly to be accused of "witch-hunting."

Younger's article carefully reviews the record of the various hearings and trials in which the testimony of Hiss and Chambers was sorted out, and examines the major items of evidence that went to secure Hiss' conviction. Most crucial of these, he notes, were the transactions by which Hiss and Chambers exchanged expensive gifts (an Oriental rug and an automobile), establishing a much closer link than the vague acquaintance posited by Hiss, and the State Department documents in Chambers' possession that had been typed on Hiss' typewriter. The net of it all, Younger concludes, is that Hiss was definitely guilty as charged.

For those who want to keep perspective on the cold war, Younger's article is recommended reading. And for those who want to pursue the subject even further, his article may be amplified by referring to Chambers' magisterial "Witness," and Ralph de Toledano's and Victor Lasky's "Seeds of Treason." The Communist effort to penetrate our government is grim reality, and we erase that fact from recollection at our peril.

UNLICENSED CHILD CARE HOMES UNLAWFUL

We, the Colorado Springs Licensed Day Care Mothers' Association, think your column is great. We would like to bring to the attention of the un-licensed people who are advertising for babysitting, however, that it is against the law to care for children without a state license. This is a federal law.

If they will just get in touch with a licensing caseworker at the Welfare Department, they will be more than happy to tell them how to become licensed. It is a very simple process. Unlicensed sitters are liable for being sued in case something should happen to the child. Some unlicensed homes are not safe for children and should be checked by a social worker for the safety of the children. So, please, for the sake of day-care mothers and the safety of children, please print this information.

OPAL RAE RHOTEN

OPPOSE GOVERNMENT PROGRAMS ON PRINCIPLE

Many free market economists have shown that government programs only cause economic distortions and do not have the beneficial results they were intended to have. But if you oppose the government programs only on those grounds, you are placing your right to your property on an equal moral footing with those who wish to forcibly deprive you of your life and property. The debate is then reduced to quibbling over whether the program will work or whose program will work best.

Government programs should be opposed on the grounds that everyone has a right to his life, liberty and property and be free from the coercive acts of others. This right is not placed on a determination of whether others can find what they consider a better or more economical way to manage your life and property.

To get a clearer picture, let's reduce the dimensions to a magnitude that is easier to perceive. Suppose an individual devised a neighborhood project that he felt would improve the economic well-being of the neighborhood, but he required a financial contribution from his neighbor. If he took a gun and went to collect from his neighbor, the act would be recognized as theft. The act would be opposed on the grounds that theft is wrong no matter what good intentions are planned for the loot. The same should be true of government programs, the numbers are different, but the principle is the same.

BOB MURPHY

GET BETTER SOON

After reading Mr. G. M. Roller's letter to me of November 1, 1975, I can only conclude that his initials stand for General Motors and that his nickname is "Steam."

In my letter of October 27, 1975, I asked an objective question based on fact as established by the Supreme Court of the United States. While his letter was extremely amusing, the multitude of accusations and assumptions in no way equate to factual evidence and certainly don't answer my original question: Why did Mr. Cox acquiesce to Nixon's firing him when there was a Supreme Court precedent indicating that the former president did not have the authority to do so?

As to my "own house of cards," I'm afraid he missed the mark again!

INMATE ON GUN CONTROLS

I have heard many announcements over the news media in favor of gun control.

I would like to go on record as being against gun control; my reasons are listed below:

1. Gun control does not control crime, nor does it deprive the criminal of the use of a gun.

As substantiation, I point to the gun-related crimes of Japan and England, where private ownership of handguns is almost entirely prohibited. I also wish to point to New York State, which has had stringent gun controls for years, but this has not lowered their crime rate.

2. Gun control requires the formation of another bureaucracy to administer this program, the cost of which burdens the already overloaded taxpayer, as evidenced by the rifle and shotgun registering requirements of New York City a few years ago.

3. In those countries which prohibit the private ownership of weapons, terrorists seem to be able to procure weapons and impose their wills upon the law-abiding citizens.

4. Gun control requirements will not be administered fairly nor correctly, depending upon the views and interpretations and whims of the enforcing agency.

5. There will be exceptions, favoring the wealthy, influential and government personnel.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into whatever will add to present security instead of spending so much money for entertainment that isn't worth two figs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Any risks taken where credit or career matters are concerned can prove very costly now. Gain the support of associates skillfully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't make radical changes in a.m. Later you can forge ahead. Getting the favor of all who have power over your affairs is important.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Strive for more goodwill from pals without getting too involved in their affairs. A new approach to some personal aim can bring success.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have much common sense, but will waiver between the idealistic and the practical if not given the right courses in school and the diet is not right, the home environment not ideal, so make sure that all such are righted. There is fine ability at organization here, so slant the education thusly. Give an opportunity to choose own religion and types of sports.

6. There are many private citizens who have prevented crimes and-or apprehended criminals with their private weapons.

7. Registration records are—can be used for confiscation—denial.

8. It seems weird to me that intelligent people advocate gun control to lower the crime rate, instead of advocating for control of the criminal.

9. Only a government that fears its population would desire to disarm its population. I point to the totalitarian countries.

10. Last and most important: The right to bear arms is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. I quote Amendment Two:

"A well regulated militia, being necessary to a free state, the Right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

It would seem to me that the writers of our constitution deemed the right to keep and bear arms extremely important because it is the Second Amendment that was inserted in our constitution.

The thing that really scares me is, if one of the rights contained in the Bill of Rights can be taken away, how long will it be before someone decides that we don't need the other rights guaranteed by our constitution?

It is the opinion of this writer that the issue of gun control is not the main point but the real point is, can the rights guaranteed by the Bill of Rights be taken away? This writer maintains that our rights cannot be taken away. If we allow Congress to remove one of the rights considered necessary to the maintenance of a democracy, then we have lost our democracy and freedom.

I have listened and read the opinions of those for gun control in and over the mass news media. Will you have the fairness to present my views.

Strikers Say They Were Threatened

Wildcat strikers, who have been picketing for the past 13 weeks at Superior Sanitation, were victims of an alleged armed threat Tuesday.

According to Richard Cuevas, spokesman for the striking group that was previously fired, the strikers were calling working Superior employes "scabs," the term for a person who refuses to join a union.

Two male employes of Superior told them "not to go away, that they would be back in half an hour," Cuevas told the Gazette Telegraph Wednesday.

"They went home and got guns, a rifle and a pistol," Cuevas said. Then someone called the police, who arrived "coming in from all directions," with more cars than Cuevas said he could count.

"One guy (Superior employe) pointed a rifle at the picket line and the other guy (also an employe) went inside with a 357 Magnum pistol.

"One of the policemen made the statement he saw the man with the pistol go into the building," Cuevas said.

Cuevas said police then searched the building and no weapon was found.

"Then one of the workers told the policeman that I also had a gun. I volunteered to have my car searched. He did search and found no weapons. I did not have a gun."

Cuevas said that he was surprised by the armed threat, since the Teamsters attorney had started negotiations with Superior's attorney the same day, Tuesday.

The police asked Cuevas if he wanted to sign a statement pressing charges, and Cuevas said "definitely," and did so.

The Teamsters Union has filed a suit against Superior for alleged unfair labor practices. The National Labor Relations Board is currently investigating the situation.

FLANNEL FLASHBACK

NEW YORK (AP) — Gray flannel suits are back in vogue as an establishment business uniform, notes men's fashion expert Bill Gale in the 25th anniversary issue of Signature magazine, thus completing a full circle that began in 1950 when the "dressed-down" look of gray flannel was first introduced.

During the past quarter century, American men have worn anything and everything to the office, from "silhouette" continental suits to Bermuda shorts, to brocaded Edwardian suits, the magazine reports.

Man Pleads Guilty to Theft

Richard Berger pleaded guilty in district court Wednesday to theft, and Judge Patrick M. Hinton set Nov. 21 for sentencing.

Berger, 18, of 1615 Bonita Drive, is charged with stealing a car Sept. 10 belonging to Ethel White, of 1805 Alamo Ave.

Three Firemen Are Promoted

Three promotions were announced recently in the Colorado Springs Fire Department.

Fire Chief Ralph Nice said William Sopp was promoted to captain, William Kennedy to lieutenant and John Schumaker to driver-engineer.

The fire department has 232 uniformed personnel and 14 civilians. The uniformed strength is one short of that authorized.

Independence Pass To Close Wednesday

Independence Pass will be closed for the season Wednesday, a little earlier than usual, according to Jack Coan of the Salida office of the Colorado State Highway Division.

The early closure is for repairs to bridges along the highway, according to Coan.

'All in the Family' Show Reported at Top Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "All in the Family," bumped from its perch atop the ratings poll only twice in seven weeks this season, was right back on top last week, according to A.C. Nielsen Co. estimates.

The Nielsen audience count, made public Tuesday, contained good news for CBS, whose programs accounted for half of the 20 most-watched evening shows on TV in the week ending Nov. 2, according to the ratings.

But the Nielsens had bad news for "Barbary Coast" and "Mobile One," two low-rated programs ABC permanently shifted to new evenings last week in hope the switch might increase their audiences. It didn't.

The two series again wound up among the week's lowest-rated programs, according to Nielsen estimates.

According to the ratings, the 20 most-popular shows last week were "All in the Family" and "Phyllis" (both CBS); "Sanford and Son" (NBC); "Charlie Brown Special," "Rhoda," "Maude," "The Waltons" and "The French Connection" (all CBS); "The Rookies," "Six Million Dollar Man" and "Marcus Welby" (all ABC); "Good Times" (CBS); "Little House on the Prairie" (NBC); "Starsky and Hutch" (ABC); "Perry Como Special" (CBS); "Chico and the Man" (NBC); "ABC Sunday Night Movie"; "ABC Friday Night Movie"; "NFL Monday Night Football" (ABC); and "Mary Tyler Moore" (CBS).

General Blasts 'Classic' U.S. Blunder in Mideast

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Gen. Daniel O. Graham, retiring as head of the Defense Intelligence Agency, says the failure of U.S. analysts to predict the 1973 Arab attack on Israel was "a classic blunder."

"The entire intelligence community blew that one," Graham said. "DIA was as guilty as any of the other agencies."

Graham, in an interview Tuesday, also said he is retiring from the Army because President Ford fired Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger.

"I'm a Schlesinger man," said Graham. He denied he was asked to retire or that he is "the victim of any house-cleaning."

Graham stopped short of saying he is retiring in protest, but he said he acted out of "great loyalty" to Schlesinger and Central Intelligence Agency Director William E. Colby, who also lost his job in a shakeup ordered by Ford.

He also stopped short of any overt criticism of Ford or Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, whom many in the Pentagon blame for Schlesinger's ouster.

Graham, an intelligence specialist for much of his 29-year military career, was serving at the CIA at the time of the 1973 Yom Kippur war.

Some critics have blamed the U.S. intelligence community for not alerting top American officials to the imminence of the Egyptian-Syrian attack, which also surprised Israeli intelligence.

"We had the basic information," Graham said. "We should have called it, but we didn't."

The general said it wasn't the gatherers of information who were at fault, "it was the analysts here in Washington."

A major cause of the failure, Graham said, was an unusual circumstance in which both the hawks and doves in the intelligence community felt there would be no war in the Middle East at that time.

The doves believed Egytian President Anwar Sadat and other key Arab leaders were "rational men" who would not use military power to settle disputes, Graham said.

"The hawks said the Arabs can't beat the Israelis, so they won't go to war," the DIA chief added.

"The doves were in there with the hawks and all of us came to the same opinion from different standpoints."

Schlesinger brought Graham back to the Pentagon in September 1974 to head the DIA.

Graham said the defense agency has escaped the kind of congressional attacks which have been leveled at the CIA and National Security Agency for such acts as opening mail and allegedly plotting assassinations.

"It's rather dullsville over here," Graham said. "I don't have any covert operations or espionage. We just produce basic intelligence."

American Fashionplates

George Washington wore one. So did John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, and many fashionable men of colonial America. In fact, an 18th Century male city-dweller wouldn't go out without one. The fashion came in many forms during this period, and the styles had such names as "grave full-bottom," "giddy feather-top," and "fox tail." Just 100 years before the American Revolution began, they were denounced by the Massachusetts government and decried by ministers as "horrid bushes of vanity." It was an expensive fad for American colonials. One of these stylish items cost as much as a hat, coat, shirt, breeches and shoes.

DO YOU KNOW — What was this 18th Century fashion fad?

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Note Manuel's fascinating cases of plants that seemed to be influenced by telepathy! Scientists don't deny facts but they may offer different explanations! How do you explain "green thumbs?"

CASE F-616: Manuel Z., aged 20, is a psychology major at college.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I have been reading about some phenomena that seem even stranger than extra sensory perception (ESP).

"A lie detector expert named Cleve Backster hooked one of his polygraph instruments to a green plant to see if vegetation would show any signs of stress.

"Then he poured some water on the plant and, though it didn't register the human evidence of stress, the lie detector did show some changes.

"Now Backster and an electronics specialist named Pierre Sauvin are suggesting that human thoughts will influence flowering potted plants and other vegetation.

"In fact, they claim they can concentrate on a thought and make a green plant activate an electric 'sensor' that will run a toy train or open a distant garage door.

"Dr. Crane, you were a Research Scientist for 5 years with the National Research Council and the Carnegie Institution of Washington, D.C., so what do you think of these reports?"

DOUBTING THOMAS

A true scientist prefers to see the phenomena with his own eyes or other sense organs instead of relying on hearsay.

Facts are facts, however, so if a man sitting next to a green plant can produce such remarkable effects, and there were no magician's hocus pocus involved, then we could start with the facts as quoted by Manuel.

Even then, however, the plant's reaction might not be due to telepathy but to such physical factors as the heat of a man's body as he sits beside the potted plant.

Maybe the exhaled moisture and carbon monoxide could be the explanation.

Or the delayed chemical reaction of the soil when a glass of water was poured on the plant.

On the TV series called Kojak, many of you have watched Kojak's bushy haired, plump brother "talking" to his green plants.

Some people thus believe that their conversation soothes green plants, as by some mysterious influence on chlorophyl, etc.

Admittedly, too, many gardeners have what is popularly called a "green thumb," meaning, they can make flowers and vegetables grow luxuriantly, while others of the same family, using the same soil and seeds, then see their plants shrivel away.

Dogs, too, as well as horses, will become belligerent with some people though be meek and docile with others. Why?

Is it due to the odor emitted by people who fear dogs and horses or is it the timid, irresolute tones and behavior?

My wife has both a "green thumb" and also a winning way with animals of all sorts, for the latter seem to "sense" her fondness for them.

Biblical Daniel thus sat unharmed in the den of hungry lions and when Jesus verbally condemned the fruitless fig tree, the Bible says it quickly withered away (Matthew, Ch. 21)!

First National New Small Firm Service

The First National Bank has announced a new service designed primarily for small to medium size firms, according to Ken Olin-president and chief executive officer.

Affective Monday First National will offer commercial savings accounts to corporations, partnerships, and other profit-making organizations up to a maximum of $150,000 per depositor.

By taking advantage of a change in Federal Reserve regulations, which now authorizes commercial banks to offer savings accounts to previously excluded organizations, the bank hopes the service will provide those firms an additional money management tool.

The service is simple and is explained as follows Olin said.

1. The firm must have a checking account at First National Bank (present customers will use their existing account).

2. The firm then opens a regular 5 percent savings account in the same name as the checking account.

3. The firm continues to make deposits and draws checks on its checking account as usual. When the firm feels it has excess cash in the checking account and wishes to make a transfer to savings, it can notifiy the bank to make the necessary transfer.

4. When the firm feels it has a need for funds, it orders the bank to transfer some or all of the funds back into the checking account.

"In the past, the small and medium size businesses did not have a way of investing $5,000, $10,000 or even $30,000 for short periods of time," says Gary Bradley-vice president and senior commercial loan officer. "Most money market instruments require larger minimum investments and fixed maturities.

We are pleased to be able to offer this service and to assist businessmen in optimizing their cash management," Olin said.

GEFCO Reports Sharp Gains In Earnings

Government Employes Financial Corp. (GEFCO) a consumer finance and industrial banking firm reported third quarter net income of $682,365, more than a four-fold increase over earnings of $122,072 for the comparable period 1974.

Ernest L. Marks, president, reported net income of $1,874,307 for the first nine months of 1975 compared with $555,409 for the first three quarters of the prior year and $808,862 for all of 1974.

Year to date earnings per share were $1.11 (fully diluted) compared to $.34 for the similar period in 1974.

Through September 30,1975, finance volume totaled $131,686,260 compared with $130,491,107 for the first nine months of the prior year.

Volume for the third quarter totaled a record $52,617,776, an 8.4 percent increase over the third quarter 1974.

Marks also reported significant growth in savings deposits in GEFCO's $34.8 million as of Sept. 30, 1975.

Excluding the provision for losses and interest and debt expense, operating expenses were $6,541,814 or 29.2 percent of gross income compared with $6,403,083 or 32.0 percent of gross income for the same period of 1974.

Credit losses, due to continuing adverse effects of an unstable economy, were higher than a year ago, reflecting primarily a higher incidence of personal bankruptices. However, interest and debt expense declined substantially to $8,770,389 (39.1 percent of gross income) compared to $10,317,928 (51.5 percent of gross income) a year earlier.

International Expands Scout Line for 1976

For a number of years, the International Scout has won many outdoors friends for the ruggedness of its construction and ease of operation.

Now International has diversified its Scout line with the introduction of three new models for 1976: The Scout II, the Scout Terra pickup truck, and the Scout Traveler closed-in cargo carrier with a lift-up back hatch for easy loading.

George Alderman, International dealer on the Garden of the Gods Road and in Motor City, describes the new Scout pickup as "a real packhorse for work and pleasure." He reports the Scout Terra is the only mid-size pickup truck on the market. Among its innovations is a dashboard pullout rod which makes switching into four-wheel drive easy and efficient, without having to go outside the cab. Pushing in the rod disengages the four-wheel drive instantly for easier cruising on the highway, thus saving wear on the front wheel components, because the engine then does not turn the mechanical parts of the front axle, but lets the front wheels roll free.

Another handy addition is that the two-speed transfer case increases the operating range of the selective four-wheel drive.

The International Terra pickup is described by Alderman as: "Here is the pickup that offers the right balance of looks and practicality. Terra has a packhorse capability because it has a six-foot bed to load your gear, plus 11 cubic feet behind the front seat. And Terra's selective four-wheel drive plus performance-engineered suspension tames any terrain. But Terra is an ideal commuter or delivery vehicle as well. It offers a smooth-riding 118-inch wheelbase and the practicality of standard two-wheel drive. Terra's balanced design makes it good looking and fun to drive.

The Scout Traveler is also in the Scout family line, with a larger space than the original Scout, and is offered with the dashboard mounted four-wheel drive control, a two-speed transfer case to increase the four-wheel drive operating range, or with a three-speed automatic transmission for shiftless cruising. Various interior trim is optional, as well as bucket seats.

The Scout Traveler with its closed body, is built on a 118-inch wheelbase to give a smooth, comfortable ride, and offers a choice of engines that cruise effortlessly all day. One of the unique features is the fingertip-lift hatchback, which makes loading easy. When the optional rear seat is down, the Scout Traveler offers a fully enclosed cargo area that is six feet long.

The Scout II offers similar conveniences in a compact package. The Scouts come also, of course, with such luxury items as power steering with a tilt wheel, electric winch and air conditioning, among other options.

NEW SCOUT PICKUP — International is introducing an all-new pickup, the Scout Terra, described as the only mid-size pickup on the market, now on view at the International dealer on the Garden of the Gods Road and in Motor City. The pickup has four-wheel drive.

SCOUT TRAVELER — A mid-size closed-in cargo carrier new for the 1976 automobile lineup is the Scout Traveler, offered at the International dealer on the Garden of the Gods Road and in Motor City. The Scout Traveler comes with many luxury options. The Traveler features four-wheel drive.

Income Drop Reported by Golden Cycle

Golden Cycle Corp. (AMEX) Tuesday reported net income of $416,000 or $.31 per share on revenue of $23,182,000 for the third quarter ending Sept. 30, 1975.

This compares with net income of $765,000 or $.58 per share and revenue of $27,174,000 in the similar period last year.

For the first nine months of 1974, the company had net income of $279,000 or $.21 per share with revenue of 258,073,000. In the nine months a year ago, the company had net income of $1,023,000 or $.78 per share and revenue of $58,986,000.

William T. Wells, chairman, president and chief executive officer, said the company's Transportation division, its largest operating entity, did well internationally in the third quarter although its domestic household goods moving business continued to reflect the slow down affecting the entire industry.

Because the domestic portion of the business is down the company for the first time is not in a position to fully utilize its foreign tax credit, he noted.

The Land division's previously announced contract to exchange a 16,172-acre ranch in Colorado for a 8,858-acre income-producing farm in Kansas known as the Barron property, is scheduled to close in mid-Deber.

Shortly thereafter, 4,960 acres of the Barron property will be sold by Golden Cycle to Preisser Guy Farms, as previously announced, for $2.2 million, with an initial cash payment of $250,000.

Golden Cycle and Texasgulf, Inc. continue to move toward a joint venture for the development of Golden Cycle's gold mining properties in Cripple Creek, Colorado, with the possibility of a firm agreement before the end of November, according to Wells.

Under the terms of a letter of intent, which is subject to a definitive agreement, Texasgulf would commit substantial sums to the exploration and development of the mining properties In the event both parties exercise the options which will be available to them, Texasgulf would be the senior partner in the venture with a 60 percent interest and Golden Cycle will own the remaining 40 percent.

Financial Consequence Of Urban Crisis Vital

By ELIOT JANEWAY

"Millions for defense but not one cent for tribute" is a familiar fight slogan in the great tradation of American independence It expresses more than a scrappy tough - mindedness; it is practical as well.

A contemporary variant of this principle is ready to be put to work to break the logjam in America's sore and swollen cities. In fact, it's overdue. Billions of dollars, are being squandered in home relief — "welfare" is the institutionalized term for it — to the needy and independent, but not one cent is being invested in building new social foundations on which this blight of the cities can be outgrown.

The urban crisis has now been festering to the point of precipitating a first-class financial panic. The threat of it is a signal that the time has come to start thinking about new solutions to the problem instead of just continuing to throw more money at the same victimized people. The financial consequences of the urban crisis have become too important to be left to the financiers.

Providentially, a different approach has been suggested by sociologist Dr. Bruno Bettelheim, the pioneering practitioner of reclamation techniques for the psychologically wounded at the University of Chicago. The approach suggested by Dr. Bettelheim is not new. His idea is just six years young; nevertheless, its time has come.

In an interview in this column in 1969, Dr. Bettelheim drew on the rudiments of geography in devising his idea for applying the rules of sociology to the urban crisis.

He pointed out that the American states boasting the biggest beckoning frontiers are hampered by having the smallest populations. Conversely, the smallest states are burdened with the greatest population congestion.

Until now, people with median incomes or better have been the ones taking advantage of opportunities to relocate from the country's congested areas, which are poor in natural resources, to its rich, undeveloped inland empires. Dr. Bettelheim's thinking calls for a large-scale redistribution of population to alleviate the social pressures and fiscal problems that haunt concentrations of the population with sub-median incomes or none at all.

Picking up families on welfare in New York and just transplanting them en masse to New Mexico is not the answer. But asking what needs to be done to prepare the virgin lands of the West to absorb a planned population shift is the practical approach to a workable answer.

Meanwhile, it makes no sense to waste dollars in keeping New York populated with slum dwellers while not using dollars to prepare New Mexico to overcome the disadvantages of being underpopulated.

Bettelheim's concept targets the largest states that are hampered by the smallest population as the "sociological soil" in which to plant "seed money" for the building of new communities. A plan for orderly relocation offers the only long-term hope for the sick cities that are unable to support their surplus poor.

When the Jesuit Fathers established their schools in the 18th century, they stressed that any child whom they could guide for the first five formative years would be influenced by their teachings for life. The scandal of slum life in America suggests a sinister twist to this dictum; any child exposed for five years to an overcrowded urban slum is likely to graduate into a lifetime of ignorance, malnutrition and crime.

No young people who fall off the educational escalator today can be expected to master the skills that are a precondition of employment in our advanced technological age.

Financiers think in terms of rates of change from a constant base. But merely calculating percentage cutbacks in relief costs is not the answer to the welfare tangle or to the chain reaction of debt default. A breakthrough into a new social structure is needed.

But the private sector is not about to start the investment w,eels in motion to help construct that structure. Until the aura of uncertainty over the fiscal sector is clarified, more of the same government spending which depletes treasuries, and borrowing from tired markets, which sandbags markets, will make no new start either.

Engineering new investigational vehicles to expand America's underpopulated inland frontiers will make a new start. The best way to reduce the welfare load is to build a new environment into which welfare clients can be transplanted and reconditioned to the work effort.

Since it is believed cars waste gasoline at slow speeds, it has been suggested that drivers who must drive to work in heavy traffic will find car pools the least expensive and troublesome way to commute.

Gazette Telegraph Missing? Dial 632 - 5511 before 8 p.m. weekdays: 2 p.m. weekends. Canon City 1-784-3493.

ARE YOU USING YOUR BUSINESS PHONE LIKE A HOME PHONE?

When you call someone on a Saturday afternoon, you're only talking. When you call someone on a working day, you're putting money on the line.

We think that difference calls for an education on how to use the business phone profitably.

So we've developed a Long Distance communications course called Phone Power that teaches you how to cut the cost of a sales call, how to reach more and better prospects, how to collect painlessly on overdue accounts, and more.

This is how it works.

We have marketing consultants called Phone Power Specialists who come to you and analyze your present operating methods. Then they can recommend and adapt to your needs one or more of the eight separate programs that make up Phone Power. Then they teach your employees how to put Phone Power into practice.

The course is tuition-free.

We're willing to make this investment because we know that Phone Power techniques will become so profitable to you that you'll just naturally increase your use of Long Distance.

If you're like most people who have profited from Phone Power, you're ready and willing to modify your present business methods. You're contacting other businesses outside your own immediate area, and you're probably enjoying gross sales in excess of one-half million dollars. If you fit this profile, you and Phone Power were made for each other.

If you want to learn to use your business telephone like the sales force it was meant to be, we have just the school for you.

Patman Leading Fight To Audit Nation's Federal Reserve System

Lost in the furror over New York City's precarious finances, and those of other municipalities as well, is an effort in Washington to give the public a closer look at the Federal Reserve Board.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., ranking member of the House Committee on Banking, Currency and Housing, is leading what has been a lonely fight to have a full-scale audit of the Federal Reserve System by the General Accounting Office.

The bill that would direct that, H.R. 7590, is entangled in the House Rules Committee where a 9-6 vote earlier this fall indefinitely postponed its consideration.

One of the reasons cited by Patman in attempting to get further action on the bill is the 1974 election. In remarks printed in the Congressional Record of Oct. 2, Patman declared, "The 94th Congress was elected on a platform calling for open government and an end to secrecy.

"We have promised full accountabilty by the federal bureaucracy and we have pledged to update and upgrade our oversight activities."

He said that the Federal Reserve System:

—Handles more than $30 trillion annually in transactions.

—Has access to more than $6 billion of tax funds each year.

—Does not come to Congress each year for appropriations and therefore there is no effective check on its activities.

— Has almost 20 percent of the nation's debt in the portfolio of its Federal Open Market Committee in the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

Patman declared, "This portfolio currently ranges in the vicinity of $90 billion and it is composed of bonds which have been purchsed with the credit of the United States.

"These bonds have been paid for once and they should be canceled and subtracted from the national debt.

"Instead, the Federal Reserve continues to draw interest on the bonds, to the tune of $6 billion annually, and the Congress has only the vagest notion of how this money is handled and how the operations are carried out."

2 Buildings Proposed for New EPCC

Architect Clifford Nakata told the El Paso Community College Board Wednesday that a two building configuration is the most feasible for the new campus site at Ft. Carson.

The final decision on the plan probably won't be made, however, until several studies are made on the site, the major study being a surface and subsurface drainage study.

The two building configuration includes a three story academic building and a one story vocational building. Nakata said he doesn't know how many square feet each building would be separately but the two together would comprise 279,000 square feet.

The vocational building, he said, will be designed to take care of the high noise level generated by the vocational courses. The academic area will be designed for quiet, he said.

"The two building configuration probably can meet all the requirements of the budget and the educational program," Nakata said.

The building plan was based on a program plan for 3,500 full time equivalent students.

Nakata said the soil investigation study of the site will be conducted shortly.

Part of Robbery Team Killed in Las Vegas

A man who took part in the May 11, 1975, armed robbery of the Montgomery Ward store in Colorado Springs, and turned state's evidence which resulted in the conviction of a husband and wife, was found shotgunned to death near Las Vegas, Nev., on Oct. 21.

The man was identified as William Singley of 626 N. Franklin St. Singley and Lawrence and Norma Shults of rural Colorado Springs were arrested in connection with the $12,000 holdup.

Lawrence and Norma Shults have been convicted of the crime and the wife was sentenced to the women's penitentiary in Canon City. Lawrence Shults, however, had disappeared after posting bond and has not been found.

Singley was never brought to trail for the robbery, according to Gazette Telegraph sources, because he aided the prosecution in the Shults' trial. He was, however, due to be extradited to Vermont on a stolen car warrant.

Colorado Springs police had received a tip on Oct. 19 that Singley had been murdered on July 30th and his body hidden in a remote desert area about 30 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

Colorado Springs police notifed Las Vegas authorities and the body was found on Oct. 21. Singley had been shot in the face with a shotgun and his body buried in the desert.

Positive idenitfication of the body was not made until Tuesday.

Authorities said they are looking for a suspect in the case, but refused to identify him because he had not been indicted in connection with the murder.

UNDESIRABLE — The Streetcar Named Desire, made famous by Tennessee Williams in a Broadway play by that name, stands on a wet street in downtown New Orleans, faded and worn from neglect. Open Vote Is Praised By Edwards

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gov. Edwin Edwards says his overwhelming re-election by more than 60 per cent of the vote in the state's first election under its new open election law "speaks well for the people of Louisiana."

I think it is a great credit to the people of Louisiana that they have understood and appreciated what we have tried to do," Edwards said Sunday following his re-election to a second term.

Among the major accomplishments of his administration was a revision of the voluminous state constitution and a reorganization of governmental agencies.

Edwards maintained during his campaign that he wasn't concerned about being defeated or even forced into a runoff. The returns bore out his optimism.

Edwards' vote total was almost 63 per cent. His nearest challenger was state Sen. Robert Jones, the son of a former governor, with about 24 per cent.

Wade O. Martin, giving up almost certain re-election to a ninth term as secretary of state, ran third with barely 12 per cent of the vote.

More than 70 per cent of the state's 1.7 million voters turned out for the election in which new procedures placed all six gubernatorial candidates on the same ballot regardless of party affiliation.

Four Holdups Reported to Authorities

Four armed robberies occurred between 1 p.m. and 7:25 p.m. Wednesday the last three within one and - a - half hours, according to police.

The first holdup occurred at 1 p.m. at Kohler's Pharmacy, 1733 N. Weber St. A man entered the store with a gun and forced two clerks to fill a bag with various drugs.

Starting at 6 p.m. and ending at 7:25 p.m. authorities investigated three armed robberies.

A man told police he was beaten and robbed outside the Body Shoppe bar, 502 8th St. He said he had been inside the bar and had made arrangements to met one of the go-go dancers at a motel after she got off work.

He said he left the bar at about 6 p.m. and was attacked by four men. He said $304 was taken from his wallet.

At 7:20 p.m. a man robbed the Fill 'Em Fast station at 701 S. 8th St. An employe told police the man walked up from an area behind the cashier's booth and pulled a gun. He took about $100 and escaped.

Five minutes later police were informed of an armed robbery at the Farm Crest store, 2105 W. Colorado Ave. An undetermined amount of cash was taken by a man who threatened an employe with a gun.

Two Women Charged With Armed Robbery

Two women, who allegedly bluffed their way into the motel room of a visitor from Karachi, Pakistan, were charged in district court Wednesday with armed robbery.

They were Elizabeth D. Smith, 22, of 2545 Verde Drive, and Patricia Ann James, 25, of 3341 E. Fountain Blvd.

According to a report, the alleged victim, Mohammad Shabir, was staying at the Holiday Inn, 700 W. Cimarron St., Oct. 28, when the defendants knocked on his door saying they were hotel security officers. Shabir opened the door and they then stabbed and robbed him.

Leonard Perlman, 23, of 21 S. Wahsatch St., apt. 63, was charged with a burglary which happened Saturday at the apartment of Jim McGinnes who lives in the same block.

Legend has it that the North Island of New Zealand was discovered when an octopus stole the bait of a fisherman while fishing near his home in Raiatea. Enraged, he set out in pursuit of the beast and chased it for 2400 miles before he caught it and killed it in the Cook Strait. He returned home to tell his people about the great island he had found.

No Favoring of Drug Industry Seen in Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food and Drug Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said today that his personal year-long investigation turned up no evidence to support employe charges that the agency favors the drug industry.

Schmidt's 909-page report culminated an internal probe of accusations made at a Senate hearing Aug. 15, 1974, by 14 present and former Food and Drug Administration officials.

The commissioner said that "if the sound coming from the hearing suggested a jungle full of tigers to hunt down and kill, what I have found is a reasonably well-manicured lawn, some tabbycats and an amplifier."

There was no immediate response from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D - Mass., who presided at the hearings.

A panel of outside experts assembled by the secretary of health, education and welfare also has been reviewing the accusations but has not written a report yet.

He said he found no evidence that FDA medical officers who review new drug applications were subject to harassment as they had claimed. Schmidt conceded that in some instances they were not properly notified of administrative and personnel changes.

'Like most organizations, large or small, FDA has serious internal problems in communicating . . . ,'' Schmidt said.

Schmidt said he found no evidence of improper drug approvals, an agency bias in favor of approvals, industry domination of the FDA, a pattern of harassment of employes, deliberate misuse of advisory committees, secret policy meetings or attempts to alter FDA documents.

Contrary to allegations that the drug manufacturers run the FDA Bureau of Drugs, Schmidt said he found a "well-documented, sound, institutionalized drug approval process."

There is no evidence, Schmidt added, to support charges that the FDA had approved unsafe drugs for marketing in the United States. Many of those who raised the allegations in the Senate hearing failed to produce documentary evidence to support their allegations, he said.

The nine FDA employes, who had a total of 89 years of service with the agency, had charged their attempts to block approval of new drugs they considered worthless or unsafe were met with official harassment.

Some of them complained during Schmidt's investigation that they were denied full legal rights because their attorney was not given access to drug company trade secrets on which their recommendations were based.

BOTHERED BY BLISTERS

Miss W.T., a 30-year-old travel agent from Columbus, O., writes: "What causes blisters on the feet, and what is the best treatment for them? My feet are bony and I invariably get a crop of painful blisters whenever I am trying to break in a new pair of shoes. And when I have to do a lot of walking even in old, comfortable shoes, I also will get blisters."

Blisters come from pressure or friction. Fluid collects between the inner and outer layers of the skin, and the are becomes very painful, as you will know. Continued friction usually punctures the blister and intensifies the pain.

Infection is sometimes a problem, especially in persons who are diabetic or who have poor circulation. However, blisters normally do not become infected so long as they remain intact. All too often a person will invite infection by puncturing a blister with a pin or needle to allow the watery material to escape. This opening closes within a few hours and locks in any bacteria that may have entered. These bacteria multiply and lead to infection.

A better plan is to wash the lesion with soap and water, sterilize it with alcohol, and cut away the top of the blister with sterilized clippers. Do this only if the blister will break anyway. The open sore should be kept clean and covered with a dressing.

Of course, the most preferable course is to prevent the blister from ever developing. Footwear should be fitted properly. Avoid walking long distances in new shoes. Stockings also are important, and should be of the proper size. Athletes usually avoid blisters by wearing sweat socks over lightweight cotton socks next to the skin.

When going on a sight-seeing tour, or when you know that you are going to be doing a lot of walking, take along a few adhesive bandages. Applying one as soon as an irritated area begins to burn will reduce friction and minimize the chances of developing a blister.

SWELLING ON FOREHEAD

W. L., a 58-year-old carpenter from Washington, D.C., writes: "What would cause a swelling on the forehead right above the eye? Sometimes I get a dull pain there, but I would not consider it a usual headache. The swelling started right after I came down with Bronchitis, and at the time, I thought it might be due to congestion. The bronchitis is long gone, but the swelling remains."

There are several possibilities, depending upon the exact location of the swelling and whether it is hard or soft, and whether it is constant or comes and goes. It could be from a sinus infection or a tumor. However, all unusual swellings or lumps should be seen by a physician.

Mrs. H.D. from Madison, Wis., writes: "I am a healthy 28-year-old mother of two with no health problems except that I have almost constant hunger pangs. Test have ruled out diabetes, ulcer, intestinal disorders and pregnancy. I am just about the right weight, so I don't need to gain weight. Could nerves be causing this hunger?"

So-called hunger pangs often are attributed to emotional factors. You are wise to curb your desire to eat, since this constant feeling of hunger is one reason that so many housewives who are around food all the time become overweight, compulsive eaters. In fact, a recent medical study found that the average housewife eats 18 times a day!

I advise you to find some activity that will get you out of the house on a regular basis and give you something to think about other than your hunger.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

© 1972 by the Chicago Tribune or N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

Why is it that I'm always expecting things to turn out bad-and the usually do? I've come to see. However that the negative attitude is keeping me from enjoying life. Even when I pray, I say to myself, what's the use of playing?. God won't answer! D.R.

It was George Eliot who said that the strength of the donkey mind lies in adopting a course inversely as the arguments urged. Somehow, you have decided that even when you get good vibrations, you're going to "invert" them into pessimism and fear. But since all that is an act of the will, it can be changed.

I have known many people who are inveterate optimists. They habitually look for the bright side, and find it. A good example Biblically of this is the contrast between Philip and Andrew in John 6. When the need for feeding the multitude arose, Philip showed up as a "statistical pessimist." That is, he inferred in verse 7 that there just wasn't money enough for this project. His brother Andrew however, said to Christ: "There's a lad here with five loaves and two fishes." With that show of positive faith, he deserves the title of an "ingenious optimist."

All the world's progress is because of this Andrew type of thinking. When we don't have it, even our prayers get tinged with gloomy pessimism. Pray, and expect an answer. That's the promise of James 1:6 to the church.

County Is Undecided On Museum

The El Paso County Commissioners are looking into becoming a part of the Pioneer Museum, but they are not certain how they want to do it.

At the commissioners' regular board meeting Wednesday, County Attorney Raymond Wilder said the county has the ability to become part of a regional museum district. He then added such a move would have to be done with a vote of the residents.

"I'm totally opposed to the creation of another autonomous board to run anything," said Commissioner Tom Foulks. "There has to be another way. With all of the special districts running around, there has to be one available for this."

"I support the idea of a regional museum, but I do not support the idea of supporting it with existing county funding," said Commissioner Jack Vaeth.

"I strongly support the idea of the Pioneers' Museum being supported county-wide, but not through a special district," Foulks said.

Wilder will see if the museum board is interested in the county taking part in its programs.

In other action, the commissioners approved:

—A 12-point operational expense cuts for the department of social services;

—A 3.2 percent retail liquor license for Aeok Lueth and Terue Cook for 1 Hazel Ave.

22 LINES WARN OF FLASH FLOODS

Yes. "Hawaii has recorded an average of five serious flash floods a year since 1965," says Edward M. Carlstead, meteorologist in charge of the National Weather Service's office here.

The Hawaiian Telephone Co. provides 22 special telephone lines to remote rain gauges in the island chain to gather detailed reports on rainfall for the Weather Service. Timely, accurate readings provide warnings of possible dangerous flash floods.

Soviets Building Big Pipeline to Eastern Europe

MOSCOW (AP) — A huge pipeline project to carry Soviet natural gas to Eastern Europe is going ahead, Pravda said Saturday, despite early snags and collapse of plans for co-operative work with two East bloc countries.

The Communist party newspaper announced work had begun on all sections of the 1,850-mile pipeline from the Urals to the Soviet Union's western border. It's article exposed some problems for the massive project that had been cited as a shining example of Soviet co-operation with its East bloc neighbors.

Called the Orenburg Pipeline, it is scheduled to start operation in 1978 and be running at full capacity by the end of 1980 when it will supply 547 billion cubic feet of gas to Bulgaria, Hungary, East Germany, Poland, Romania and Czechoslovakia.

The six East bloc countries were to supply labor and materials for the pipeline, with the Soviets paying in deliveries of gas.

Pravda interviewed Boris Shcherbina, minister of oil and gas construction, who said that while work was started on all sections, there is a lag in pipe deliveries.

"Unfortunately, many pipes still lie in the ports of Leningrad, Kaliningrad and Ilichevsk and their supply to the area of construction is not fulfilled according to planned timing," he said.

Last summer the Hungarians announced the Soviets would take over construction of Hungary's part of the pipline, with Hungary delivering "various products in compensation." The Czechoslovaks then said the Soviets had agreed to lay the actual pipe in Czechoslovak section, with the Czechs doing other work and paying for the Soviet work.

The Hungarians cited technical reasons for not being able to provide equipment for and lay pipe with a diameter of 55.9 inches. The Czechoslovaks said they didn't have the workers to send. This left the already labor-short Soviet Union to take up the slack.

The Soviet press never reported these changes in the original plan, but the Pravda article indicated the Soviets are considerably more involved in actual construction when was originally envisaged.

The article said Soviet crews were laying pipe near the start of the project in Orenburg, a city at the edge of the Ural mountains 750 miles southeast of Moscow, and in the Ukraine, and in honor of the forthcoming 25th Communist party congress have pledged to lay 155 miles of pipe before the end of the year.

There is no exact information on how many will be employed at the peak of construction, but it may run up to 35,000. Pravda said 5,500 workers and specialists would be employed on the line by the end of this year.

No figures have been given on the cost of the project and in any case it willl involve complicated exchanges of goods, manpower, equipment and the soft currencies of the seven Communist countries.

But a recent article in the Soviet Economic Gazette said its cost "far exceeds" that of the Soviet Kamaz truck plant that was originally budgeted for around $4 billion.
